Republican National Convention.

CINCINNATI, 16.—The following points of interest were omitted in the hurried and imperfect report of the convention sent to-day. Before the balloting commenced this morning the chairman of the convention announced a meeting to-night of the national executive committee of the Union League of America at the Burnet House, and read an invitation to visit the House of Refuge, which was received with shouts of laughter. During the call of the roll for the first time the gallery audience were so noisy, and so interrupted the proceedings by cheers, applause, and hisses, that the Chair rebuked them, especially in regard to the hisses, and intimated that unless order was preserved all balloting would stop. Minnesota cast ten votes for Blaine, which was received by loud applause from the gallery. A Mississippi delegate was absent, making the total vote 15, 3 for Bristow, 12 for Morton. Nebraska cast a solid vote for Blaine, which announcement was heralded with applause. Nevada, 3 for Bristow, 2 for Conkling, and 1 for Hayes, without eliciting any enthusiasm.

Blaine's men cheered when New Hampshire cast 7 for Blaine and but 3 for Bristow.

The greatest shouting proceeded from the Blaine supporters, when New Jersey announced 13 for Blaine and five for Hayes, the friends of the latter seemed somewhat downcast. The Conkling men shouted for gladness when New York went almost solid for Conkling. North Carolina gave Blaine 9, Conkling 7, Bristow 1, Morton 0, which rejoiced the adherents of the former two candidates. Ohio cast her 44 solid for Hayes, which caused cheers and hisses from the ill-mannered people in the lofts. When Pennsylvania gave 58 for Hartranft, the cheering came from another part, and the white hats were swung with enthusiasm. Morton's friends cheered South Carolina, which gave Morton 13, Bristow 1, Bristow stock was better on 10 from Tennessee, 4 from Texas and 8 from Vermont, and his friends were again jubilant.

The territories voted for Blaine, except Wyoming, which went for Bristow. The District of Columbia gave Morton two at the conclusion of the ballot. Cheers filled the hall when Senator Alcorn, of Mississippi wished to change the vote of his delegation.

The chair ruled he could not.

Alcorn represented that one delegate was absent when the States vote was called, he subsequently came in.

The Chair stated the case and quoted the fourth rule, that the ballot should stand unless numerical error had been made.

Alcorn argued in favor of his point as being in order.

The Chair asked if the error was a numerical one.

Alcorn said it was an error in announcing. The vote should have been, Morton 11, Bristow 3, Conkling 1.

The Chair then decided that such should be the vote, and Alcorn did not press the point of the right of the absent delegate to vote. The ballot was then announced and the Chair said there was no ballot.

The second ballot then commenced, and, as Alabama announced 16 for Blaine, his friends sent up a tremendous shout. On the announcement of Connecticut's vote a prolonged hiss materially interfered with the call, and the Chair again lectured the galleries for interfering with the business of the convention, especially as they were there only by sufferance, and announced that it might be necessary to clear the galleries; this produced considerable murmuring, but all disturbance was suppressed.

Ingersoll, in a subdued tone, announced the vote of Illinois, which showed a loss of three for Blaine. This caused much comment. The difficulty of hearing in the back part of the hall caused the Chair to station a man of stentorian lungs in the rear end of the hall, to announce ballots there also. The ballot proceeded, and the various candidates' friends cheered as their candidate received the favors of the delegations. When the vote of Pennsylvania was announced as 58 for Hartranft, J. Smith Suthey, of Westchester, rising to a point of order, stated that the vote was incorrect. Himself and colleague of the sixth district wished to cast their votes for Jas. G. Blaine. Their chairman had refused to report to the convention to that effect. He demanded that these two votes be recorded for Blaine, as well as two others in the delegation. This caused an excitement, and objections were raised.

Cessna, of Pennsylvania, called attention to rule six, but the chair ruled that it was the privilege of every member of the Convention to vote individually according to his sentiments, which caused confused cheers.

McCormack, of Pennsylvania, appealed from the decision of the chair, and attempted to explain his position, but the excitement in the hall, and especially around the Pennsylvania delegation was so great that the chair did not appear to see him as he rose, and thereupon put the question, "Whether the chair should be sustained?"

The Convention then by a large majority sustained the chair.

The chair then announced that the four Pennsylvania votes were to be recorded for Blaine.

The Ballots.

The second ballot stands thus—Blaine 285, Morton 120, Bristow 114, Conkling 83, Hayes 64, Hartranft 68, Wheeler 3, Washburne 1.

The Chair then announced the third ballot. This was quickly and comparatively quietly taken, and with a slight correction the Chair announced that the vote stood Blaine 292, Bristow 121, Morton 113, the Conkling vote was omitted, Hartranft 68, Hayes 67, Wheeler 2, Washburne 1.

The fourth ballot was then taken and the Chair announced it as follows—Blaine 292, Bristow 125 (great applause), Morton 108, Conkling 84, Hartranft 71, Hays 68, Washburne 3, Wheeler 2.

On the 5th ballot, when Michigan was called, Governor Baldwin said, "There is a man who has beaten three democratic aspirants for the presidency, and since he is before us as a candidate, Michigan ought to give him her whole vote to lay out the coming democratic candidate for the presidency. She gives twenty-two votes for Rutherford B. Hayes."

This was followed by a season of frantic enthusiasm, in which the New Yorkers took a prominent part, swinging ther hats with great enthusiasm. The Maine men looked dubious and Hale's face fell. The excitement caused by this was dampened by the Blaine gain in Missouri, which came soon after. It was stimulated, however, by the Hayes gain in North Carolina.

Complaint was made that non-delegates were on the floor, and an order was given to eject them. The Chair then announced the ballot—Blaine 286, Bristow 114, Hayes 104 (applause), Morton 95, Conkling 82, Hartranft 69, Washburne 3, Wheeler 2.

On the sixth ballot, when Alabama was called she did not respond, and a motion was made for the delegations to retire and consult for an hour. The motion was ruled out of order. North Carolina, which had given Blaine nothing, now gave him fourteen, and this was the signal for an outbreak. Gains in South Carolina were similarly greeted; Bristow's friends likewise applauded.

The chair announced the sixth vote—Blaine 308, Bristow 111, Conkling 81, Hayes 111, Morton 85, Hartranft 59, Washburn 4, Wheeler 2.

A delegate again moved for a recess, but the roll call having been commenced, he was out of order.

The New York delegation, by permission, withdrew amid some confusion. The New York delegation returned just after Colorado had been called, and McCormick, mounting the platform amid great expectation, said, "A very unpleasant duty is now imposed upon me, as chairman of the Indiana delegation, in withdrawing from the further consideration of this convention the name of the great statesman. I express my own deep regret, as well as that of every delegate from Indiana, and every alternate, and every citizen of Indiana who belongs to the republican party (cheers), when I say he stands in the Senate of the United States the peer of the noblest and the best. I utter a truth that will not be disputed by any republican in the United States of America. (Cheers.) But we feel that the time has come for us not to ask any longer that our friends shall stand by us. We thank them for the noble support that they have given us in this convention and in withdrawing his name Indiana casts 25 votes for Rutherford B. Hayes."

The cheering and applause and yells which followed this announcement lasted for fully ten minutes. The galleries were wild with excitement, gentlemen jumping up on the seats and waving their hats and canes in the air, while the ladies used their handkerchiefs to show their predelictions. After adding, "and five votes for Benj. H. Bristow," Mr. Cumback returned to his delegation amid deafening cheers. Cheers come from every part of the hall.

When Kentucky was called, General Harlan stepped up to the platform. When the applause subsided, he said, "Mr. President and gentlemen of the convention—The representatives of the State of Kentucky feel deeply grateful for the very cordial support which our distinguished fellow citizen, Col. Bristow, has received from delegates of the various States, both north and south. We feel especially grateful to those gallant men of Massachusetts and Vermont and other States of New England, which, when it was circulated from one end of this land to the other, that Benj. H. Bristow was not to be President because he was born and raised in the south, Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut, have done him and us the honor to say that Bristow was true to the Republican party. (Applause). Without detaining you any longer, I have come upon this stage for the purpose of withdrawing the name of Benj. H. Bristow, and casting the entire vote of Kentucky for R. B. Hayes.

The cheering which followed this unlooked for announcement was almost deafening. It came from all parts of the hall, with the accompaniments of hat waving, stamping and hand clapping. It was one of the most enthusiastic moments of the convention.

Mr. Cumback then cast the other five votes from Indiana for R. B. Hayes. (Cheers for several minutes.)

Col. Ingersoll rose to a point of order, but the excitement was so great he could not be heard. The scene at this point was almost indescribable. Numbers of the delegates mounted their seats and waving their hats and canes yelled "Hayes!" The crowd in the galleries was equally demonstrative. The noise continued for about five minutes, during which time Col. Ingersoll maintained his position on the floor to raise an point of order, that the vote of Indiana could not be changed.

Mr. Edick, of New Jersey—I raised a similar question some time ago, and it was ruled out of order.

He insisted on the ruling, and the chair allowed Col. Ingersoll to speak. He made a point that it was out of order to change votes during the roll call.

The Chair decided the change could not be made. (Great confusion.)

The change of Mississippi provoked another outburst.

New York cast 61 for R. B. Hayes and 9 for Blaine (furious cheers).

Montana changed her two to Hayes.

As soon as the roll call was announced, the victorious side abandoned themselves to shouts of triumph. The vote is—total 756, necessary to choice 379, Hayes 384 (furious and continued applause, drowned by the bands of music), Blaine 351, Bristow 21.

The chairman said—Rutherford B. Hayes, of Ohio, having received a majority of all the votes cast, was declared the nominee of this convention for the office of President of the United States. It is moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and on that Mr. Frye, of Maine, has the floor.

Frye of Maine—Mr. President, I know that this immense and enthusiastic convention will pardon me if I say just one word of kindness and thanks to the glorious supporters that our candidate, Mr. Blaine, has had here. No words of mine can express the thanks which Maine gives to you men who have stood by her as you have to-day. God bless you forever and ever. We recognize the fact that the convention in its wisdom has selected the Hon. Mr. Hayes as the standard bearer in this next great contest for liberty, for justice, for humanity, and for civilization, and the State of Maine accepts and endorses fully and completely and rejoices in the nomination of Mr. Hayes. Our gallant chieftain, J. G. Blaine, in September next, shall take the field in the State of Maine for the man you have selected, and we will sweep that State for Hayes by twenty thousand majority, and then we will go forward under the lead of Blaine into the old commonwealth of Massachusetts and we will sweep her with their help by 60,000 majority. I will close by seconding the motion that the nomination of Hayes be made unanimous. (Deafening cheers.)

The Chair—The question is, shall the motion be agreed to?

It was agreed to without a dissenting voice.

The Chair—It is unanimously agreed to. (Great cheering.)

On motion a committee was appointed to inform Hayes of his unanimous nomination. Carried.

Wheeler Nominated for Vice President.

The motion was made to proceed to the nomination of a Vice-President.

Judge Poland nominated Wm. A. Wheeler. Governor Hawley nominated Marshall Jewell.

Judge Hoar seconded Wheeler's nomination.

Platt, of New York, in behalf of a portion of the delegation, nominated Gov. Woodford.

Cumback seconded this.

Harlan, in behalf of Kentucky, nominated Hawley, of Connecticut.

Seldon, of Mississippi, also seconded the nomination of Woodford.

Another delegate presented Frelinghuysen.

A delegate from Iowa seconded Wheeler's nomination.

Other nominations were made and those already mentioned were seconded.

Balloting began. Woodford, during the balloting, appeared on the platform and surrendered his claim in favor of Wheeler in a graceful speech.

When Tennessee had been reached, Wheeler received over 300 votes, and it was apparent that he was nominated. Thereupon Kellog withdrew the name of Jewell, and moved that the nomination of Wheeler be unanimous.

The convention then agreed to suspend the roll call and made Wheeler's nomination unanimous.

On motion of Howard, of Michigan, a committee of one from each State was appointed on the nominees of the Convention and to solicit their acceptance on the platform.

The following telegram was then read—

"To the Hon. Eugene Hale.

"I hope that you will find it convenient to stop at Columbus and bear my congratulations and sincere personal respects and regards to Governor Hayes.

(Signed) "JAS. G. BLAINE."

"Washington, D.C." (Cheers.)

The following resolution was, on motion, added to the platform—

"Resolved, That we present as candidate for President and Vice-President of the United States two distinguished statesmen, of eminent ability and character, and conspicuously fitted for those two high offices, and we confidently appeal to the American people to intrust the administration of their public affairs to Rutherford B. Hayes and Wm. A. Wheeler."

Mr. Lewis West, of Va., read a resolution of thanks to the president of the convention; adopted.

Other complimentary resolutions were passed, and the convention adjourned sine die.

Ratification Meeting.

A grand ratification meeting was held to-night at Pike's Opera House. The committee of the Bristow club, of this city, waited upon the Hayes committee, and invited them to take possession of the Opera House. The large hall was filled to its utmost capacity, and all the speeches made were received with the utmost enthusiasm.

The meeting was called to order by John Carlisle, who introduced Gen. Hawley, of Connecticut, who spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen—Being just at your door when this call came, I could not plead, in justification for non-attendance, the extreme weariness we certainly all feel. You are aware of our arduous labors of the last three days, especially those of us who were on committees, some of which sat up all night to complete reports, and now we are quite ready to rest, and to rest sweetly and pleasantly, because I can say that, on the whole, we are exceedingly well satisfied with the work we have done. (Cheers). We don't deny that we suffered no little anxiety, we were conscious that this was the turning point in the history of the republican party. I say no more to you than I said frankly in the convention; it was worth our while to shut our eyes to the fact that there existed throughout the country not a little dissatisfaction, but the great body of the staunch, faithful, patriotic, indomitable republican party stood by its colors. But there were many, with more or less dissatisfaction, who had left us. Many more were in an unsatisfied condition. Of course when a party has been in power for sixteen years it has committed more or less blunders; inevitably it has made errors in appointments and in all the details of administration. It has made mistakes in legislation. The wisest men could hardly have failed to do this. We never shall find a party or an administration that will conduct the affairs of this Government in a perfectly satisfactory manner, but many of us felt that it might have been much better than it was. Whatever the reason, whatever the philosophy, and I don't stop now to point out these faults, that would be unnecessary and would certainly be an ungrateful task. The fact was that they expected, and it is an excellent sign, not one to be lamented, that there prevailed throught the country an intense longing to lift up party politics to a higher plane—that possibly to end those errors, to make all possible apology, if your choice is to call it so, to the American people for our short-comings, by giving them new pledges, and the strongest in our power for a better future. I congratulate you, and the party in general, upon the platforms and the candidates. I feel now, to-night, and it seems to me that I can not be wrong, I feel the assurance of an overwhelming victory next November. (Applause.) We have announced sound doctrines upon the leading questions before the country. I think we have especially done so in the matter of finance. Those of us out of the State who do not know Mr. Hayes well, personally will find, upon more particularly and close enquiry, that they can gladly support him. They will begin from this hour all over the land to ask what sort of a man is Rutherford B. Hayes, and they will learn that he is a man of sound judgment, of purity, of unquestionable integrity, self-respect and manliness, and an admirable representative of the best type of American citizens. (Cheers.) Of Mr. Wheeler, I can speak from a close, personal knowledge. He is a man of much more than ordinary force of character, resolute, broad-jawed, strong-willed, frank, fearless, direct, courageous man. There is not a member of Congress, and never has been, of either party, who would not, upon the very first question, answer promptly that he knew William A. Wheeler to be an honest man, a respected man. Looking the whole field over, gentlemen, I offer you my sincere congratulations, and join with you in hoping for and predicting a glorious triumph next fall. (Loud cheers.)
