The Apaches of New Mexico.

WASHINGTON, October 19.—Indian Agent J. M. Shaw, in submitting his monthly report for Sept., for the Southern Apache Indian Agency in New Mexico, states that the Indians under his charge are making decided advances toward maintaining good order and obedience to law. In support of this statement, he recites the fact that some of his Indians went out on a stealing excursion, and returned to the reservation with a number of stolen horses. On a demand being made upon the chiefs for the return of the horses, five were brought in, and three that were sold outside of the reservation were pointed out by the Indians who had sold them. This compliance on the part of the Indians without intervention of the military is considered as proof of their obedience, and it is the first time that it has been accomplished. The agent says: "Our annuity goods are arriving in very good time, and the Indians are greatly pleased to know they will have their clothing before the cold weather sets in. Owing to excessive rains and floods, the contractor has failed to keep us supplied with flour, but issues of beef in lieu thereof have kept them comparatively satisfied. Owing to the same cause our buildings have been delayed, much to our annoyance, as well as pecuniary loss to the contractor. We can blame no one for the delay."—S. F. Chronicle.

Our Country Contemporaries.

Ogden Junction, Oct. 22—

General Sheridan and party left Ogden for the east this morning.

An insane man, some 45 years of age, arrived in Ogden on Wednesday, on his way from Nebraska to San Francisco. His insanity is peculiar. He travels on foot, and has become possessed of invaluable goods, such as old boots, shoes, hats, coats and pants, and such like trash, weighing probably 300 pounds, which being too heavy to carry at one load, he has divided into two packages, one of which he carries a mile or two, and deposits it on the road, and returning for the other finds rest and recreation in counting railroad ties.

Ogden Freeman, Oct. 22—

Yesterday morning our Prince of Gardeners, Mr. Jno. Chipp, called around bringing with him a sample of sweet potatoes, raised by him on the bench. Mr. Chipp counted 22 of good marketable size growing in one hill—the largest of which weighed one pound and eleven ounces. Mr. Chipp says his land is a gravelly loam, and not so good for a productive crop as sandy soil enriched by thoroughly rotted manure.

On Tuesday, near noon, a couple of stock men from Corinne, were in town looking for some clue which may lead to the discovery of stock stolen from the ranges north of Hampton's Bridge, about the first of the month. The loss was not discovered until recently, and the number taken is not exactly known. At least 20 or 25 head were taken. Eleven head of them were broke mules, branded with A C on left shoulder; one chesnut sorrel has a W on left shoulder. Three wild horses have a letter between a W and a V on the left thigh; three horses with a T on the left hip. There may be others with the same brands, but these are certainly missing.

Bishop Belknap, of Hooperville, was in this city on Tuesday. As items of the news of the settlement he states that irrigating facilities are being increased, so that next season five miles south will be added to the tillable land of the settlement.

Hooperville has a population of about 1,000 people, all living in their own houses and making their own living by the work of their own hands. This season they have raised at least 100,000 bushels of grain. All kinds of fruit thrive well. The bishop has raised peaches averaging nine inches in circumference to the treefull.

Utah County Times, Oct. 21—

On Tuesday S. S. Jones, Esq., and little son, accompanied by Bishop J. W. Loveless, were returning from the mouth of Provo cañon, where they had been on business, and were driving leisurely along just south of Jas. Smith's mill, when the horse became frightened at some children who suddenly appeared from behind some brush, and he turned so quickly that he overturned the buggy, breaking two wheels and otherwise demoralizing it, throwing out both gentlemen and the little boy, severely bruising Mr. Jones about the right hip and arm, bruising Mr. Loveless slightly on his right temple and right arm, and also bruising the little boy about the head and face. Mr. Jones was not able to attend to his business yesterday, but we learn he is some better, although badly shaken.
