A rust preventer is this: After the wash, when the boiler is ready to be put aside, heat it on the stove and rub the inside and seams with laundry soap. This will entirely prevent rust and make this boiler last longer.

For an improvised stove take an old galvanized iron garbage can, bore holes in the bottom, and rivet enough stove pipe (perforated) inside to rise about three feet above the rim of the can. Cut the cover so that it will fit closely around the pipe. Place this stove on a stone foundation, leaving room enough underneath to light the fire. Fill the can with refuse, put on cover, and set a match to it.

To renovate old silk, in a bottle put two ounces of alcohol, a tablespoonful of mullage or strained honey, a tablespoonful of soft soap, and two cups of soft water, and shake until well mixed. Sponge the silk on both sides with this, rub well, and shake up and down in a tub of cold water, without wringing. Shake off the water, and while still damp, iron between cloths with a moderately hot iron. This process will make the silk retain its lustre and look as good as new.

New Ocean pie: Chop finely one pound of your left-over cold meat; butter a pudding dish and sprinkle the sides and bottom with bread crumbs and chopped parsley, and add enough white sauce to cover bottom of dish. Then put in a layer of the chopped meat, well seasoned with salt, pepper, and paprika, and sprinkle over this some of the parsley, and cover with another layer of white sauce, continuing in this way until the dish is almost full. Then spread mashed potatoes so as to completely fill the dish and bake 40 to 50 minutes in a hot oven.

The best part of the secret of washing woollens without shrinking is in the drying.

To prevent shrinking, woolen goods must be dried very quickly, and much of the moisture can be shaken out; the shaking also raises the pile of the wool, and makes it soft. Indeed, shawls and knitted goods can be shaken nearly dry.

See that such things are pulled into their natural shape before they are thoroughly dry, and hang at the air, but not in the sun. If drying indoors must be resorted to, do not hang too near the fire nor in too great heat.

If the slightest steam rises from woollens when they are drying, they are "waling in" as hard as they can walk. Shawls ought to be pinned on a sheet or a carpet, or on a felt or blanket and thrown over the line.

Watch that you allow no woolen garment to "droop" at the corners. Wool when wet is plastic, retaining almost any shape into which it may be drawn, hence special care must be taken to keep woolen garments in good shape during the process of washing and drying.

Almost every one who broils steak in a gas oven has experienced no small amount of trouble in keeping the broiler spotless and shiny. An easy way out of this is to place the steak on the broiler, and instead of leaving the pan underneath dry, place cold water in it to the depth of two inches. The fat drops into the water and is purified, and may then be skimmed off and used. By this method the pan is never allowed to dry and burn, and the oven is kept free from grease.

should be studied by every parent. If your child is puffy, fretful, starts in its sleep, is pasty faced, has rings under its eyes, always seems hungry, is not gaining weight, you can be sure trouble is worms. SPRING OPENING

1908-The Paris-1908

Millinery Apparel Opening Display

An earnest invitation is extended to the women of Salt Lake to visit The Paris Spring Opening Display MONDAY and the two following days, TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY, to visit the Exhibition of Authoritative Spring Styles in

MILLINERY, COSTUMES, TAILORED SUITS, WRAPS, SKIRTS, WAISTS!

Never before have we invited you to an opening with such unbounded enthusiasm. You'll be impressed with its splendor—its elegant refinement. The Millinery Exhibition will be one of the most magnificent—the most important event of the kind in the city, with its gorgeous array of high class American and European Millinery all lavishly applied with the tone touches of fashion. This Opening Exhibit abounds in a wealth of style. The latest from London, the newest from Paris, the craze of New York. Our buyers have spent months gathering together this fascinating and bewildering collection, and it's our pleasure to say that they have by far exceeded all past efforts, for never before have we exhibited such style thoughts as will be on display at

THIS OUR SPRING OPENING OF 1908

European models adorned by dainty touches of high class artists. Smart adaptations or modifications fashioned with that distinguished air and individuality that we are so well known for, which, combined with the many original designs from our own work room showing the master touches of expert fashion artists; embracing the simplest to the most elaborate—the riot of colors, the magnificence of trimming schemes with clever touches here and there, pronounces them at once masterpieces of millinery art—making it by far an exhibition vastly more splendid than the city has ever afforded. To our Millinery Opening your presence is requested.
