LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Portrait of Bishop Pyper.—Bro. Paul Hammer has executed another fine portrait in India ink, this time his subject being the late Bishop A. C. Pyper. The artist has succeeded in capturing the expression of the face to a nicety, so that the beholder, if he ever saw the original, need not ask whom the picture represents. The portrait is enclosed in a handsome frame, and will be placed on the walls of the Twelfth Ward Meeting House.

Merino Bucks.—Robert A. Banton has just arrived from Nevada with a fine lot of young Merino bucks, to which he calls the attention of the sheep men of this vicinity. The bucks can be seen at the Eighth Ward Square and at Thompson and Shurtliff's Stables. He also has on hand a few of the best French merinos. These bucks are well priced, to be found in another place.

Bridges to be Built.—The Oregon Road Line Railway design building two bridges over the Snake River, in Oregon, and for this purpose requires the services of twenty fine masons and the same number of quarrymen. The masons will be paid from $3 to $4 per day, and the quarry men from $1.75 to $2.50 per day. Board is obtainable there at from $4 to $6 per week. For further information apply to W. C. Boreland, at the Union Pacific Railway office in this city.

Head Cut Off.—The Reesa River Reville gives the particulars of a fatal accident which occurred on the Central Pacific Railway, at Bridge 26, about 23 miles from Truckee. At 10:30 p. m. a man named Chas. Reeler who was in the employ of Mr. Wilson, a large stock owner, while being shipped west, from some cause slipped from one of the cars, and when picked up his head was completely severed from the body and the body was badly mangled.

The trunk and separated head were brought to Truckee where Deputy Coroner Kester was in waiting, who took the remains in charge.

The Langhairs Troupe.—The weather last evening was very favorable, and numbers took advantage of it to attend the performance of the "Man in a Maze," produced at the Theatre by Mr. Langhair and his company. The performance was an entirely new first class, and but for Mr. Langhair himself, who is a comedian of considerable ability, would have been below the average. The after part was an improvement upon the former, and created more merit. Mr. Stanley's Dutch eccentricities, while not equal to Gus Williams', were good, and were appreciated accordingly.

To-night the same troupe appear in a change of programme, Mr. Langhair assuming the humorous role of "Amnash" "Sleek," in the "Serious Family." The other place to be played is entitled the "Man from Ireland."

Advice to Steam-users.—Under this caption, Mr. Joseph Donovan, an engineer of twenty-three years' experience, lately arrived in Utah from London, where he was employed at the Brady Boiler Works, in Deptford, furnishes the following which may be useful information to many:

Have your boiler filled with the most approved appliances for ensuring safety, but never rely on them; on them; the best of all safeguards is an experienced man to look after the boiler. Never employ a man who is given to levity or pranks or joking. Cover your boiler with some good non-conducting material, and use some effective composition to prevent incrustation.

If a leak is discovered have it attended to at once by a practical man. When you require your boiler repaired, it is not by any means advisable to call on all the boiler makers in the directory, asking them for estimates, and then give the order to the lowest tender. If you do so you will only put yourself in the hands of needy persons, who in their anxiety to get the job, will sometimes ask really less than they can do the work, without the material, and to compensate themselves by some means, will take every possible advantage, and at the very best will leave such a very little margin of safety, that you will be always in the position of a person with a bad watch, or perhaps worse—like sitting on a charge of mine. The most prudent course is to apply to some of your friends who are steam users, and enquire if they know of a respectable practical boiler maker, ask whom they prefer, and why, and use your own discretion as to whether you ask for estimates or at once give the job to the person they recommend. Do not delay until the last moment, and then insist that it shall be done by a certain date under a penalty of so much per day for every day over and above the specified time. Such a system often causes men to pass over tired and doubtful workmanship where otherwise they would not do so. Be careful that you have the best material and always have your boiler fitted with a fusible plug in the top of the tube and a glass water indicator in front of the boiler, through which you can always see the water, or not there is a sufficiency of water inside. By having an experienced practical man to look after your boiler and machinery, you save yourself much anxiety and alarm, and also command a great saving financially. Following are a few hints which may be useful:

Water should not be allowed to accumulate against the front of the boiler. The amount of water inside the boiler should always be kept as nearly as possible at the same level. Incrustation should never be allowed to remain on the top of the tube. A little water should be blown out through the blow-off pipe, once every day. The water indicators should be tried frequently, to see that they are not stopped up. The safety valves should be weighted to blow off just over the working pressure, when the weights are at the ends of the levers. Care should be taken that the guides of the safety valve levers are not stopped with dirt or paint, and the lever should be fastened in its joints with a pin and key, not with a bolt and nut, as the latter may get screwed too tight and prevent the lever from working properly.

The safety valves and the pressure gauge should always agree with each other. Water from faucets, or any other source whatever, should not be allowed to drip on the boiler. If the boiler should become short of water, end the top of the furnace is observed to be red hot, the man should not run away in alarm, nor stop the engine, nor turn on the feed at once, nor lift the safety valve levers; but he should close the damper, open the furnace door, draw the fire and wait until the steam goes down a little and then put on the feed pump. Such an accident as this should never occur where an experienced man is employed, but it should happen the boiler should be thoroughly examined by a competent person as soon as possible, not withholding that it may appear to be uninjured.

If steam users would follow the advice given in this article, the number of boiler explosions, which are almost always attended with loss of life, would be greatly reduced.

Burglary in Ogden.—Our younger sister on the Weber has been indulging in a bona fide burglary, which furnishes excitement sufficient, to say nothing of opportunities for alibi, to satisfy even the fastidious taste of friend Herald itself. The bold, bad burglary began at the Broom hotel, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. A young man of slim build and light complexion, about 22 years of age, registered at the hotel, engaged a room, and gave the name of Ed. Gray, from Eureka, Nevada. Not content with taking possession of the room assigned him, he extended his explorations through several others, the occupants of which were absent, wiggling his body through the transoms and making himself unduly familiar with the contents of several trunks deposited in the apartments. He opened them by means of an iron bar or "jimmy," about 12 inches in length, and ere long was in what then appeared to be the full and undisturbed possession of a silver watch, gold chain, and various other articles of lesser value. There is no telling where he would have stopped, had not a chamber maid happened to go into her room and discovered him there. She ordered him to leave, but he declined, and closed the door in her face, shutting her on the outside. She then forced it open and he hid under the bed, from which entangled position he threatened to shoot her if she made a noise. He also ordered her to go down stairs by one way, while he proposed to skulk down the other, but the brave girl, undaunted by his threats, instead of complying, screamed loudly for help, which brought timely assistance. Sheriff Stevens was called in, and the thief was taken into custody. He proved his familiarity with the walled ways of the wild west, and was, by assuming another cognomen, and giving his name to the officer as Ed. Brown. Two pistols and a small sum of money were found on his person when arrested, and after his incarceration he revealed to the Sheriff where he had secreted the stolen articles. He now lies in jail awaiting his examination.

A Bad Fall.—This afternoon a carpenter by the name of Joseph Morris, working on Col Kahn's new residence in the Seventh Ward, had the scaffolding give way under him and was precipitated to the ground. His leg was either broken or badly sprained (it was not ascertained which, at the time the News reached the office) and the injured man was conveyed home in a wagon.

FROM THE NORTHWESTERN STATES.

RAILROAD WRECKS AND MOB VIOLENCE.

Elder Wm. M. Palmer, who presides over the Northwestern States Mission, returned this morning with another small company of Saints, thirty in number, from that region. The principal portion of the new comers are from Indiana, and the residue from Michigan and Minnesota. One family remained in Ogden, others intend going south with Elder Palmer to Sevier County, but the most of them will settle in Salt Lake. The company left Council Bluffs on the evening of the 10th inst., and had a pleasant trip westward with the exception of a delay of twelve hours at Laramie, the cause of which was encountering railroad wrecks between that point and Evanston. The night before they arrived at Laramie, the east bound passenger train ran into the rear end of a freight train about 40 miles west of that place, telescoping the cabooses and several other freight cars, badly hurting the conductor, and it is thought, fatally injuring the engineer of the passenger engine. The engine was totally demolished, the boiler and its appurtenances lying on one side of the track and the tender on the other. Several baggage cars on the passenger train were likewise damaged but not so as to unfit them for service. After passing this wreck, which they were unable to do for twelve hours while the debris was being removed and the track repaired, the company came upon the scene of a similar disaster, where thirteen or fourteen freight-cars were piled in a ruinous heap on both sides of the track. Our informant did not learn the cause of this accident, as the road employees, with characteristic taciturnity declined to say much about it. At any rate it may be presumed that these wrecks have had something to do with the frequent delays in the arrival of eastern trains, so much complained of at present.

The feeling in the North-western States, towards the Elders, was very bitter at the time Brother Palmer left, especially in Indiana, where Elders Marks and Davis were tarred and feathered. In fact no Elder had labored in that State during the past season without being subjected to the grossest of insults and outrages. In many instances the brethren were pelted with rotten eggs and tobacco quids, while preaching indoors. Still they felt determined and zealous, not in the least discouraged, and were rewarded by seeing a spirit of inquiry manifested among a great many of the people. The press and pulpit were persistent in pouring out abuse and calumny, even when perfectly apprised to the contrary of the slanders they put in circulation. President Palmer believes it will all result in benefit, and that a good work will be done there, although in some places there is a more murderous and moribund spirit abroad than ever before.

A Veteran Gone.—A synopsis of the life and labors of Elder John S. Fullmer, senior, who died at Springfield on the 8th inst., has been forwarded by Brother J. M. Peirce, the deceased, who had attained the advanced age of 78 years, was stricken with paralysis on the 21st of September, 1882, and this attack was followed by two more on the 22nd and 23rd, respectively. He never afterwards recovered the use of his left arm and leg, but his intellectual remained unimpaired up to the moment of his death, when he passed away peacefully. From the time he received the first stroke up to his very last breath on earth, he suffered no bodily pain. The funeral services were held at the Springfield Meeting-house. The deceased left a numerous posterity, and was universally esteemed as a man of integrity and a faithful Latter-day Saint.

He was born on the 21st of July, 1807, in Luzerne County, Penn., became a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in July, 1839; emigrated to Nauvoo in 1840, and from that time until the martyrdom of the Prophet and Patriarch, was intimately associated with them. He was in Chicago jail with the Prophet the night previous to the assassination, and was sent by him to subjoin a witness in the Springfield trial. He and his wife were driven from Nauvoo, by the mob, and he was appointed Trustee-in-Trust to transport all the Church business in Nauvoo, and to help move the remainder of the Church. He arrived in the Valley in the fall of 1848, and when the Territory was organized, was a member of the Legislature. In the fall of 1852, when he was called on a mission to England, where he remained until honorably released, in 1855. While in England he was President over three large Conferences, namely: Liverpool, Manchester and Preston. After returning home he was reappointed a Colonel in the Nauvoo Legion (which office he had held in Nauvoo, where during the raid of the mob on that city, Captain Wm. Anderson expired in his arms) and held that position for a number of years, when his resignation was reluctantly received by J. H. Wells. He was a man of unwavering integrity and never faltered, when he knew his end was approaching he called all his family that were present to gather about them, and admonished them to be true to their covenant, and stand firm in the Church and Kingdom of God. Among his last words to them were: "I cannot remain away longer with you; I am going to a great mission."

Lecture.—We are requested to announce that the Rev. F. T. Lee will give a lecture to-morrow evening at the Congregational church, (Independence Hall), describing "A Voyage Across the Atlantic," with lessons suggested by it. This, with one or two following on Continental Europe, will be preliminary to a series of lectures on "Four Weeks of Homeback Travel in the Holy Land," to be given from time to time during Fall and Winter. In these lectures, personal experiences will be described, the manners and customs of the people, and the close correspondence between the land and the Book will be pointed out. Free to all, and all invited.

Religious services will be held in the Tabernacle to-morrow afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock.

District Court Cases.—James Smith has been indicted by the Grand Jury for burglary on the premises of an old gentleman named Matson, on Commercial Street, on the 2nd of last April. He was arrested at the time of the robbery, but after being bound over in $300 to await the action of the Grand Jury was allowed to go on his own recognizance. He soon afterwards disappeared and could not be found until the other day, when he was arrested by the police for stealing clothes from Backe & Son's tailoring establishment. After being fined by Justice G. D. Pyper $75 and costs, he was taken before the District Court to plead to the indictment found by the Grand Jury on the score of the former burglary, and is now in custody, waiting for trial before that court.

The case of Charles Hanks, for assault and highway robbery, is in progress before Judge Hunter this afternoon. Hanks, it will be remembered, is the individual who attacked Mr. Fred Good, near the Seventh Ward Meeting house, on the 14th of last April, beating him badly and robbing him of money and other valuables.

Badly Injured.—On the premises of Mr. John Haslam, Nineteenth Ward, near the railroad track, there are two animals, a mare and her colt, in a most distressing condition. They have been badly injured by one of the D. and R. G. Railway trains, and while the mare might be saved, there is no hope of the colt's recovery. It would be a mercy to dispatch the poor creature at once, and thus put an end to its misery. Its right forward leg is cut off below the knee, and is dangling by the skin, while the bones about the knee are protruding. The right hip and forward foot of the mare are badly peeled, but no bones are broken. The ownership of the animals is unknown.
