YOUNG MAN DEAD.

Lester Wallach Succumbs to the Rayages of Consumption.

Lester Wallach, the enterprising oung advertising agent, who came to his city from New York, about five years ago, died yesterday at St. Mark's hospital. Mr. Wallach had suffered from consumption for many years, and it was in the hopes of being benefitted that he left his home for the West. The first year or two that he was here he improved very much, and hope was awakened within him, but some months ago the dread disease began anew and his strength falled rapidly, necessitathis strength failed rapidly, necessitat-ing his going to the hospital. He was a ery sanguine temperament, however and even as late as last Saturday he spoke cheerfully of the future, and in-spoke cheerfully of the future, and insisted that he was going to get well. His mother, who had been summoned from New York, was at his bedside when he bassed away.

Mr. Wallach was bright, energetic, capable young man, and his business ability, coupled with his gentlemanly demeanor, gained access for him into many homes in this city. His demise will therefore be regretted keenly by hosts of friends.

The remains will be sent to his home for interment, but before they are shipped short services will be held here under the auspices of the Elks lodge the deceased having been a member that order for a number of years. He was 35 years old and unmarried.

Bishop Hiram B. Clawson was the first speaker. He had been absent from the city on both the Atlantic and Paci-fic coasts for three months. The newspapers are so full of what transpires in the world that it is almost impossible or one to say anything regarding what is going on in the world, that everyone has not already heard of. The principle object now in the world seems to be to make money. The speaker said he was in sympathy with the working man, and that there should be a more equal distribution of profits by the wealthy men. The late Governor Flower of New York was alluded to as a man of charity. During the past twenty-five years of his life he set aside ten per cent of the money he made, for the poor, and charitable institutions. The tendency now is that large amounts of money must be acquired, and the speaker thought that this was the cause of nearly all the trouble between employers and em-

It may be possible, said the speaker, that the ills from which the rich suf-fer, may come from their oppression of the poor.

Those who have means should be than this. A people who have built up a country that has been made beautiful by their industry, are not a bad

Elder John Nicholson was the following speaker. He said he listened with interest to the remarks made by Bish-op Clawson, and he noted with pleasure the faith he exhibited in the thought that God takes cognizance of the ac-tions of His children. The eye of God penetrates into the recesses of the acter of their work. Ever since the days of Christ those who believe in Him have been praying to Him in reference to His Kingdom being established.

The speaker quoted the prayer set down by the Savior as a model prayer. and pointed out that it referred to the establishing of the Kingdom of heaven. It has been offered to various ages in the history of this planet, but it has been rejected because of the wrongful use of the free agency men enjoyed. Hence in all former dispensations men have arrayed themselves against the establishing of the Kingdom of God. They have stoned the prophets and ob-literated the Kingdom. When John came, prenching, he said he baptized with water, but one should come after was an organization that had a distinctive character. In it He placed Apos-ties, and prophets, and all other officers recorded in the history of His trans-actions. What constitutes the Kingiom of heaven is the authority of hea-

The laws of the kingdom are that man must repent of his sins, and be baptized by immersion for the remis-sion of sins and to have the Holy Ghost conferred upon him by the laying on of the hands of authorized agents. The speaker spoke of the ordinance of bap-tism, saying that it typified something greater than itself, that of the death and burial and resurrection of Savior. He further spoke on the sub-ject pointing out its beauties, and the authority that is necessary to make it effective.

Sometimes we appreciate more that which is passed than that which is with us. We have a country here which is beautiful to behold. We have other things here that are infinitely more wonderful, incomparably won-derful. One of the most wonderful things of the nineteenth century is the things of the inheteenth century is the existence of this community. How did they come here? Did the power of man bring them here? No: the power of man could not have brought them and made them so conspicuous in the world. We look back upon the flight of the children of Israel from Egypt, when they were about to be destroyed, and the Red Sea opened and permitted them to pass over, and be saved. But the existence of this people is more wonderful than that. They are from all nations of the earth. Their ways and manners have always been different but here you will find the most homogeneous community in the world. God has spoken to them, He has raised up a prophet to re-build His kingdom, to send forth messengers into the world to call men to repentance that they may receive the witness of the Hoty Spirit by taking the proper steps. And when these steps were taken the wit-ness was given and the promise of the Savior is fulfilled that they shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God or of men. Here then is the nucleous to a marvelous work, a work that relates to the redemption of the world, and the bringing about of an era of peace and righteousness. Heretofore the kingdom has been rejected, but the rophet Daniel tells of the organiza tions that will exist in the world until the last days when the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that shall en

In regard to the story that the Book of Mormon was taken from the Spaulding manuscript, the speaker stated that Parley P. Pratt had testified to him that he (Pratt) had taken a copy of the Book of Mormon to Sidney Rigdon, which differs from the report of an interview with John W. Rigdon, a son of Sidney Rigdon, in a morning paper. Mr. Rigdon is accredited with saying that David Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery took the Book of Mormon to his father.

The speaker stated that he had heard Martin Harris and David Whitmer bear testimony that an angel of Sickshowed

These testionies, said the speaker, were externa evidences to him, and they were great comforts to his heart. Even though these men apostatized they could no be induced to go back on their testlemony. President Cannon closed with bearing a strong testimony that God was still with His people, and admon-ished them to live pure and upright
