state university. Articles Amended—The Halloran-Judge company of Sait Lake which is in corporated under the law of the territory of Arizona filed an amendment to its articles of incorporation this morning in the secretary of state's office, changing the name. It is now known as the Halloran-Judge Loan & Trust company. A meeting of the directors and officers of the company was held on Nov, 19 last when this action was decided and the company will branch out into other business.

TWO EPOCH MAKING SCENES Arrival of Utah Ploneers Depicted in One Panel, and Driving the Last Spike in the Second. The frescocing of the great waiting room of the Union passenger station of the Harriman lines in this city was completed Friday morning, and the scaffolding is being cleared away Architect D. J. Patterson and Artist A. C. Wocker, the decorating director, both of San Francisco were busy in the afternoon, explaining the merits of the work to scores of admirers. Of course the central attraction is the allegori-cal painting on the 17x47 foot semi-circular panels over the end walls, representing the pioners entering the valley of the Great Sait Lake, and the replica of Hill's famous painting of "Driving the Last Spike." In the former, President Erigham Young is standing at the head of the emigrant train upon reaching Sait Lake valley and striking his staff to earth he points out the future home of his people. Be-side him stand Orson Pratt, Heber C. Kimball and Lorenzo Snow, while looking out from the wagon are Wil-ford Woodruft, Daniel Spencer and Bishop Rockwood, with Bishop Atwood riding up on a pony. The entrance to Emigration canyon looms up in the background, while grouped at either hand are the tired band of pioneers with their equally worn ox teams. In the other painting, Governor Stanford stands sturdily with sledge hammer uplifted, about to drive in the last spike that joined the rail ends of two continental railroad systems at Promontory Point, Utah. Grouped on either side are Collis P. Huntington, Mark Hopkins, Sidney Dillon, Charles Grocker and Oakes Ames, all historic characters in American railroading. PAINTED BY M'QUARRIE.

PAINTED BY M'QUARRIE. The actual painting of these pictures was done by John McQuarrie of San-Francisco, under the immediate super-vision of A. C. Wocker, while Archi-tect D. J. Patterson devised the gener-ation at the station, as particularly fit-ting and appropriate to this locality. He has blended the ideas of commerce and art in a manner that unlooscned the purse strings of the heads of the road, through Mr. Krutschnitt, and the $10,000 expenditure represented in these decorations is considered money well spent. spent

HANDSOME DECOARATIONS.

HANDSOME DECOARATIONS. The general decoration is after the French renalssance, beautifully work-ed out, embracing in the designs on the arched ceilings, the local emblems of the sego lily and the bee hive. The main tints are in a chaste light olive drab with the figure work in white, while on panel arches are deficate acanthus figure work in illuminated bronze tints with raised borders in oak leaf work. The ornamental sky lights in the ceiling centers are sur-rounded with heavy oak leaf work in relief plaster. The vestibules are in dark umbers, with light ochre ceiling. Everything about the entire ensemble is of the highest order of decorative art, with the choicest of colorings. COLORED WINDOWS.

COLORED WINDOWS.

COLORED WINDOWS. The colored glass windows, 6x10 feet, in the upper west wall excited general admiration as the afternoon sun shone strongly through, sisplaying to the best dvantage, the ore sampling works, the old stage coach, the train passing over the Lucin Cut-off, the pony ex-press and the American bison. Archi-tect Patterson and Mr. Wocker are much gratified at the artistically suc-cessful carrying out of this novel con-ception, the whole progress of local civilization is so well marked out here in artistic epitome and synopsis.

Birch, the cashier at the Portland Coffee House, proved con-clusively that her husband, Albert Birch, was a shiftless fellow and was granted a divorce. They were mar-ried on April 2, 1999, and two months later he descrited her. During their mar-ried life he did not work and on several occasions refused to work. He is now in Idaho, but his wife does not know what he is doing. One afternoon he packed his things and left and she only heard of him indirectly once since that time. Louis Mortensen Holds Auction Sale of Wife's Property and Then Files Divorce Suit.

When Mrs. Mary Neilson Mortensen, an elderly woman, left her husband, Louis Christian Mortensen, aged 60 years, confined to his bed about a nonth ago, he held an auction sale of the furniture and everything else that could be carried off of the homethat could be carried off of the home-stead near Murray, which is in his wife's name. After he had received the money from the sale, amounting to about $500, he filed suit for divorce, charging her with cruelty, and asked for an interest in the homestead which they had purchased after years of sav-ing. Mortensen was cited before they had purchased after years of sav-ing. Morse in divorce court Friday afternoon to show cause why he should not pay the expense of the suit and $50 to his wife's attorney as fees. On examination it was found that Mortensen had sold all the furniture in the house, four tons of coal, 150 chickens, 27 tons of hay, several pigs, a horse, wagon, and a cow. Mrs. Mor-tensen was called to testify allso. She declared that when she heard of the sale going on she, accompanied by her daughter, hurried to Murray and at-tempted to stop the sale of these things which she declared belonged to her.

"When I got down there," she testi-fied, "my husband pushed me around about the place. I rescued some of my clothes, but he did not leave me a my clothes, but he did not leave me a minute." Judge Morse decided that since Mortensen had sold the furniture and everything else about the place he ought to bear all the expenses of the suit. They were married 37 years ago in Germany and have a family of four grown children. Because James R. Dansie is afflicted with the chills and fever and unable to work, Judge Morse modified the decree which his wife, Mrs. Florence Dansie, obtained about three months ago. He was ordered to pay her $15 a month alimony but the court modi-fied the decree giving her a lump sum of $400, to be paid at the rate of $10 a month.

of $400, to be paid at the rate of $10 a month. Mrs. Margaret Hill, who has worked hard taking in sewing and washing in order to send her two daughters to school, was granted a decree of di-vorce from Edmund Hill, a miner. They were married in Carbonville, Colo., on June 7, 1887, and have two daughters. One is in school in Den-ver and the other attends the Salt Lake high school. In the last three years she has only received $40 from her hus-band.

Sloan, a locomotive engl ncer, who was killed in an accident at Winnemucca, Nev., a month ago today Mrs. Etta Sloan, an instructor at the Mrs. Etta Sloan, an instructor at the state industrial school, who obtained a divorce two months ago, appeared be-fore Judge C. W. Morse in divorce court Friday afternoon and asked that the decree he set aside. After Mrs. Sloan was examined Judge Morse granted the request and she will now secure $1,350 on an insurance policy and his per-sonal property. Mrs. Sloan took the stand and told of her husband's death. He was employed by the Western Pacific Railroad com-pany and was injured in a collision. Hs-was taken to Elko, Nev., to the hospitat and died there two days later, Nov. 18, His insurance policy was in the Na-tional Brotherhood of Railway Engl-neers. They was married in Corinne Bex
