CLUB CHAT.

At the meeting of the genealogical section of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers this week, Mrs. Susan Y. Gates, the society's president, took for her topic, "Ancient Jewish Tabernacles and Temples," and gave an interesting talk, describing the tabernacle erected during the wandering of Israel in the wilderness. She said that temple work, which was supposed to be peculiar to the L. D. S. church was in reality as old as mortal existence; believed that Adam and Eve knew of it, and that Moses, Aaron, Abraham and all the ancient patriarchs performed temple rites known to God's chosen people through all the ages. She described the first place of worship which was probably tents; then the tabernacle, whose pattern was given to Moses on the mount, showing the uses of the different forms of the interior, the famous ark of the covenant, etc. Mrs. Gates did not have time to finish her lecture on this subject, and will do so at some future time. It is planned to try to secure some outside speaker to bring out the important points of genealogy, the recent lectures on "A Salvation for the Dead" having demonstrated the deep interest taken in this and kindred subjects.

Yesterday the meeting of the Ladies' Literary club was in charge of Prof. and Mrs. Wetzel, the former giving a lecture on music as it is conducted in the public schools and illustrating with classes of children, while Mrs. Wetzel ably aided with the topic.

HANDSOME BLACK LACE EVENING WRAP.

The beauty of the black lace evening wrap is charmingly exemplified in this garment of black Venable. The lines are such that it might be classed as a wrap, but it is not for the fact that the sides, bound with black tulle, are slightly tucked under the arms to form a shaglike sleeve. Handsome cord buttons effect a pretty finish about the neck and depend from this point well below the waistline in the back and almost to the skirt hem in the front.
