

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

DESERET NEWS PUBLISHING COMPANY, LEADERS.

Monday. October 1, 1894.

The LEADER Evening News published every Friday except at certain seasons. Price 25 cents. Postage paid.

Price 25 cents.

The LEADER DESK-WRITER News with news from all parts of the world. Price 25 cents.

The LEADER WEEKLY News magazine.

Price 25 cents.

Advertisers changing their present address should give notice at least one week before.

The NEWS is at the address below.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., Oct. 1, 1894.

City subscribers will kindly notify J. T. Hines, publisher, of any change in the address of their news.

A conference would be arranged by

TELEGRAMS.

CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The Sixty-eighth Annual Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will convene in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, at 10 o'clock on Friday morning, October 18, 1894.

The officers and members of the Church generally are cordially invited to attend the meetings of the Conference.

WILFRED WOODBURY,
George Q. Cannon,
Joseph F. Smith,

First Presidency.

SPECIAL CONFERENCE APPOINTMENTS:

Thursday, October 18—Relief Society conference, Assembly Hall, 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Friday, 19—German meeting, Assembly Hall, from 8 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Saturday, 20—General Priesthood meeting, Tabernacle, 7 p.m.

Sunday, 21—Tabernacle Choir concert, 8 p.m.

Sunday, 22—Scandinavian meeting, Assembly Hall, from 8 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Sunday, 23—Sunday School Union, Tabernacle, 7 p.m.

OPENING OF THE FAIR.

The Territorial Fair of 1894 will be opened tomorrow (October 2). That it will be the most comprehensive exhibition of the kind yet held in Utah is definitely settled by the number and class of entries made, and the variety and extent of the displays now ready. The various fairs in arrangement for public inspection. The ability, energy and care which have been directed to the enterprise by President Winter and his brother official in the D. A. and M. Society, ever since a Fair was decided upon for this year, have been such as to entitle them to the warmest praise of the public. A goodly share of commendation also belongs to the public spirited exhibitors, who have nobly seconded the official efforts to give to the large audience of people that will be in the city this week opportunity to view the great variety and choicest samples of Utah's products.

In the matter of administration, due consideration has been given to the present needs and condition of the public, and the entrance fees have been reduced to the lowest possible figure consistent with expenses which have been absolutely necessary in so great an undertaking. The popular prices agreed upon are such as should secure a vast attendance, for they are merely nominal in comparison with the sentimental value to old and young of a visit to such an exhibition. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the enthusiasm of the people will take such shape in regard to the Fair as will make them anxious to give up the developing resources of our Territory, the handiwork of her artisans, the fruits of her farms, gardens and orchards, and the produce of the skill of her sons and daughters in the school, the home, the factory, shop, office and mines, and wherever human labor and thrift find room for intelligent exercise and operation.

Utah has the greatest variety of resources of any state or territory in the Union—the only state in which both cotton and barley can be grown successfully," as the saying goes. This suggestion alone indicates how comprehensive may be the exhibit at our Territorial Fair; and with such a broad field, from which to draw for exhibition, it may be understood how extended is the opportunity for work in the various lines of human industry. To crown all with success in this practical world, however, there is needed the element of public appreciation, which on his opinion should be manifested without reserve toward the faithful labors of those who have best these energies for the successful inauguration of the Fair of 1894. Let the people with whom we work share their approval and appreciation of this notable expedition in behalf of Utah.

ANOTHER CLOUD IN EUROPE.

According to all accounts Germany has a problem on its hands, the solution of which may yet involve European powers in an embroilment of serious character. The Germans say that the movement for the re-establishment of Poland as an independent kingdom has now gathered strength enough to demand close attention. Ever since the partition of that unfortunate kingdom between its mighty neighbors, the hope of independence and reunion has not faded entirely from the minds of its patriotic. Thus and again revolutions movements have been started, only to end in disaster and to land the leaders thereof in exile or in the terrible dungeons of Siberia.

Hannover's policy, against the millions of Poles who were incorporated in the German empire was formed on the Russian pattern. Her despotic measures of suppression as a means of crushing the feeling of nationalism that still remains, but it has proven that this feeling, although stifled and smothered in every way, could not be extirpated. The present chancery, Capital, toward a compromise of his interests, promises, and adopts a conciliatory policy toward the Poles in Posen, West Prussia and Upper Silesia. He reasons that the people, if accorded certain privileges, and given the liberty enjoyed by other German subjects, would, in time be reconciled to their fate and accept their present status as inevitable. It now seems that this policy, instead of diminishing the distance between the conquered race and the victor, has encouraged the former to demand what they consider their rights with stronger and unyielding than ever, and that another Polish revolution is among the possibilities of a near future. And this possibility is all the more likely because if Germany adopts a reactionary policy, depriving the emasculated Poles of the privileges already granted, much step would be almost taken to lead in open hostilities.

Prussia was a great power in Europe with well developed resources and possessing sympathy every family for a long existence as an independent nation. But it became torn up in factious and internal dissensions till its death. With unity of purpose the people would in this day have held its place among the great powers of the Old World, but with water was among the nation, with a nation existing only for its own aggrandizement or the expense of the hating and hating classes. Its doom was sealed and its destruction came speedily.

A Polish revolution at the present time would be a struggle for liberty and freedom by Republic as principle. Thousands would flock to the Polish banners, in case there were become popular enough to attract them. The sympathy of millions in Europe would be given freely to their arms. In this respect the movement would be inaugurated under conditions different from those existing formerly. The outcome might be different. Hence gained independence after savage struggles with an opposing power. The influence of Europe might possibly secure for Poland what is gained for the Hellenic race, provided the weaknesses of the combatants were equally well demonstrated. When a people strong in its unity and patriotism resolves to fight for freedom and gain it or die in the attempt, victory is almost sure to follow.

THEIR HEAVY BURDEN.

The comparatively small number of horses with which the Japanese forces now in Corea have been supplied has been referred to as an impediment to the army's progress, even if there were no adequate force to resist the advance.

Even the number of cavalry is ridiculously small, from the military point of view, in this country. Yet when the condition of the country through which the Japanese are making their way toward the Chinese capital is considered, there may not be so much doubt as to the wisdom of the Japanese method of procedure.

For scouting and messenger service and for quick work in any opportunity that may be offered on open ground the cavalry is regarded as sufficient, since a large body of this arm of the service could not be made available in a campaign where long marches are necessary.

The roads throughout Corea are little more than Indian trails. They wind through the dense masses of vegetation, and if any soldier has been met with in the street route, the path has been made around it, rather than to move the obstruction.

The natives never spend time or energy in fixing the roads, so that horses and wagons or carts may be impossible. It is difficult enough to get horses along singly.

To meet their wants for the transportation of stores and ammunition, the Japanese have engaged vast numbers of the native coolies. A detachment of 1,000 coolies will have as attendants about 1,000 coolies, who fill the places of horses or other beasts of burden, and do the work assigned much more effectively than it could be performed by animals under the same circumstances. While the Japanese are ready to move, the troops are placed in marching order, the gang of coolies take up the luggage which is assigned to them, and in a few minutes from the going of the command headway the men will be moving on the move.

This may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden." At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have

the advantage of the command headway, the men will be moving on the move.

Thus it may be seen that the nature of the country, traveled over, is more favorable to men than animals as "beasts of burden."

At this means the mistake of troops always in light marching order, and, as far as possible to the possibility, now, the Japanese have