

CANDIDATE FOR HEAD OF G. A. R.

The Grand Army of the Republic is making a vigorous campaign for Capt. William E. Bull, of the Buffalo police, for department commander of the G. A. R. The friends of Col. Bull point out only to his record as a soldier, but to his service as a public servant in his long connection with the Buffalo police department, as arguments for his election. Mr. Bull was a mere boy when the Civil war began. At the age of 18, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Forty-ninth regiment of New York volunteer infantry. In the same year he was made first lieutenant. In 1865 he was brevetted a colonel for gallant conduct.

LINCOLN'S IMMORTAL GETTYSBURG SPEECH.

(Delivered November 19, 1863.)

FOUR score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation, so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We are here to dedicate a portion of it as the final resting-place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work that they have thus far so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain—that the nation shall under God, have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

THE POLISH BOY.

By Mrs. Ann S. Stephens.

Ann Sophia Stephens was born in Derby, Conn., in 1812. Her maiden name was Winterbottom. She married in 1832, and moved to Portland, Me., where she edited the Portland Magazine and the Portland Sketch Book. In 1833 she removed to New York city, and has since been a frequent and popular contributor to the periodical literature of the country. She has published several separate works, the best known of which is a novel called "Fashion and Famine." An edition of her works was published in 1869-70, in fourteen volumes.

When come those cheeks to whiten and
That cut like blades of steel the air,
Catching the creeping blood to chill
With the sharp cadence of despair?
Again they come, as if by magic,
Were it to twin in our own glow,
And every string and voice apart
To utter its peculiar woe.

When come they? From your brother's
When
An altar raised for private prayer,
New forms the worshiper's desire,
Who Warsaw's gallant army led,
The dim funeral taper glow,
A holy host to keep his bow,
And hush, with their eyes of light,
The mass of earth that gather round,
Above the haughty and the low,
Of a young boy that kneeling bow.

What hand is that, whose face has
Clings to the dead with death's own
But meets no answering gaze?
No thrilling fingers seek the cold
It is the hand of her whose eyes
Hark wildly late upon the air,
When the dead warrior met her eye,
Quivering upon the altar stone.

With pallid lips and stony brow,
She murmurs words her fingers know,
But hark! the throng of living feet
Is heard along the bloody street,
Sneer and snarl yet they come,
With clanking arms and rattling drum,
Now whirled round, low and low,
Around the holy tomb; creep
The gate is barred, the gates are
Rush in and bravely demand,
With brutal voices and call to arms,
The startled boy, for cowering hand!

The mother spring with gesture wild,
And in her bosom clasp her child,
Torn with pale cheek and flaming eyes
Shrieking, with fearful cry:
"Back, ruffians, back! no dare to tread
You near the body of my dead!
Nor touch the living boy I stand
Between him and your lawless hand!"
Take her, and take those arms from hairs.

With Russian's heavy hand
And drag me to ghastly wild,
To perish, if I will save my child!
"Peace, women, peace! the Russian chief,
Tearing the pain from his own side,
And in his Russian grasp he holds
His victim to the temple door."
"One moment, women, one moment more!"
Will hand or gold ransom the child?
Take heritage, take man, take all,
But leave him free from Russian threat!
Take these! And for white arms and heads!

That Tired Feeling!

If you are languid, depressed and fatigued for work, it indicates that your liver is out of order. Herbine will assist you to throw off biliousness, rheumatism and all ailments due to impurities, and restore the energy and vitality of mind and perfect health. J. J. Hubbard, Temple, Texas, writes, March 22, 1897: "I have used Herbine for the past two years. It has done me more good than all the doctors. When I feel bad and have that tired feeling, I take a dose of Herbine. It is the best medicine ever made for children and fever. 50 cents a bottle. Sold by C. C. M. L. Drug Dept."

Asthma Sufferers Should Know This.

Poley's Honey and Tar has cured many cases of asthma. It was considered hopeless. Mrs. Adolph Bussing, of West Third St., Duvenport, Ia., writes: "A severe cold contracted twelve years ago was neglected until it finally grew into asthma. The best medical skill available could not give me more than temporary relief. Poley's Honey and Tar was recommended and one fifty-cent bottle effected a cure. No more of asthma which had been growing on me for twelve years, and I had taken it at the start would have been years of suffering. For sale by J. J. Hubbard, Temple, Texas."

From Cairo to Pyramids by Automobile

Electric Machines of American Make Will Carry Forty Sightseers at a Trip And a Lecturer With a Megaphone, as They Do in Mott Street—Moonlight Trips Will be Favorites.

FROM Chinatown to the Pyramids is a far cry, but no beyond the limits of Yankee enterprise, as next season the same "Seeing New York" automobile buses that now make nightly trips to Mott street will roll across the desert from Cairo to the tomb of the ancient Egyptian kings.

On the front seat will be stationed the regulation lecturer, not a native Egyptian in a fox of the west, but the real American article, a public youth in a laughing cap, with a megaphone and an unlimited stock of information.

The plans and contracts have all been made for this American invasion of the desert. Several years ago the thirteenth century roller car, superintended by the Egyptian government, for tourists from Cairo to the Pyramids, and now comes the twentieth century seeing things automobile. Of course it is not a philanthropic enterprise, but a money making scheme, and its promoters are enthusiastic in their faith.

Mr. Frank Whitcomb is the head power in the enterprise. He has arranged to send over to Cairo next November four of the big "Seeing New York" automobiles and also some fifty roller sights in Manhattan.

"We will begin making the 'Seeing the Pyramids' trip on Jan. 1 next and been there as far as the month, the length of the tourist season there," said Mr. Whitcomb.

"As it is now, the tourist is obliged to take a cab from the hotel through the city and across the Nile to the end of the railway line. That costs him $1.50 or $2. Then the roller trip, which is eight and one-half miles long, costs him 25 cents each way. We propose to take the tourist from his hotel, he may stop at out to the Pyramids and back for $2, about half what it costs him by cab and roller."

We will start at Shepherd's stop, at the foot of the Ankh, the way and the Nile to the Pyramids. The roller trip is a level as a billiard table and perfectly macadamized. The morning trip will start at 9 o'clock, reaching the Pyramids at 11. After a two hours' stay we will start back at noon, reaching Cairo at 1 p. m. The afternoon trip will start at 2 o'clock and get back at seven. On pleasant nights we will also make moonlight trips, which we think will be the most popular of all.

The machines to be sent over will seat to people each and cost $5,000 apiece. They are electric machines of American make. Mr. Whitcomb found that it was cheaper to send them over from this country than it would be to buy them in Europe.

He will also send over two big naphtha lamps, to be used as "seeing the Nile" boats, at 50 cents a head.

At the end of the three months, when the megaphone lecturer has about forced the spring to break the silence of centuries, the four cars will be shipped to Paris, where they will be used during the summer in seeing the sights, both day and night, much as they are now in New York.

Strange as it may seem, the public sight seeing automobile is still unknown in the French capital, and Mr. Whitcomb and his associates glory in the prospect. This Paris trip will not be confined to the city by any means, but will mainly be devoted to points of interest outside the fortifications.—New York Herald.
