A type of food" crank" which is in no sreat danger of increasing rapidly be-lieves that food is injured and made unfit for human consumption when it is cooked. Of course, such contention is not borne out by the facts, but that some people do preserve their health on an unceoked diet is not difficult to believe. Two adherents of the theory have recently published a book, nearly two-thirds of which is devoted to an exposition of the idea, and the remain-ing pages to receipts. Most of them would give the average person dyspep-sia. Sun-cooked corn, for example, which is corn dried corn, for example, which is corn dried in the sun, soaked over night in warm water, and mixed with cold milk; raw carrots and tur-nips cut up together and served on lettuce leaves with French dressing, raw asparagus and sliced tomato salad; and raw bootenets to be and the salad; raw beefsteak chopped fine and and mixed with eggs, onions, and green peppers. It is impossible to judge with exactness just what demand there will be for a certain kind of goods. Even at this early day it is evident that the stock of new dress goods is heavy. Rather than wait until summer before reducing the price of the remainder of the stock, it has been decided that a vigorous cut shall be made right now while the demand is still strong. The reductions, therefore, are fully as sweeping as though the sale came later.

The stock is in admirable condition. It has not been picked and re-picked as is the case at the end of a season. It is a beautiful stock, brand new, of excellent selection, and tempting weaves and patterns.

Never has the dress goods section enjoyed such splendid buiness-due to reasonable prices originally; due to superior stock; due to a magnificent variety of weaves. It is this stock of distinctive fabrics which is lowered to astonishing prices-bargain prices. Sales of stupendous force such as characterize this occur but seldom. But it is on the reputation of such momentous events that this store has won its way into the good graces of the people. Every advertised price is a statement of fact-a sale of reliability -as sale to make friends-unusual reductions from already reasonable prices.
