OGDEN NEWS. OGDEN, UTAH, - - SEPT. 26, 1801. BANFORD DIVORCE CASE.

Sensational Developments After a Brief Marriage of a Few Months.

Hold-up Story Confirmed-Wants to Instruct Deaf-Mute Pupils the Art of Knitting-Court Notes.

Divorce proceedings have been comenced by Margaret Ann Banford against Samuel Banford, both well own residents of Ogden and have een for a number of years. The allegations as set forth in the complaint are that the parties were married on December 6th, 1900. That since said narriage the defendant has treated the plaintiff in a cruel manner causing her great mental and bodily distress, to wit, that on or about Jan. 1901, the laintiff had her arm broken, and was nable to use it for a long time but otwithstanding this condition of the aintiff, the defendant compelled her do the house work, to milk two cows and do other work, and when plaintiff complained of her inability to do said ork the defendant used abusive lanlage to her.

The plaintiff further alleges in her mplaint that the defendant has wilneglected to provide the plaintiff common necesaries of life Plaintiff alleges that she is in indi-ent circumstances and unable to pay osts of this action; and prays that the onds of matrimony existing between erself and defendant be dissolved, that he be given a legal and just portion of aid property and for $400 attorneys bes. That a restraining order be is-ued to prevent the defendant from isposing of his property until the acin is decided. The restraining order as granted.
