Laying of Corner Stone of Masonic Temple Witnessed by Thousands.

IMPRESSIVE

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL ROMANCE

Mrs. H. R. Moore Brutally Assaulted On Street-Five Points School Annex Contract Awarded.

Ogden, Utab, June 12 .- The laying of the corner stone of the Masonic temple to be built on Washington avenue between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets, which took place yesterday afternoon was witness. ed by thousands of people. The services were impressive and beautiful. There were present besides the local Masons the members of the Masonio order from Salt Lake City, with the Port Douglas band, and many friends, also Gov. John C. Cutler and his staff in uniform. The distinguished visitors and lodge arrived in Ogden shortly after 3 o'clock from the south. They were met at the depot by the members of the met at the depot by the members of the Ogden Masonio lodges, olty and coun-ty officials, with Foster's Military band. They formed in line, headed by a pla-toon of police, and the band and march-ed eastward on Twenty-fifth street, north on Washington avenue to Twen-iy third street, countermarched on Washington avenue to the Masonia building site, where seats had been ar-ranged for several hundred and they were occupied by distinguished citizens and the members of the order. On the platform, which was decorated with the stars and stripes, sat the governor and his staff, the officers of the grand lodge, and ladles. odge, and ladies, Judge A. R. Heywood, in a few words introduced as master of ceremo-school and desired her release, but as the parole was made to Bishop Cum-mings, she could not be released until he arrived, which it is expected will be today, and then the marriage will take place. Amelia has been a good girl at the school and it is believed will make a good wife, and with their undying love they should be happy ever after. It is understood the objections of Miss Robinson's parents to the mar-riage was because Mr. Twes is 17 years older than the bride to be, he being 35 years of age and the girl has only just turned 18. They will make their home at Mill Creek, where Mr. Twes is an industrious and prosperous barber. words introduced as master of ceremo-nies Grand Master C. S. Varian of Salt Lake City, who briefly expressed his appreciation of the honor bestowed up-on him. Prayer was pronounced by Grand Chapiain Rev. Mr. Hansen, Right Worshipful Grand Treasurer Christopher Diehl then read the conbarber.

The board of education at a special meeting hold Saturday evening opened bids for the building of the addition to the Five Points school. Only two bids were received within the time limit, they were from J. T. Newton and G. A. Whitmeyer. The bid of Mr. Newton being the smallest, for $2,527, was ac-cepted. The work will be commenced at once. at ones.

This is the second time however that Mrs. Moore has been assaulted. Just weeks ago last night as she was passing the alley west of the Journal office leading back of Boyles' a man stepped back of her and struck her a severe blow on the head knocking her down. Detective Pender and Capt. Brown, who are working on the case last evening had another talk with Mrs. Moore and have come to the con-clusion that her assailant is goine one who desires to do her some bodily harm, but great mystery surrounds the case, schools of the stake was discussed, and preliminary steps taken to follow out the suggestions of the union board in this regard. The usual instructions in lessons for the coming month were given in the various departments.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL ROMANCE. Today a romance covering more than three years in which a girl inmate of the State industrial school and a young man from Mill Creek, near Salt Lake, are the principals, will culminate in their marriage. Amelia Robertson is the young lady and Albert Tweel is the young man in the case. Three years ago these young people, it is stated, were lovers in southern Utah. There was an objection to their courtship and prospective marriage on the part of the girl's parents. The young girl was sent to the State In-dustrial school, in the hope that their love would grow cold, but instead it increased, as the old adage has it. "Absence makes the heart grow fond-er," which proved true in this case, for instead of the young man, who bears an excellent reputation, letting his affections center on some other young lady, he became more deter-mined to wed the love of his youth, and the girl being of the some mind they were one in thought, and cor-responded during the young lady's confinement at the school. The other week Amelia, with some of the other girls escaped from the school and it is understood saw her lover. She having become of age they determined to wed INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL ROMANCE.

Logan, Cache Co., June 11 .- The baseball game yesterday evening be-tween the Commercial Travelers and the Cache Commercial Traverse and the Cache Commercials was an evenly contested and very interesting game. Fully 6,000 people were in attendance and the enthusiasm on both sides ran high, each cheering lustily when their side made a run or scored a point. The Cache team proved a little too much for their opponents and won out on a score of 6 to 2. But in this connection he fails to state that the ballots in this pouch were not counted at all, the court helding that because of its condition it fully as available information will per-mit, and we are satisfied that said al-leged frauds have been committed.' and then further on he declares. 'We are unable to get a scintilla of evidence that would indicate that the judges of declare in any of the predicate tam. that would indicate that the judges of election in any of the precincts tam-pered with the ballots.' He spends con-siderable time in diverting attention from the only suspicious circumstance that developed during the re-count of the ballots by the court while the con-test involving the judgeship was being this particular pouch had been gone in-to and the ballots recounted, any dis-crepancies would have appeared? tried, by calling attention to slight dis-crepancies between alleged statements made by some of the election judges in made by some of the election judges in two voting districts as to doubtful bal-lots having been counted for the con-iostee and the actual condition found by the court upon the recount, arriving at the conclusion that this was sufficient proof that fraud had been committed after the ballots had been deposited with the county cierk and completely exonerating the judges of election of any wrong doing. He also says, 'in precinct No. 3 in Manti, Mr. Ericksen gained 21 votes on the recount: in pre-cinct No. 1, Mt. Pleasant, Mr. Living-ston gained 14 votes on the recount, putting these two discrepancies on the same common ground and giving out "Again the report says: "The judges of election in all the precincts say that they have no reason to suspect any one or more of their number, from anything that was said or done during the counting of the ballots or at any time, of the tampering in any way with the ballots and we are unable to get a scintilla of evidence that would indicate that the judges of election in any of the said precincts tampered with the bal-lots. We have been unable to get any lots.' 'We have been unable to get any evidence whatever up to date that points to the guilt of any particular person or persons;' and then in the next sentence he says he has requested the judge to call a grand jury to fully in-vestigate the matter. Investigate what pray? When the officers whose duty it is to ferret out crime and produce evi-dence before the grand jury may they are unable to get any evidence what-ever that points to the guilt of any putting these two discrepancies on the same common ground and giving out the impression that if fraud was perpe-trated in one of these voting districts the same must be true of the other. Now, what are the facts relative to these last two named districts? The official returns of the election judges of district No. 1, Mt. Pleasait, give Mr. Livingston 69 votes, and Mr. Erickson 180 votes. Upon the recount Mr. Liv-ingston was given 70 votes, a gain of 1, whilst Mr. Erickson received 167 votes, with 13 ballots that were laid one side because of some technical defect in ever that points to the guilt of any particular person or persons, and not a scinetilla of evidence that would indicate that the judges of election in any of the precincts tampered with the ballots? Under the law it requires more positive evidence to warrant a grand jury in presenting an indictment against a person than would be necesbecause of some technical defect in marking under a legal construction, but which had been intended for Mr. Erickmarking under a legal construction, but which had been intended for Mr. Erick-sen and so counted by the judges of election, and they were never part d on by the court; whilst in the Third ans-triet of Marti, the judges of election by their official returns gave Mr. Liv-ingston 146 and Mr. Ericksen 91 votes, and when this district was recounted by the court Mr. Livingston was found to have 132 and Mr. Ericksen 98, mak-ing a difference of 21 between the re-turns made by the judges of election and the recount made by the court. Out of these 21 votes but two were challenged ballots; Mr. Livingston hav-ing been credited with 12 votes never cast at all and the other 7 being votes cast for Mr. Ericksen and not counted for him by the judges of election. From this it will be seen that the county at-torney is unable (or unwilling) to dis-criminate between a challenged ballot and no vote at all, or one cast but not counted; or, in other words, he regards a challenged vote. holding that because of its condition it was incompetent to impeach the returns made by the election judges. The clerk's explanation was entirely satisfactory, and the imputation that that pouch had been tampered with by officers at the court house is wholly unwarranted by any disclosures made upon the recount of the ballots. And who can say, if this negligular wouch had been say, if grand jury can indict only when all the evidence before them taken together, if evidence before them taken together, if unexplained or uncontradicted would, in their judgment, warrant a conviction by a trial jury, whilst a committing magistrate can order a defendant held to answer to the district court when it appears to him from examination that a public offense has been committed, and that there is sufficient cause to be-lieve the defendant guilty thereof. Now, if the sheriff and the county at-torney have been unable to get evi-dence sufficient to warrant bringing an action before a magistrate what good would it do to call a grand jury, in-volving great expense to the state when the officers, whose duty it is to furnish evidence for the jury to con-sider, say they have no evidence? When this court calls a grand jury in this class of crimes it will be upon the assurance that the prosecuting officers are unable or unwilling, to cope with the situation, and when they are in good faith desirous of indicting some person or persons suspected of crime, but not when the court is convinced-there is an attempt to shield suspected wrongdoors and to impungn the acts of hands. he admitted that the had never before heard that that distinction existed, and yet he claims to have made an investi-sation of the alleged frauds. "Another remarkable finding in this been counted by the election judges for the contestes, Mr. Ericksen, and that these dubie ballots were of found in the second to make a fair and im-partial investigations the report would have said that duble ballots were found upon the recount. In a majority of the voting districts and as neurly as could be ascertained they had been counted for helter candidate, as the two provides; that the evident inten-tion of the voters in a great majority of instances was to vote for the contest tee, and that the numerous reports of double ballots being counted for Mr. Livingston failed to show up at the re-tents of a small copper box, which he deposited in the corner stone. The box contained the names of the grand lodge officers, newspapers and other data, that would in ages to come be of use should the elements ever destroy the building. This was followed by the laysing of the massive corner stone under immediate direction of Grand Mas-Varian. While the stone was being lowered to its proper position by Con-tractor Mitchell and his men, the Fort Douglas band discoursed sweet strains of music. When the stone was lowered Grand Officers Badcon and Giffith squared and leveled the same and pro-nounced it well done. Grand honors were then sounded once, then twice
