I had a dream when on the train, Oh, would that I could dream again! And feel the biles which first I knew, To find that gorgeoos vision true! I thought that I arrived at last, With all discomforts, sorrows past; Not to our attic 'neath the dome, But to a new, palatial home!

Rich curpets covered halfs and stairs ;

Great, apen did beds were there, and chairs, Lace curtains, portions, dainty intokes to Revolving stands contained my books. I fleft the pariar, then I saw "The housewife's domain without thaw," The dining-room and buffet stored With dialacs it for a Proce's board.

I simildered as I feared to waite -

I similared as I feared to wake —
I similared for my Mary's sale—
When fol she met me, said "Oh, Jack,
Bow gial I am to have you back!
You'd sever found of us a trace—
I'll lake you to a better place,
I know you could not help it, dear,
And so I had to make it clear.

"The been to see a famous man, And tried his great installment plan; And such a horie we have! You'll say De doubly worth win we shall pay!" "But how on earth!" when I could speak.— "We pay for all, small sums such week." Amused, transported, then I knew Freed had made my dream come true!
