Ben Holliday, the reeking teams used to pull up from their long run across the desert with the malls, gold dust and pas-sengers. Today the bank is under the management of J. E. Dooly, who has been with the company since 1857. He is noted as being an able financier and a man of keen business qualifications. There is hardly a concern that has been successfully Doated in this city that John E. Dooly has not been associated with. In addition to being identified in numerous projects in and around this city, Mr. Dooly erected the stately struc-ture upon West Second South wherein the postoffice is located, and which build ing bears his name. Mr. Dooly is one of those progressive business men who is ever ready and willing to assist any worthy object designed for the general good. Courteous in disposition and ac-commedating in spirit he maintains the good will and esteem of the entire com-munity.

Dealers in Toys, Fine Glass and Chinaware, and Other Articles.

Prominent among the large retail concerns of this city is distinctly that oper-ated by J. M. Pearlman inder the name of the Golden Rule Bazaar, located at Nos. 31-33 south Main street. The ele-ganity fressed windows are always a source of delight to eld and young alike, who gaze through the big plate glass win-dows at the large display of chinaware and toys. Every department of this re-putable house is completely filled with a dazzling display of goods embracing oversithing comprehended in the china, glassware, lamp and toy line. The stock of lamps, jardulers, vases and the me-must he seen to be appreciated. In ad-lition to these framed there are the toys. In fact this department is possibly the chief feature of the big establishment. Every child in town knows this store and once the tots get inside they are lost in transports of ecstacy at the contempla-tion of squads and battallons of gaily dressed dolts, wagons, toy horses and a thousand other things that bring joy to the juvenile heart. Mr. Pearlinan came to this city originally from San Francisco to eventually buy out Bartlett Bros. In 1890 and carry on this large retail estab-lishment under his own management. He is numbered among our progressive dil-gens, and he is ever genial and courte-ous to all. cerns of this city is distinctly that operated by J. M. Pearlman under the name
