Furthermore, the public is beginning to realize the meaning of Britt's attitude. There is a fast growing opinion that he is afraid to fight Nelson again. If not, lat him force Coffroth to make the match with Nelson and give the public the show with Nelson and give the public the show with Nelson and give the public the show with vants. If he fails to do this the public will very properly set it down as a case of cold feet. It is obvious what Coffroth's motive is. He is paying Britt to keep oth-er promoters from giving the public the match it wants, and he is trying to hold Nelson's percentage down in order to keep as much as he can for himself. If Britt dares to fight Nelson again the solution of the situation is easy. The talk of a fight with White is simply a hit of 'four-flushing,'' for which the public will not stand. As has been stated, there is no reason for doubt that this arrangement does ex-ist. One thing more certain than that, however, is that this already on the thermal only thing standing in the way of the match, and if it were adjusted so that Nelson would be given even terms with Britt, article's could be signed and all would go merry as a marriage bell. That's up to Britt and Coffroth. But there is another snag in the way of the match. Britt evidently has his heart set on meeting White. He prefers White to Nelson as his next opponent. Ask him about it and he will tell you that "an international battle is inevita-ble," or some other such blast from the furnace-room. That's all very well, but Britt has repeatedly said from the ring that he was ready to fight anybody whom the public wanted him to fight. Unless he is both blind and deaf. Britt must know that the public wants him to fight. Nelson, not some time in the dim and distant future, but in his next fight and as early as possible. The public doesn't would most likely come nearer to $40.000. That is an indication of the public wants Britt and Nelson. The first-named match would nost likely come nearer to $40.000. That is an indication of the public pulse. Britt's plan—as it appears to a man up a tall redwood—is to fight White next month, getting a little easy money in that way, and then. If he chances to feel in the humor, to fight Nelson—at Britt's terms, the Native Son will doubtless take a trip east and perhaps to Europe, fur-ther postponing a match with Nelson. New Orleans. New Orleans, March 21.-There was a bad mix-up just after the start in the last race at the fair grounds today, and as a result Jockey Aubuchon is in the hospital tonight with a broken collarbone. A moment after they broke Mohograph stumbled and fell, unseating Aubuchon. Jack Martin, on Jim Hale, pulled up to avoid the prostrate horse and boy, but Irby Bennett, following closely, fell on the trap and went down with Jockey Dominick, who, however, escaped injury. May 20th-Football Matters. The athletic council of the University held a meeting yesterday afternoon for the purpose of deciding upon dates for the spring track and field meets and the football games for next season, but the only matter definitely decided upon is the state track meet which will take place on May 20. The trouble about the spring contests is with reference to a date with Colorado, and it is not known yet wheth-er the Colorado team will take Utah thero or not. There is a chance, however, that Utah will go to Montana and compate for the Rocky Mountain championship. The football schedule will not be com-pleted until Stanford is heard from.
