HEALTH HINTS, ETC.

COMPILED BY MAC.

Cut out these "Hints" and keep them.

A hot, strong lemonade, taken at bedtime, will generally break up a cold.

"Though health may be enjoyed without gratitude, it can not be sported with without loss, or regained by courage."

"Health is capital as truly as money is. The man who so regards it will be as careful in its expenditure, as cautious in its investment, as prudent in husbanding its resources as the financier is in the management of the principal which yields his income."

Quackery.—The new idea in nostrums is not to pretend that a particular medicine will cure all maladies, but that it will positively and completely cure the one disease for which it is designed. The clear-sighted student of human nature who discovered this slant is said to be on the road to a fortune.—Medical Record.

Poor baby!—"You have lost your baby, I hear," said one gentleman to another. Yes; poor little thing? It was only five months old. We had four doctors; blistered its head and feet; put mustard poultices all over it; gave it nine calomel powders; leeched its temples; had it bled; and gave it lobelia and all kinds of medicines, and yet after a week's illness it died."

Anointing with Oil.—A foreign paper gives this advice: "When a child, or an adult, takes a cold which settles on the chest, or in the throat, or in the head in the region of the nose, one of the first things to be done is to anoint the parts affected with olive oil. The oil should be warmed, which it can be easily by pouring a little into an iron spoon, and holding the latter over the flame of a lamp for a minute, and then rubbed into the skin of the parts wet with the hand. Do this always at night and at other times in the day when the case is a severe one. It is a certain relief, and will do not a little towards a cure. Incipient influenza and croup may not infrequently be warded off in this way.

Drugs.—A prominent physician recently said the habit of taking drugs and nostrums is beyond comprehension. It partly comes from mothers dosing their babies with soothing syrup, hive syrup, paregoric, worm lozenges, and druggists and proprietary medicine companies distributing flaming bills, chromos, and free samples of nostrums from house to house. The prevention is to educate the people in the injurious effects of drugs. There should be less medicine taken. A doctor is seldom capable of prescribing for himself when ill, much less the laity, who know nothing of the action of drugs.

—A physician having directed one of his patients to bathe a wound in tepid water, the patient sent his little girl to the drug store with a note saying: "Please, sell bearer one-half pint of tepid water."

No Commandment.—Old gentleman (putting a few questions): "Now, boy—h—can any of you tell me what commandment Adam broke when he partook of the forbidden fruit?" Small scholar (like a shot): "Please, sir, th' iworn't no commandments then, sir!" There are people who imagine that there are no commandments now, at least none which relate to eating, and allow themselves to indulge every fancy of their perverted palates without stint. But like Adam, they are sure to find retribution following hard after them, and no account of dodging around among the bushes of ignorance and self-deception will save them from the consequences of their sins.—Good Health.

Treatment for Diphtheria.—Take equal parts (say two tablespoonfuls) of turpentine and liquid tar; put them into a tin pan or cup and set on to the mixture, taking care to have a large pan under it as a safeguard against fire. A dense resinous smoke arises making the room dark. The patient immediately seems to experience relief; the choking and the rattle stop; the patient falls into a slumber and seems to inhale the smoke with pleasure; the fibrinous membrane soon becomes detached, and the patient coughs up microbes. In the course of three days the patient entirely recovers. This is the prescription successfully employed for many years by Sir James Paresley, M. D., Inspector General of Hospitals, India.

Effects of Corsets.—The chest may be deformed by compression during infancy, and be more or the injurious practices of mothers and nurses; but the chief agents in distorting this part of the skeleton are the various kinds of corsets, It is especially from the sixth to the last rib that this pressure is exercised; these, from their greater flexibility, are pressed inward, and all the organs within them—lungs, heart, stomach, liver, etc.—are more or less changed in their position and form; the amount of air introduced into the lungs is lessened, the circulation of the blood through the heart is impeded, the stomach cannot perform properly its functions of digestion, and the liver is displaced downward and presses upon the intestines, laying the foundion for diseases of the chest, consumption, heart disease, dyspepsia, constipation, and many other ills which shorten and embitter the lives of women.

Ventilation.—Henry Leeson, M.D., says: "If we may be permitted to define cant as the current expression of an intentional insincerity, we believe that there is no species of cant more universal than that which people talk about ventilation. Go where we may, whether into the houses of the wealthy or into the miserable dwellings of the poor, we hear the same cry about ventilation and its advantages; but in no cases, or at least few, do we see any reason to think the cry a genuine one. How many people tell us of the healthy influence of pure fresh air, but how few ever take proper steps to introduce it into their homes! How seldom do we see anything like a rational system of ventilation in public buildings; and where are the private dwellings in which vitiated breathing-air is not abundantly present?"

Patent Medicines.—"Sugar and slops are sold to a too confiding public as great medicines by unscrupulous scientists. Some patent medicine proprietors who brag the loudest and claim the most, are unscrupulous in proportion. The American Analyst is authority for the statement that a new Nerve Food is merely oil and water with some bitter substance to give it a medicinal taste, for it contains no active principle of any drug or vegetable, and that 'the sole property to which this mixture can lay claim, is that of a mild and entirely inoffensive tonic, forming an agreeable drink for quenching thirst, and incapable of exercising the slightest action upon the brain or nervous system.' Another proprietary medicine is being largely advertised as a great new discovery of miraculous power, but the results of analysis shows that it is almost entirely made up of globules of sugar flavored slightly bitter, and if there is any medicinal ingredient it is too homeopathic to make itself known in chemical analysis."

"Energetic push and big brag will bring large profits to the venders of baby-water and flavored sugar, and whatever supposed benefits are derived from the use of such 'medicines' are entirely due to the principle of faith cure. The bold claims of the advertisement have more influence in such cures than the inert substance sold at $1 per bottle. But the cures all are very few in number and it does not pay to run such schemes very long. By the time the public has found out by experience that there is no virtue in the preparations, the schemers have made a snug little pile and are ready to run some other worthless slops under another name and 'fool 'em again.' So we see the papers booming some new discovery every year, while those of a year ago are lost sight of but if we could know in every instance the men who originate, manipulate and profit by these schemes, we should often find the same man or men behind several of them."—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

A newspaper that lauds a patent medicine advertisement in its columns is, to that respect, an enemy to its confiding readers.

What Sickness Costs.—"Seventy-four thousand doctors! Think of it. A large number for our country, according to late census, unless some of the newspapers "inform on" falsely. Ought not these figures to 'give us pause?' Reflect a moment, what an army they would make, even in this day of big battalions, if drawn up in line of battle! Larger than by 20 many of the oldest States.

Or, look at it again from another point of view. What a mint of money it takes to support this army! Probably we are within the mark when we calculate that the average income of the 74,000 from practice is a thousand dollars a year each? This makes $74,000,000 a year which the sick pay for medical advice. For their medicine it is safe to say they pay $26,000,000 a year. In this calculation we have left altogether out of the account the tens and hogsheads of quack medicines which these misguided people pour down their throats. We can safely estimate that at $25,000,000 a year more. It is no exaggeration to place the value of the time lost in consequence of sickness as equal to the whole of these amounts, making a grand total of $250,000,000, representing the cost to the American people of one year's sickness.

Let the people study these figures awhile, and then reflect that probably one-half is incurred by a deliberate infraction of the laws of health; that if they tippled less, smoked less, overworked less, were less given to lechery and wantonness, ate slower, were less 'fast' and self-indulgent, they would save $125,000,000 a year.

TO STOCKMEN.

THE MEETING AT DENVER ON FEBRUARY 8.

To the Members of the International Range Association, State, Territorial and Local Range Cattle Associations and Owners of Range Cattle generally throughout the United States, Mexico and British Columbia:

You are hereby notified that the annual meeting of the International Range Association will be held in the city of Denver, Colorado, on the second Tuesday (eighth) of February, A. D. 1887, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m.

The basis of representation at the coming meeting will be that fixed in section 3 of the constitution, which reads as follows, viz.:

Section III.—Members in the association shall be associations and societies, which are now or may be hereafter organized for the objects above named, and that include range, cattle or horses. Each of such bodies may become a member upon the consent of this association thereto by application and payment of fees, shall hold one membership, and shall pay the entrance fee, annual dues and such assessments as may be made from time to time by the executive committee hereof, pursuant to the by-laws."

The representation in the International Range Association at its annual meeting, and at called meetings thereof, shall be by delegates duly appointed and accredited upon the basis following, that is to say: Each Association or society, or combination of associations being a member thereof, controlling collectively not less than 10,000 head of neat cattle or horses, or both, shall be entitled to one delegate for each additional 25,000 head thus controlled; Provided, that no State or Territory shall be entitled to more than one-fourth of the entire vote of this association at any regular or special meeting, and that in every case taxation for the support of this association shall be in proportion to the vote to which each State or Territory is entitled.

The speediest appointment possible of delegates under the above section to attend the meeting consistent with the wise and judicious selection of the same, is earnestly enjoined upon all associations who desire representation in the meeting, as is also recommended the discussion by local organizations of all questions of import to the plains cattle industry in general, to the end that delegates may come into the convention with carefully prepared measures and thoughtfully conceived plans, approved by their local associations at home and intended to promote the welfare of this great commercial enterprise.

While the section of the constitution above quoted provides for the presence of but duly accredited delegates, representing regularly formed and existing state, territorial and local associations, having membership therein, we earnestly hope that the attendance upon the meeting will not be restricted to such delegates alone, as the questions and measures which will be under discussion will be live issues, directly affecting the investments of every owner of range cattle.

The introduction by delegates, for purposes of debate and discussion, of topics covering matters of sectional or local interest only, we trust, will be carefully avoided, as far as this may be possible, in order that the limited time of the assemblage, drawn from remote [illegible] may be entirely devoted to the consideration of vital questions and measures affecting the interests of all, upon the disposition of which depends, in a large measure, the future prosperity or adversity of this vast food-supplying industry in which the millions of people of all stations and conditions are directly interested.

The condition of the plains cattle industry at this moment, hampered and weighed down as we know it to be by unnatural yokes of oppression in the nature of unjust discriminations and the successful operation against it of the schemes and intrigues of powerful combinations, as well as the possibility of still greater and more appalling calamities from the threatened invasion of our ranges by bovine diseases of a malignancy and fatality terrible to contemplate, made possible through the absence of governmental protection, imperatively demands of its dependents their immediate thoughtful consideration and the employment of their combined intelligence in the preparation of measures for its present relief and future protection.

The state of affairs herein hinted at, cannot be viewed with indifference by any cattlemen in the land; and it is to be hoped that every individual who has a dollar at stake in this vast enterprise has awaked to an appreciation of the insecurity of his investments so long as the present condition of things remains unchanged.

In view, therefore, of these facts, and the near approach of the time of the annual meeting, all associations entitled to membership in this association are earnestly requested to name delegates, at an early date to represent their respective interests in the coming deliberations.

The preparation of papers and essays upon topics of general interest to range stock men, to be read before the convention, are cordially solicited.

Proxies approved as genuine will be admitted.

R. G. HEAD, President.
J. C. LEARY, Secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE.

PREMONITION OF APPROACHING DEATH.

SOUTH JORDAN, Dec. 31, 1886.

Editor Deseret News:

It has become our painful duty to chronicle the death of John T. Jackson, son of George W. and Sarah E. Jackson, aged eleven years the 19th of last August.

He had been ailing for some time and last Sunday he seemed much worse; but simple remedies were administered by the parents and he seemed to recover. Yesterday morning he got up and dressed himself, feeling very well until about noon when he became suddenly prostrated. He vomited excessively, being unable to retain anything in the stomach, not even the water which he craved. He also complained of pain in the abdomen. He continued in this condition until half past eleven last night, when dissolution took place.

The parents are plunged into the deepest grief. The circumstances connected with his death are peculiar. Since George E. Beckstead was accidentally shot a few weeks ago he has been continuously asking his parents: "I wonder who will be the next to die?" A few days since he went to the cemetery and wished his father to find their burying lot. A few moments before his death he called his father to his side and said, "Kiss Johnny, for I am going to leave you." His father tried to dissuade him from such thoughts and asked him how he knew he was going to die. He replied, "Because the Lord called me."
