

NEW LIQUOR BILL HAS A NEW NAME

With Such, it Again Passes in House Without Further Amendment.

APPROPRIATION LIST UP.

As forecasted in yesterday's "News," the way of the compromise liquor bill in the legislature was beset with thorns and thistles. The house after a great deal of debate as to the proper method of procedure, peremptorily disposed of house bill 22, by Pope, the anti-treating measure; 126, by McMillin, the regulation measure, and 223, by Cannon, the bill providing for absolute prohibition with county dispensary clause; and with cigar-like assumption of prerogative, sent the measure recommended by the joint committee back to the senate as amended senate bill 145, by Badger.

The senate did not take kindly to this display by the house of privileges usually abrogated entirely to the august upper body of the legislature, and with a curt note, the purport of which was that even its own author would never recognize the measure passed by the house as the one originating some days ago in the senate as Badger's bill No. 118, asking for definite information as to the bill's identity, the measure was returned to the house. Senator Wilson, in seeking the parentage of the measure, declared that a measure he had introduced in the senate, of which he had since heard nothing, had been incorporated into the compromise bill sent in by the house as the amended senate bill, and he wanted to know.

A LOSING FIGHT.
Senator Badger had a losing fight on his hands in attempting to force consideration of the bill in its new form. He considered it as an amendment to his own measure, and wished to have it so considered by the senate. The two Weber statesmen and one or two from Salt Lake and the sage from Cache and others opposed Badger's efforts, and although the stage was gained where the secretary started to read the measure, the "heavy work" of the "band of 12" came in and the measure was shot back at the house.

The house thereupon was thrown into a muddle from which it was with difficulty extricated. Mr. Holman wished to know if all the bills were again open to discussion, in the light of the senate's action refusing to recognize the house measure as an amended senate bill.

Clagg moved to make the record show that the measure was a substitute bill. Ashton said a bill could not be introduced in the house, which had already been passed by the senate.

Cannon moved that the measure be given a new number and be designated house bill 249, by Hansen, explaining that Mr. Hansen had worked diligently in the preparation of the compromise bill.

This motion was carried, and Mr. Morris said in order to clear the record he moved that the bill be considered as having been read first, second and third times and placed upon its passage.

EXPUNGED FROM RECORD.
"How about senate bill 145?" queried Mr. Holman. "The records of this house show that bill to have been passed by this house."

Mr. Holman moved that all reference to senate bill 145 be stricken from the record.

Mr. Ashton opposed the motion, as did also Mr. Thompson. "I want the record to show where I stood on that bill," said Mr. Thompson. "I am not afraid to have my name recorded as voting against the bill."

The motion to expunge reference to the Badger bill was carried.

The chair then held that the new measure was up for discussion on third reading. Holman asked if there was any more Badger bill. The speaker replied there was not.

Holman insisted that the house record show official action on this and other liquor measures.

Speaker Robinson instructed the clerk to call the roll on house bill 24, and it passed by the following vote:

Ayes—Allen, Archibald, Baker, Bower, Clegg, Davis, Dorius, Dyreng, Eardley, Hansen, Haycock, Hodges, Jensen, King, McCracken, William McMillan, Hugh A. McMillin, McRae, Nelson.

SPEAKS OF DES MOINES PLAN.
Well Known Real Estate Man Approves of System.

Mark Olsen, a well known real estate man of Des Moines, Iowa, who is spending a day or two in Salt Lake City on his way home from the coast and the northwest, is a very enthusiastic supporter of the Des Moines plan of city government.

Mr. Olsen was one of the committee of 25 which examined the charter of a number of the cities of the Union and after selecting what was best in all of them, formulated what has now come to be known as the Des Moines plan.

"It has only been in operation about a year, but it works like a charm," said Mr. Olsen today. "The city of Des Moines has the best managed street department of any city in the west, and there is not the slightest suspicion of graft."

Referring to the charge that Mr. MacVicar, in charge of the street department, dominates his colleagues and neutralizes the good effects of the system in Des Moines, Mr. Olsen says that while it is true that Mr. MacVicar by reason of superior ability is a leader and likes to have his way, he cannot do anything if he does not have two others of the same caliber to go along with him in all the things that come up for a decision.

He also says that the citizens of the city of Des Moines are very intelligent and that the only reason the plan works so well is because the contractors who have lost their pull with the city.

The order of the day, Mr. Olsen says, is economy. The responsibility of some department of the city government has been placed on each of the commissioners and they are making good and effecting a saving in every department.

A still further saving will be effected if the bill now pending passes the legislature authorizing the city to expend sums up to several thousand dollars without calling lenders. As it is now the commissioners have to call lenders for any amount over $200, and in doing so they found that the contractors have got together and held prices up.

S. H. CLARK ON IBSEN.
Dramatic Recital of "Brand" Delights and Puzzles Audience.

The usual large audience greeted Prof. Clark again last night in Barrett hall where he presented Ibsen's masterpiece, "Brand." The professor regretted being obliged to cut the drama. He wished he could have arranged with the lecture course management to give the whole work in three readings, even if he had but one student or person in the seats in front of him. The lecturer placed Ibsen as the head of the dramatic writers of the world, one better than any other, and a successful dramatist. He said that Ibsen's work is not only a masterpiece of art, but a masterpiece of life. He said that Ibsen's work is not only a masterpiece of art, but a masterpiece of life. He said that Ibsen's work is not only a masterpiece of art, but a masterpiece of life.

DEBATE IN EATON GYM.
The Salt Lake and Park City High schools will debate this evening, in the Eaton gymnasium. The members of the two teams are: Park City—Ira Diem, Ira Sherman, Roger McDonald, Ada Weeton (alternates); Salt Lake—Gilbert Williams, Georgius Cannon, Lawrence Clayton, Cloyd Woolley (alternates).

There is a strong rivalry between the two schools, which has been emphasized by a slight unpleasantness in the selection of judges. Salt Lake sent Park City a list of 10 judges, mostly Salt Lake men, from which Park City was to have selected three, according to the rules of the contest. Instead of doing this, the Park City team sent back a list of entirely different judges, none of whom reside in the city. Salt Lake refused to accept these and the debate came near being declared off. However, Professor Reynolds came to the rescue and agreed to choose two judges to act with Judge Straup, who was accepted by both teams. The result of the university is conducting the debates for which any high school in the state is eligible.

The papers read included one by R. C. Barnes of the Deseret National bank on the woes, trials and tribulations of "Paying Tellers"; and one by D. J. Bloom of the State Bank of Utah on "The Exchange and Collection Departments of Banking." The bank clerks quintet furnished music, Messrs. James, Frenley, Ball, Andrew and Saville. It was decided to arrange a debate on the future of "The Guarantee of Deposits," also, to send a delegation from the local chapter to the national banking convention next June in Seattle, where a thousand bankers are to be gathered. The idea of organizing four ball teams was favorably entertained.
