Tree Planting. It is a gratifying thought that we are more and more becoming a tree-planting nation.

Not many decades ago it could be truly said of Americans, in the words of the Psalmist, "A man was taken out of the forest, and he was upon the thick track." To our ancestors the clearing of lands from trees was a necessity; to us, the realization of duty is to plant trees, and to plant them in the right place.

A man who would not plant trees, would not be a citizen. A man who would not plant trees, would not be a citizen. A man who would not plant trees, would not be a citizen.

Gladness Comes. With a better understanding of the value of trees, the nation is becoming more and more a tree-planting nation.
