There was hardly any excitement attending the event compared with the enthusiasm which attended the memorable proceedings of yesterday a week, when the Home of vesterday a week, when the Home Rule measure was proposed. At noon to-day but 90 seats on the floor of the House had been "hatted," and these were nearly ally taken by Irish members. At 4 o'clock the House was crowded to its utmost capacity. Mr. Gladstone rose in his place at 5:25 p.lm., and was greeted with cheers. When he began to speak his voice was low and husky.

BOSTONIAN CHARACTERISTICS — THE ROUGHER SEX.

It is well known that Boston Society lays claim to the very highest American culture, and as I was eager to flad what this consisted of, I have tried to avail myself of every opportunity to notice the peculiarities of so-called here to see for themselves. low and husky. He said the aim of the present endeavors of the government was directed towards securing contentment among the people of Ireland, and a permanent restoration of social order. The speaker's proposals would greatly benefit the tenants of Ireland, but the landlords were the principal object of the measure, although he thought that many of these landlords were most hostile to the government's policy. The history of Ireland was one long indictment against its landowers.

Agrarian crime had originated and landiords, and the raising of rents, as their expenses, while away from Ireland, increased. Oppression, wedded to misery, had a hideous progeny. Crime had been endowed with vitality and consequently may make better use ncreased under the absenteeism of the o perpetuate itself and hand down its niserable inheritance from generation o generation. England was not clear of responsibility, for the deeds of Irish landlords were English deeds. "With the power in our hands we have looked on and done nothing." After the Union absenteeism became general, and the national sentiment ceased to have a beneficial influence on the relations between the landlord and his tenants. The union itself was obtained against the sense and wish of every class by wholesale bribery and unblushing intimidation. The land act was intended to go into effect on the same day on which the Home Rule bill would become operative. One could not go on without the operation of the other, which would provide a legislature in Ireland to appoint a statutory authority to deal with the landlord's estate and act between the vendor and the purchaser. The purchases would be made through the issue of £180,000,000 of three per cent stock issued at par. These new Irish consols might with the consent of the Treasury, be commuted for stock of the lower denomination. If stock could be issued forthwith, scrip of equal value would be issued for the same purpose. The act was to give the landlords the option to sell outunder it.

Actions were confined to agricultural holdings and did not include man-sions having demesse and woods. The State authorities, acting between the peasant and the land owner, would purchase the land from the latter and put the peasant in possession as the absolute proprietor, subject to an anual rent charge until the total payments equalled the purchase money. The State would not force the small occupiers to become proprietors. Nebody except the immediate landlords would have the option to sell to the incumbrances, and then he must sell by forfeiture, and not as an option for himself. Applications to self would have to be made by all the tennan's on the estate, and all these price by comparing other judicial rent-als with Griffiths's valuations. The land commission would also be allowed to examine the state of books allowed to examine the state of books concerning estates for ten years back. Twenty years' rontal would be the nominal purchase. In exceptional cases 22 years, rental would make the purchase. Applications for sale would not be received after march 1, 1890. Ten millions of pounds of stock would be issued during 1887; £20,000,-000 in 1888; £20,000,000 in 1889, and £20,000,000 in each of the two succeedsecure the President's recognition, but £20,000,000 in each of the two succeed-

then went on to say that the land pro-posals, although they had been modi-fied since he had left the Cabinet, would still impose a great surden on Great Britain without sufficient security for the loans advanced. The bill was calculated not so much to benefit the tenants as a sop for the landiords. Although only £50,000,000 was to be issued, the option to sell was offered to landowners holding land valued at $150,000,000. Supposing that the full number of options to sell should be recepted, how would all the money be provided? Under the increasing depression in trade hundreds of thousands of hard workers in England would probably be thrown out of employment. CORRESPONDENCE. OUR LETTER FROM THE "HUB."

'Wandering Ute" Speaks of Boston Behavier.

BOSTON, April 11, 1886. Editor Deseret News: Before returning to home I have oted down a few of my observations of things in general in the "Hub," and as I looked over them I thought some of them might be interesting to a few of your readers who may never come notice the peculiarities of so-called cultured people. First, let me start with the men (the more uncultured sex). They are careful to appear well-dressed, boots blacked and hair either well oiled for cut to stand straight up on the head (scared-to-death fashion) a careless air is preferred to a courte-ous one, as the latter might hint at want of American independence. They are generally chivalrous enough to sit carelessly in a street car and let the ladies stand, especially if the ladies are not in silk attire. Of course they have been through college and studied all the branches of learning—just to and consequently may make better use of his learning, but the meal does not begin to consist of as many courses as that the cultured young men at the

They attend church when the speaker s a noted one, and the music extraordinarily fine; they prefer lectures to sermons—though there are but very slight differences in the two here, as a rule. They are very moral, none owning two or more wives, or cohabiting with more than one woroan "in the marriage relation." Do not suggest to them that you suppose they do not out of it, or they will smile, and lost at you as if you hadn't learned the society ways. They are all interested in pollways. They are all interested in politics, and the labor question, to some extent, while a few work nobly in the nterest of humanity, helping the poor to get daily bread and education, and the drunkard to return to sober ways. These deserve, and will, I am sure, receive their reward. And their are also many, especially in the middle ranks of life, with a fair, practical education, imbued with a Christian-like spirit, who are reasonably free from the "seven deadly sins" which a reverend minister not long since singled out as being sins of young men in modern times (I suppose he meant in this part of the country, as I do not think we are at home afflicted with any of them to any great extent.) They are laziness, drunkenness, gambling, untruthfulness, dishonesty, want of virtue and unbelief. THE BOSTON LADIES The ladies impress one always with their self-dependent air. They do not appear to care whether they have a gentleman for an escort or not, and are quite above looking for any par-ticular little attentions from the creature. Handsomely and tastefully dressed, and with that ease of bearing that denotes all the culture they lay claim to, one begins to admire them and sollloquise on the superiority of the sex in general and Boston ladies in particular, when, to his utter disgust, happy with, not to mention a still nobler calling that might take the place

THE FINE ARTS. Both men and women encourage the fine arts here as if it were a sort of a duty so to do. The Japanese are receiving considerable attention here this winter, and it is the right thing to do to admire everything oriental. The Sabbath is variously observed Temperance lectures—where the noisi-est applause is indulged in—are held "sacred concerts"—very unlike B. B. The present contribution of Irish tax-payers to England was £6,980,000, to twich England paid back in the Irish civil service and in the service of collection £4,895,000. The residue, which seemed to represent an imperial contribution for the army, navy, national debt and Imperial civil charges was £2,000,000 What did England do with it? The Wearing of Crape.

Flowing crape, as a sign of real sorrow, is not more reliable than orange flowers are of true happiness. They are both delusive at times. The memory of a departed husband or wife can be perpetuated without shrouding it in dismai, dreary colors. To the philosopher the present custom is positively absurd, because it does not tend to the end desired. It is not painful memories that one desires to perpetuate, but the pleasant ones. Then why resort to the most efficacious means of doing the very thing that is not desired?
