THE WOMEN PIRATES OF AMERICA

is all in the point of view. Poets have song of the glories of Chopa tra, yet Cleopatra was a criminal. Historians point to Catherine as one of Russia's greatest rulers, yet Cather the was a savage. Elizabeth ranks high among the monarchs of dand, yet Elizabeth was a ruibless ture who sent many men and women to the block and who signed the douth warrant of her consin, Mary Queen of South, withher cousin, Mary Queen of Scots, with-out a quarin or a quiver in her numble way. Mary Reed was a Cheopaira, a Catherins and an Elizabeth. She had the romantic adventurous disposition of the daughter of the Nile, the sturdy, masculine, soldierly qualities of the terrible Russian and the careless ways and volaitle temper of the free-living Queen Eess. She was the greatest woman pirate the world ever has known and, like the three great queens, she was a creature of circumstance to woman pirate the world ever has known and, like the three great queens, is a creature of circumstance to a large degree. If she had any regret because, instead of pirace, a quiet, hence life and a locing husband had not been he destiny, she did not give to like her calling, and in a naive, philosophic sort of way she would piracy and the beneficial offects hang-ing had more keeping the ranks of the provided of the fact, she seemed to the realing overcrowdet. Twee it not for the fact is here seemed to the beneficial offects hang-ing had more keeping the ranks of the provided of the fact way she would pirace and the beneficial offects hang-ing dangles before their eyes as a neares, she remarked in a conversa-tion with the jedge who sentenced here to death. "All the cowards would turn of course a bild starve. If I had my way I would not make the penalty for piracy anything less than death. It is the fact of the moose that has kept who now rob the widows and the or-phans and who oppress the poor who have no momy to seek justice. If it has a crowded with rogues as the land and there would be so much plunder-when would not send vessels out ex-oust and the time course have and the or-phans and who oppress the poor who have no momy to seek justice. If it have a crowded with rogues as the land and there would be so much plunder-while walls out send vessels out ex-oust and the time would not be would there would be so much plunder-while walls that merchants, after a while walls out send vessels out to be wout of mourner. ENTERCED TO DIE

SENTENCED TO DIE.

It was at Port Royal, Jamaica, Nov. 29, 1720, that Mary Resed was tried. Another woman pirate, Anne Bonney, was on trial with her, as were Captain John Rackam and eight men of Rack-am's crew. The nine men and the two women were sentenced to death, and that same day Eackam and two of the men were taken to Gallows Point and hanged So far as is known this is the hanged. So far as is known this is the only instance not only of women pirates being sentenced to death but of women pirates being brought to trial. It is recorded that the women showed It is recorded that the women showed a higher degree of courage in the presence of the judge than did their marveied at for the women had dis-played far more bravery in the sea

Hed. Blackam and his men same spirit as the wamen that sea fight probably would have had a dif-

1 War

fight probably would have had a dif-ferent coning. Piracy was in its decadence in the day of Baukano, and Backam probably would have received little or no notice in history but for Mary Reed and Anne Romey. Morgan, prince of pirates, was dead. Ros, the Brazilian, had paid the penalty of his crimer; Bar-tholency, L'olonnois, be Lusson and the other communders of the golden days of the bassances were memories only, but throughout the West Indies there were enough bands of sea rob-bers to make life lively for the Span-in'd or any other captule who solled those waters. Rackam had been quartermaster on the pirate ship com-mended by Captuin Charles Vane, and when Vane, on Nov. 24, 1718, was de-pored for ensardice in refusing to at-tuck a French man-of-war, Backam was chosen captain in his pine. In the two years in which Backam craised around Cuba, Bernuda, the Bahamas, and made occasional raids along the Carlibbean coast, Mary Reed was second in command and Anne Bonnay was one of the crew. The edged, but not sorry enough to shed tears. She besought him however, to go to his death like a man and so wipe out as far as possible the memory of his craven conduct in the fight. was second in command and Anne Bonnay was one of the crew. The plfates captured averal vessels, attack-ed some small towns and got a fair amount of plunder, and made them-selves so much of a menace that a pardon was offered to thom and to all other unates constitues in the auf of to die with him that day went to the gallows smilingly. The other men of the hand were hanged in the February perdon was offered to thom and to all other pirates operating in the gulf if they would return to honest ways. But although most of the other pirates were glad of the opportunity to wash the slate clean, not so with Rackam and the women. They refused, and so became the mark of all the English, French and Enarish vessels of war that were in the West Indies. following, but although neither Mary Reed nor Anne Bonney sought or ex-pected clemency the authorities refused to hang them. There was as much, if not more, of an abhorrence to inflict-ing the death penalty on women in those days as there is in these times, and as the stories of the two women pirates became known through their conversitions with the Port Royal conversations with the Port Royal indge; people came to look upon them as more sinned against than sinning. It was early in November, 1720, that as more sinned against than siming. Mary Reed, it was learned, had been born in Engiand and had been bred and reared in deception. Her mother, when very young, had married a youth who soon after their marriage went to sea and never returned. The fruit of this marriage was a son. A year later Mary was born, and, the son dying. Mary's mother decided to substitute her likeditmate child for the legilismall English warship sighted Rackam's brigantine off Jamaica. The two vessels were pretty well matched and in the early stages of the fight all the chances favored the pirates, but sea robbers never did have much stomach for fighting against the English, and when one of the guns on the brigantine burst and it was necessary to close with the enemy if victory was to be nchleved, Backam rushed to his cabin and sought solace in the brandy bottle. In vain did Mary Reed and Anne Bon-ney pload with and theater the rest Mary's mother decided to substitute her illegitimate child for the legiti-mate one in order to have the child come in for the wealth of hor hus-hand's mother. Mary, therefore, was reared as a boy. As she grew up her mother explained to her the secret of her birth and the necessity for con-cealing her sex. At various times the grandmother wanted to adopt the child, but this the mother, of course, would not consent to. Instead, each time she got the old woman to increase the al-lowance made on account of the child.

THE FIGHT.

In value did Mary Reed and Anne Bon-ney plead with and threaten the rest. The example of the captain was too much for them. After firing a few more shots at the Englishman they, took sought refuge and solace in the cabin, all but one. This one remained on deck with the two women and fought the ship until the last. In one desperate effort to get the men back on dock Mary Reed went to the cabin door and, firing into the crowd, threat-ened death to every one of them who continued to act the coward. Her shot killed one man, but the others stuck to the cabin and refused to come out. When the English awarmed on board she, in diagust, surrendered the briganlowance made on account of the child. Occasionally the mother and grand-mother quarreled and, unfortunately for Mary, the old woman died at such a time and left Mary without a shilling. The child being no longer a source of income to her, the mother had no further use for Mary and so abadone!

she, in diagust, surrendered the brigan-tine, and thereafter both by the com-mander of the warship and by the civil authorities she was treated as the real hend of the pirate band. Her con-tempt for Rackam and the men was for several months and then, the Brit-lah government having made one of its periodical offers to pirates to pardon those who would surrender, by a cer-uain day, the crew availed themselves of the opportunity, went to Jamaica, were officially forgiven, and having sold their plunder to good advantage, proceeded to enjoy the fruits of their adventures.

When their money was spent they heard that Capt. Rodgers was fitting out vessels in the island of New Provi-dence for privateering. This suited them admirably, so a fair number of them, among the lot being Vane and Rackam, offered their service to Rod-"What else could I do?" Mary asked the judge when she got to this point in her marrative. "There was no way for an honest woman to make a living in Jamaina, as well you know, and even though I detest the life the pirate leads and even though I abhor bloodshed and trime I have the same love of life that overy human creature has, and, wanting to preserve my life and get out of it everything I can, 4 was constrained to become a pirate once more because there was nothing else for me to turn to."

PIRATE AGAIN.

The ship fitted out by Rodgers hardy had sailed when Mary and her com anions mutinied and ran up the black flag. Vana was selected as captain and Raclaum quartermaster. For several years the pirates ranged the galf, prey-ing on friend and foe. At times they ing on Friend and foe. At times they had plenty, but more times they were poor. Then came the time when Vane was unwilling to give builte to a French wurship and Backam sup-planted him as captain. With the se-lection of Buckam as captain there came to the picture whip Anne Benney. the woman to whom he was attached. She dressed in a mixed costume, half male, half female. In all the contexts in which the briggnithe engaged she was as resolute and as good a fighter as

Was as resolute and as good a highter as any man aboard. One of the queer things in connection with this strange pair of women is that it was through Anne Bonney that the rex of Mary Reed was discovered. Mary was no less modest than she was brave and no one on board suspected her as Ann ho one on board assessed are as being other than she seemed. Anne Bonney, coarse and of a far different stripe than Mary, was much impressed by the rosy checks and dashing ap-pearance of Mary and aroused the Jeal-oury of Rackam. The captain became in the second second so violent that Mary thought it prudent to reveal her secret to Anne. A DUEL

But the secret was not to ren is secret. Soon after the arrival of Anne Bonney aboard the brigantine captured a ship and among the prisoners taken was a young artist of emerits taken a solp and allong the prisaging man-ners. Mary Reed straightway fell in love with him. Her love was put to a sovere test before many days, for the love with him. Her love was put to a severe test before many days, for the artist, having quarreled with one of the pirates, challenged him to a duel, which they agreed to fight ashore. Mary had doubts about the courage of the man she loved or possibly she loved him so much that she would not let him risk his life. At any rate, she sought a quarrel with the pirate and insisted on fighting him before the hour set for the duel with the artist. Mary and the pirate fought with pis-tol and sword and after a short en-gagement she left him dead on the field. It was after that duel that Mary con-fessed her love to the artist. They pledged their faith, which they deemed as binding as if the ceremony had been performed by a clergyman.

performed by a clergyman. From the notes of those who attended the trial of this woman there is fur-nished this description of her. 'She is handsome, robust and showy or distin-guished in appearance. That she is ca-puble of great exertion and of sustain-ing great fatigue no one need doubt af-ter surveying her big frame. She is rather vain in some respects and par-ticularly of her success in deceiving the world as to her sex. She is susceptible of the tenderest emotions and the most genuine affections. Although she was inadvertently drawn into plracy, this hortble mode of life has not stained her character, and she possesses a recher character, and she possesses a rec-titude of principle and of conduct far superior to many who have not been exposed to such temptations."

Although the woman appeared robust to all who saw her in court she was far from well. Her condition was such that her execution was postponed several times. She grew worse rapidly and then she died. It is multicly that she would have then she died. It is unlikely that she would have been hanged even if she had not been stricken with illness, but at any rate her death saved Anne Borney, for whom there was not so much sympathy expressed as for Mary Reed.

of his servants, taking Anno with him. He settled in South Carolina and be-came one of the rich planters of that part of America. When his servant-wife died Anne superintended the household. The sirl was looked upon as one of the great heirosses of the Carolinas and her father planned a bril-liant match for her, but she was of his own blood and ran away with a common sallor. The young people fiel to New Providence, where the sallor expected to find employment. They tired of each other quickly, and one day she left him and joined Captain Rack-an, She went to sea in men's clothes at first, and then compromised on a combination costume that was both plecombination costume that was both ple-turesque and suitable to her business, It was by no means cumbersome, and she took to piracy with a relish, appar-ently rejoicing in its freedom, and hav-ing ne moral qualms about robbing or her father's plannation in the Carsina and these men interreded at her in but she had become so gross and se den through her life with the proden through her life with the pin that this therewession amounted to ble. She was teprived from time time, however, and when Mary he died all pretones of carrying on a sentence in Anne former's may a dropped. She never was officially set free in one day the prison doors were pre-and she was permitted to wak a And when she disappeared to be voman pirate of which there it had passed from vi

RICHARD SPILLANE

Foley's Kidney Remedy will ten any case of kidney or bladder trails that is not beyond the reach of termine rine. Curves backache and Bregist ing no moral qualma about robbing or killing. She was known to many of the plant-ers of Janualca, who had been guests at played far more pravery in the sea fight in which they were captured than did Rackam or any of the others. In fact, throughout the years in which the two women sailed with Rackam they were the sturdiest fighters on board.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? We can furnish positive proof that it has made many remarkable cures after all other means had failed.

Women who are suffering with some form of female illness should consider this.

As such evidence read these two unsolicited testimonial letters. We guarantee they are genuine and honest statements of facts.

Gardiner, Maine, --"I was a great sufferer from a female disease and weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation but I could not bear to think of it. "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me in three months."--Mrs. S. A. Williams, R.F.D. No. I4, Box 39, Gardiner, Mc.

So, West Harbor, Me. - "I suffered for years with painful periods, backache, headaches, nervousness, irregularities and inflammation. I consulted two physicians and one advised me to have an operation.

"I was completely discouraged when I decided to try Lydia E. "I was completely discouraged when I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has made me a well woman. I advise all suffering women to take Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound." – Mrs. Lillian Robbins, South ham's Vegetable West Harbor, Me.

Evidence like the above is abundant showing that the derangements of the female organism which breed all kinds of miserable feelings and which ordinary practice does not cure, are the very disorders that give way to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are afflicted with similar troubles, after reading two such letters as the above, should be encouraged to try this wonderfully helpful remedy.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Audress Sira, Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

her. Mary, garbed as a boy, reared as a boy and having had the companion-ship only of boys all her life, now could do nothing except look for work as a boy. She had the good fortune to obtain a position as footboy to a Frenchwoman of wealth, and she reto obtain a position as footboy to a Frenchwoman of weath, and she re-mained in this position several years. As she grew in years and strength she got tired of servile employment and began to look about for something else. Having a love for the sea and a touch of romance in her disposition she en-listed on a man of war. Here she learned enough of seamanship to fit her well for the part she was to play later on in life. After several cruises she sought adventure ashore and went to Flanders, where she enlisted in a regiment of infantry as a cadet. She was a brave, dashing soldier, but there was little chance for a poor soldier, no matter how brave or how dashing, to advance in those days, for commis-sions were bought and sold and the person without money might serve throughout life without promotion. MARRIAGE OF THE TROOPERS. MARRIAGE OF THE TROOPERS.

well to her. Instead of condoling with him, she told him that if he had fought like a man in all probability he would not have gone to the gallows. She was sorry for him, of course, she acknow!

MARY REED'S LIFE.

Rackam and the two men sentenced

MARTINACE OF THE ENCOTENCS. Giving up the infantry is disgust, Mary next collisied in a cavality regi-ment. In this she distinguished her-self so as to win the applause and ea-term of all the officers of the regiment. Just then romance entered the life of Mary to bring confusion to her. She was very brave and she was very mod-est. She had the faculty of most hrave persons of winning the affectionate re-send of their companions. The tent companion of Mary was a handsome young Flemiab trooper, who thought they would. No wonder that Mary, her natural tendencies checked and distort-ed throughout her young life, should fail passionately in love with him. The violance of her feelings was such that and acted so peculiarity that she was considered insane. One day when the sorrow over her condition she automish-ed him by throwing hornedi into his sorrow and the such some and the was a woman. But his automishment was no greater than that of the entire regiment the property and the structure were present and so were thousands of citi-sor. Married and dressed for the first time Giving up the infantry in disgust

Married and dressed for the first lime in her life in the clothes women wear. Mary left the army and, with her hus-band, opened an inn, and for luck called it the Three Horseshoes. She had a fair measure of luch for a few years and was well on the road to prosperily and ease when her husband died, the wars ended, business fell off to little or nothing and she was loft once more with a problem of making a Uring for herself.

A PHLATE IN SPITE OF HERSELF.

A PHIATE IN SPITE OF HERBELF. There was not much opportunity for her in Europe, she thought. Aughow the death of her husband had out all the death of her husband had out all the dist that held her there, so she en-gaged passage for America in a French ship. For an unstached young works in to make the trip across the ocean in those days was unthought of, so for her of a first. The ship she sailed in was captured by English pintes, and as she was the only English speaking person on board, the pirates after pluddoring the yeasel and its passengers of every-tring of value, took her on board their yraft and hilowed the French ship to proceed. They had no idea, she was handone, row-chesked young English-men—and she because one of the pirates to do. They was nothing size for her

CACHE VALLEY MULE RANCH COMPANY \mathscr{Q}

322 Boston Building, Salt Lake City, Utah

Capital Stock, $300,000

First Offering of Stock for Subscription

The company is formed for the purpose of raising mules for the markets of the world in a field particularly adapted for the purpose. Two thousand acres of Cache Valley land has been secured. The ranch is situated seven miles from Logan, Utah, on the main line of the O. S. L. R. R., and an abundance of water is supplied by the Logan river. The ranch will be stocked with 400 brood mares and Kentucky jacks and with the first sales of stock, steel and concrete barns to take care of 900 head of stock will be erected.

The first allotment of 100,000 shares is now offered to the public at the par value of $1.00 per share, payable 50 cents down on each share, the remainder within one year at the option of the directors.

The physicial condition of the company's property warrants us in saying that this stock is now worth par and the prospective value makes it an investment, not a speculation.

The ranch is all under cultivation. 800 acres in timothy hay and 500 acres in wild grass.

Cache Valley has always loomed large in the stock market of this section and it is the purpose of the company to take advantage of nature's bountiful provisions.

For prospectus and all information, call on or address

