BREVITIES.

New Zealand has eighty newspapers.
Temperance, to-morrow, is the road to ruin.

Truth would be popular with us if it proposed only to correct the faults of others.

The Sultan and Empress have dined on Ostriches' brains.

Laborers get seven cents a day and board in Switzerland.

A Chicago congregation wants a preacher of good moral character.

Strong as our prejudices are they may be starved into submission, and without being killed.

There are nearly 200 persons in Chicago engaged in journalism, or writing for the press in some way.

A contemporary says of a rival editor that he errs in eating meat and vegetables—his error is his proper food.

Prince Alfred presented the Six Nations with an ox for making him a chief, and an ox-roast was the result.

Discouragements are given us to bear and surmount—not to talk about and yield to. It is pluck and endurance that win.

The editor of a Texas paper offers his paper for six months to the man that brings him the largest watermelon.

True liberty allows each individual to do all the good he can for himself, without injuring his neighbor.

Jane Brittonne is the Ida Lewis of Dieppe. She has saved the lives of fifteen sailors and wears five medals and the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

Keep your body sound; as wine savors of the tank it is kept in, the soul receives a tincture from the frame through which it works.

Robert Spring has been arrested in Philadelphia for forging autograph letters of George Washington, Ben Franklin and others, which he sends to Europe for sale.

There are three times as many men engaged in selling liquor as in preaching the Gospel or teaching school.

A child six years old was recently run over in Boston. "Don't whip me, father, I'll never do so again," were his last words.

The man who is careful of his own reputation will be careful of his neighbor's. The man who thoughtlessly speaks ill of another is reckless of his own good name.

The English government is willing to reduce the letter postage between the United States and Great Britain to three pence—six cents—and there is every probability that this rate will soon be adopted.

Telegraphic messages are now transmitted between the telegraph office at Chicago and the chamber of commerce of the same city, by pneumatic tube, three inches in its inside diameter and one hundred and thirty-five feet long.

"Come back, sir, that's not the road," said Lord Eglington to a trespasser in his park. "Do ye ken whaur I'm gaun?" said the offender. "No," replied his lordship. "Weel, hoo the de'il do ye ken whether this be the road or no?"

Mr. Seward has 10,000 feet of the beautiful white cedar of Alaska and 10,000 feet of California red wood coming East, with which to build a library, as a joint memorial of his Alaska and California trip.

The pegging machines at Wilton, Connecticut, now turn out enough pegs in one day to manufacture one hundred pairs of shoes. Only fourteen hands are employed and the wood used costs $5,000 a year.

An eminent physician says that the white rubber used for nursing bottles and infants' toys is very poisonous, causing sore mouth, skin eruption, decayed teeth, spinal curvature and death. In Europe the sale of it is prohibited by law.

True politeness is modest, unpretending and generous. Its appearance is not striking, because a truly polite man, while acting courteously, would conceal it. It engages a man to esteem his neighbor, because he thinks it manifest to deprecate a little himself than degrade another.

Azelius, the Swedish historian, although in his 85th year, is actively at work upon the completion of his great work on Swedish history, based upon popular songs and legends, and is also preparing new editions of some of his former works.

Here is a scene reported from the Paris Correctional Court:

"Prisoner, what were you doing on the Boulevard?"

"I was walking there."

"How! at two o'clock in the morning?"

"There is no article in the 'code' which says I may not walk on the Boulevard at two o'clock in the morning."

"Where do you live?"

"I prefer not to answer that, on account of my creditors."

"What have you to say in your defence?"

"That I have done nothing. If I have robbed or assassinated any one, let it be proved, and let me be guillotined. Last night there were heaps of men walking. They were not arrested, because they had money. I, having no money, am a criminal. If I had the means of passing the night at a restaurant, nothing would be said to me. What harm if I am wearing out the road? If so let them condemn me for that. This is my defence."

"One question more—What do you do for a living?"

"I sell second-hand tooth-picks!"
