CLIMATIC CURES.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, tod, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digention, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. # SERGT. YOUNG BACK FROM FRONT

He Arrives in Town Bearded Like A Pard, and With All the Latest Gossip.

DOES NOT LOOK FOR TROUBLE.

He Says it Scems as Though There Will be No Strikers Left To Evict.

First Sergeant Young of the battery returned this morning from Sunnyside, with an acre or so of timothy fringing his classic profile. This appendage he proceeded to get rid of with neatness and dispatch, and now "Richard is himself again." The sergeant says that the first time there was target practise with the Gatling gun, every Italian striker came out of his house with a Winchester, so as to take a friendly hand in the game, if there was any opportunity to do so. The Battery boys had the gun so placed that it would have been a very easy thing to give the entire line of miners' quarters a raking and very effective fire; and had the strikers started in with their Winches-ters, they would not have stood up

Sergeant Young does not believe there Sergeant Young does not believe there will be really any trouble with the evicted strikers. In fact it begins to look as though there might not be any strikers to evict as these gentry are getting out of the country with very little ceremony. While the situation has been peaceable enough, still it was just as well that the troops were sent into the field, as the boys were given to understand by residents that had they not come when they did, there would have been a great deal of trouble. Sergeant Young hardly expects that the state troops will be released until the first of the year.

Reports received at the city offices of the Fuel-company state that there was the Fuel-company state that there was an increase this morning of miners at Winter Quarters of six, of 11 at Clear Creek, and of seven at Sunnyside. In fact Sunnyside is so well provided now that men applying there for work will be sent to the Castle Gate, where operations will be resumed Dec. 21. Yesterday's coal output of the Fuel company amounted to 3,150 tons, an increase of about 100 tons over the output of Saturday.

When asked as to the report via Colton that the non-union miners proposed to strike if any of the strikers were taken back, the statement was denied. Aat the same time, it is now well known that no striker need apply, and this idea is gradually dawning upon the striking mind in the coal camps. Not a few of the strikers are married men who are taking their families away with them, taking their families away with them, as all appear to have money. It is stated that the foreigners make it a parctise to hide up their cash in tin cans hidden in the ground, and even in the mines, rather than deposit it in any bank. They are thrifty in saving, notwithstanding their drinking habits, and get out of town at any time without being obliged to live in tents as the agitators suggested, and wear the company out." Just at present the pro-cess of attrition seems to be the other way. The strike is considered as practically over, and in a week all of the camps will be "doing business at the old stand" the same as before the agi-

There is not much to be said of "? Trip to Chinatown," which was seen at the Salt Lake Theater last night, except that it contained only a faint reminder of the old time popularity of oyt's play. There were very few shekels in evidence at the theater last night, and it must be said that the rendition barely justified those that were. The whole production is on the second rate order, though the central figure. Mr. Campbell, is an amusing actor who, wit proper support, might have made some thing of the play. The proper support, however, was sadly lacking.

Those who missed going to the Grand last night, missed enjoying a hearty laugh. Rose Melville is very good and very original in the eccentric role of "Sis" Hopkins. The character is that of a clumsy, almost half-witted coun-try girl, who, under the influences of ulture and travel, blossoms out into charming young woman. The plot out of the beaten track of rural irama comedies. The play was well at tended and the audience much enjoyed the comical acting of Miss Meiville, Edward Hume and James McDaff. Miss Melville was well supported, the last named gentiemen filling their parts well. Florence Webster, Blanche Carisle and Catherine Camp among the well as the manly young lover of "Sis Hopkins. George Maxwell as the In diana farmer, was very acceptable, while Louis Merrill made a good ap-pearance as the city bred villain. The play continues tonight and tomorrow night. Matinee tomorrow.

The general reports as to the condition of the union were acceptable. Rostand's recent triumphal reception at the academy seems once more to have stimulated him into activity. There is a good deal of Mrs. Gummidge about men of Rostand's breed. The least counter paralyzes them, but when things go well with them they march from success to success. I met Coque-lin on the boulevard yesterday lin on the boulevard yesterday, and found him in high spirits. When I asked him why so exuberant, he put his fingers to his lips and said: "Hush. Brooklyn. "Would you give me some kind of idea of the subject of the one that you did select?" I asked. But Coquelin said that that was "altogether impossible." Henrik Ibsen has worked this form Henrik liben has worked this form of advertisement of his plays with very considerable success, and Coquelin is a thorough business man. For the rest, we shall probably know all about the play in a day or two. To judge from Coquelin's enthusiasm, it must be very fine indeed, even making allowance for Coquelin's native exuberance and the fact that his admiration for Rostand, who saved him on the verge of ruin with "Cyrano," is naturally unbounded. And it is certainly true that it is a fine output to have produced five scenarios in the very short time which has elapsed between the writing of the Bornier eulogy and the present gleton managed to throw away his pocket book containing $150, but was robbed of about $35. The pocket book was found by a friend this morning. The robbers marched Congleton down of the Bornier eulogy and the present day. Apart from these five scenarios, Rostand has been working on two other plays, "Maison des Amants" and "Jeanne Darc."
