The Saints are full to overflowing the words of eternal life, yet they do know what to do with the come to preach, it seems as though the pie were surfeited with much doctrine, ussion and counsel, and they do not very well. This was evident many vacant seats this morning. There ought to be ten thousand persons internacie not half filled, Why not come to meeting and fill all the seats. I do not like to see this lack of interest in attending meetings. These professing to be Latter-day Saints, have the words of life and do not have it; the brethren read from the Book of Life and they do not know it, and the wordsol God are given them in grant abund-ance and they trifle with them. Is this ance and they trifle with them. Is this the fact? It is. If the people would live and we would hear no complaining or fault-finding. If the people were hungry for the words of starnal life, and their whole souls even centred on the building up of the Kingdom of God, every heart and hand would be ready and willing and the work would move forward mightily and the work will a work with a united faith like the heart of one man; and whatever we do should be re would advance as we should do.
