EDITORIAL NOTES.

The agitation of the labor question in the New York Assembly, growing out of the introduction of bills to limit the hours of a day's work, has brot out the fact that a statute fixing a day's labor at eight hours has stood on the law was once before passed, but it was a dead letter from the start, and was soon repealed. WHY NOT SAY THE "MORMONS" DID IT?

THE investigation into charges preferred against Chief Justice Axtell, of New Mexico, do not seem to proceed with any greater liveliness than the inquiry into the alleged crookedness of Eli H.

Murrny's doings as Marshal of Kentucky. There is one merit in the Azthing which should work as an apology or expiation for his alleged misdeeds. But this has been the chief excuse offered for the Governor of Utah. He quiry into his acts while occupying a previous official position should not be permitted. And the absurd and untruthful claim that the "Mormons" instituted the pending inquiry has no proper bearing upon its merits. The question to be decided is not who started the investigation, but are the charges true? This armiles to the decided while the defendant was charges true? This applies to the Axtell as well as to the Murray case, and there is just as much foundation for the story that the "Mormons" sprung the action of a regularly appointed Committee of the House of Representatives in one instance as in the other. It shows the inherent weakness of the Ogden was foraged over for chickens and other delicacies wherewith to regale the coming guests, and all hands and the coming guests, and all hands and the cooks were kept busy in the work. Supper was to be ready at half past five o'clock. But at four o'clock Mr. Beardsley received a telegram that the ling through some underbrush, trying capital. The answer to this by conservative people has been, "This is impossible; no one in the United States can be proscribed on account of religious faith; it is only the violation of law that can be lawfully punished." ...

It appears that our opinion is to be verified. The bill introduced — not originated—by Mr. Poland, the stepfather of the law now in force in Utah which bears his name, aims at this very thing.
