

DAVID O. CALDER,
EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Friday, April 28, 1876.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Empress of Germany will shortly visit the Empress of India.

The postmaster at Sandusky, O., has just been added to the list of official thieves.

The Governor of Massachusetts has vetoed the bill passed by the legislature of that State to legalize the marriage of James Parson with the daughter of his late wife, "Fanny Fern."

The Count von Arnim is to be impeached for high treason.

Two thousand soldiers have just left Spain for Cuba.

A meeting of influential persons who favor arbitration for the settlement of international disputes, was held at Vienna on Wednesday last.

The crew of the Dutch ship Agilda and Pauline was rescued at sea in an exhausted condition.

Three fatal stabbing cases in New York city, last night.

Bathing houses washed away by high tides at Coney Island.

Mr. S. Hirsch, a wealthy Hebrew lawyer, drowned in New York.

Belknap's trial was resumed in the U. S. Senate this afternoon.

Citizen's committee have begun the investigation of the charge against Secretary Bristow, in connection with the Mary Merritt.

Clithorn has been released by Chief Justice Carter on giving bail in $5,000.

Several failures at the London Stock Exchange.

More charges of fraud by the San Francisco Chronicle against those connected with the Mare Island navy yard.

The U. S. House of Representatives, to-day, by a large majority, refused to increase the salary of territorial judges.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Tarant, Saul's place, is reported to have lost, by fire, $5,000,000 of property, ruining 8,000 persons. Rats nibbled a package of fiction matches. Hence the fire.

The presbytery of Peoria, Ill., don't want him, that is, Rev. Gledening. They decline by a large majority. The gentleman can go back to Jersey Heights.

It is said that negotiations are in progress for the transfer of the entire fire insurance capital, about $30,000,000, of New York City to the State of New Jersey, and that some of the largest fire insurance companies originating in New York already have New Jersey charters.

The New York Herald takes a cheerful view of the business outlook. "We think that as far as we can read the columns of the Herald, the business prospects of the city are better now than many have anticipated. The fact that the owners of real estate in the city prefer to hold their investments, to selling them at panic prices is a good sign. Altogether we may feel that we have had for some years past."

The Washington Star of April 22 says, "In view of the repeatedly expressed desire of Dom Pedro to travel through the United States as a private gentleman, and his aversion to all public display in his behalf, the House committee on foreign affairs have resolved to report adversely to the arrangements for a public reception at Washington, contemplated by the resolution adopted a few days since."

This is the irrelevant way in which the Canon (Rev.) Appleton talks of the recent legislative session of that State. "And so the great tent is folded, the lights extinguished and the show closed for the season. And next year we suppose the time-honored spectacle will be repeated, and probably the oft-begotten public will be quite ready to be beguiled again. Let the ringmaster again crack his whip, and the posturing whoop renew his grimaces. Whoo! in great is the power of humbug."

The same paper says: "The few garden seeds on hand in the Department of Agriculture will be reserved for those residing in the northern sections of the Union who have not as yet had any. The demand for them this year has been unprecedented, and in consequence of the increase of letters and small clerical force, thousands of letters applying for them have been unanswered. Where parties have failed to receive the seeds or answers to their letters, this must serve as an explanation. The distribution is equalized as near as possible."

Political, financial or religious, the NEWS, Junction and Herald are each read extensively by people and anything published in either of these papers is read by the consideration to which it is entitled, emanating, as we believe, from Editors in the church. In view of this fact, your correspondence, if laborer, very seriously questions the wisdom of any of our papers encouraging, by giving detailed publicity, to the practice of worldly gain, even though practiced by members of the church.

Your correspondent is fully aware, however, that he has nothing to do with, or to say to, the affairs of the church, or the affairs of individuals or families, but when they come to permit our public journals to detail in their columns their acts, which are antagonistic to the daily private and public teachings of our leaders, and those journals, or any one of them, choose to call around the practice, by our people, of any of the ridiculous fashionable follies of the world, the cause of sectional romance, then the matter, it appears to us, assumes an entirely different shape, and becomes a public question, and we will immediately proceed to show, for the benefit of those unfortunate who cannot see, and those malignant who will not see, after all, peradventure they may conclude to profit thereby more or less. At all events, we may give them the chance to do so.

The senator's bill prohibits from voting or holding office every citizen who is "living and cohabiting contemporaneously with more than one woman, recognizing or claiming them as his wives," and has entered into that relationship since 1862.

Everybody knows, or might know, and if Senator Christiancy don't know, then he is more ignorant than a vital subject than any senator, or any citizen of ordinary intelligence ever ought to be, that the doctrine and the practice here referred to is a matter of religion, and consequently of conscience, to most of the inhabitants of the Territory, to nearly all the people to whom the bill applies.

Therefore, it follows naturally and incontrovertibly, we think, that this provision in Christiancy's bill is of the character of a direct bribe to every Latter-day Saint, or "Mormon," whose domestic relations may subject him to the prohibition; that is, to disfranchisement and disability to hold office.

The bribe is, the right to vote, and to be put into office. This is the consideration offered, a consideration which there is no constitutional right to take away on the grounds in question. Still Christiancy's bill does so, the question of constitutionality not appearing to be regarded by some people as of any weight.

The character of the "Mormon" is the subject of the bribery is of a two-fold character—it is an attempt to cause people to renounce their religion, and to give up their conscientious convictions of truth and duty; and it holds out great inducements to persons who have married more than one wife to desert and disown them and their children, present the right of suffrage and to hold civil office as the inducement for a man to forsake his wives and hold them up to the world as illegitimate, and their children as illegitimate.

This is a nice kind of business for a Christian Legislature to be engaged in, isn't it? What can really honorable people think of a man who is guilty of perpetrating such an enormity, and of seeking the sanction of Congress for it?

When the goods arrive they are immediately taken from the express offices or freight depots, and transferred to other parties for any amount that Norris or his confederates can get for them. He claims to have amassed forty thousand dollars by this style of business. Many efforts have been made by the Springfield newspapers and leading business men to expose his practices, and warn the public against him, but in spite of these efforts he seems still to be doing a very large business.

PHILADELPHIA, 28.—Wool is quiet and steady, and the supply light. Colorado unwashed pulled 31 @ 32; Texas fine and medium 31 @ 32; coarse 30 @ 31; California fine and medium 22 @ 23; coarse 21 @ 22.

Kilbourn Liberated on Bail. WASHINGTON, 28.—In the Hallet Kilbourn habeas corpus case Chief Justice Carter decides that the case is one of habeas corpus, and punishes the relator will be rendered to the dominion of indictment. Kilbourn in $200 bail in $5,000, his partner becoming his surety.

A. L. Bonnaman, Jr., post trader at Ft. Stevenson, D. T., testified before the Citizens' committee today, that he received his appointment directly from the President, and that he had not paid a dollar for the appointment.

The Mary Merritt Case. The committee on expenditures in the Treasury department, today, examined the accounts of the Mary Merritt case. Edward G. Johnson, attorney for the owners of the vessel, testified that he came to Washington at the time the case was pending, and was admitted to the bar, and was throughout opposed to the relator, but that he finally gave his consent.

Failed. BALTIMORE, 28.—Thomas Davis & Co., importers of tea, have suspended; liabilities $100,000.

WESTERN. ST. LOUIS, 28.—The Panama Railroad company have attached the forces of the City of Panama, and will do the same with all the Pacific Mail steamers arriving.

The Chronicle, this morning, returned to the attack of the management at the navy yard, at Mare Island, and specifies a long list of cases in which the Hancock family had conspired to defraud the Government.

It is reported that Dom Pedro will visit the city, direct to-morrow, and that he will be met by the City-mine, as he originally intended, but it is difficult to prosecute his movements, as he keeps in his very close, and his own private being often in ignorance of his intentions.

The Spaulding Case. In the Spaulding case, pay inspector Dorn, who was detailed to examine an examination of Spaulding's accounts, to ascertain the amount due Montana, Farwell, Mansson and others, from the sale of the Spaulding's property, shows a legitimate indebtedness in round numbers of $120,000, but the certificates issued by Pinney present an indebtedness of about one million.

FOREIGN. GREAT BRITAIN. LONDON, 28.—A Berlin correspondent states that the impeachment of Arnim, before the Court of State for high treason, will begin May 11th.

The Post has reason to believe that the Royal proclamation giving effect to the bill which will be published to-night, the same paper states that Sir Bartle Frere is to be made a baronet.

PARIS, 28.—Paris says that the French, when on the point of renewing his attempt to revolutionize the world, was applied from Constantinople that the French officers are organized in the Moudon, and are insurgents.

A dispatch from Berlin reports that Prince Milan has issued a proclamation declaring that the revolution in Serbia is caused by the concentration of Turkish forces at Nicos.

empty show, and vainly pointed elsewhere, only grasp at shadows, leaving lost the substance.

Marriage is honorable and among our people should be encouraged by keeping it within the fold of all who are of suitable age. The lack of wealth should be considered no objection thereto. But the introduction of foolish and extravagant fashions among us, especially under the apparent sanction and approval of the press, may and undoubtedly will prove not only a serious obstruction to marriage among our young people, but will soon create a positive barrier.

In view of this well recognized fact, I believe the masses of our people would, had they the opportunity, enter their humble protest against any paper, receiving their patronage, publishing in detail such unwise and hurtful practices.

In a private way it may be said that very gratifying to some to create a sensation by which the heads of some may be turned to a senseless desire to emulate, and no great harm would result from it, at least outside of the immediate circle of the "ecclesiastical" but when, at the price of even a possible momentary creating among the humbler classes a morbid desire to follow examples which ought not to be imitated, and of our daily newspapers leads itself to feed, in the most sensational and extravagant possible manner, the vanity of a few, by describing in detail a need not mention what, for I suppose an editor can publish what he pleases in his own paper, so it is not scandal, and I presume people have the right to read what they choose, and it is the opinion of many that they will not only do so, but will endeavor to find some service to talk and write down the supposed follies of the world by whomsoever introduced, practiced, or put.

FARMER. In the 4th Ward, Salt Lake City, April 27, 1876, BELLE BARTON, wife of Joseph Barton, deceased, was born in Warren, Massachusetts, Aug. 4th, 1828, by Elder Taylor, emigrated to Nauvoo the same year, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Barton was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

About the steamer "Beetle."

PLYMOUTH, England, 28.—The steamer America, from New York, arrived 6-day. She reports that on April 24 she spoke the Hamburg and American steamer Goethe, from New York, April 24, for Hamburg, in latitude 46° 29', long. 35° W., standing to the eastward under sail, with her propeller gone. The Goethe declined assistance. The next day the America signaled a westward bound Hamburg and American steamer intending to notify her about the Goethe, but the steamer paid no attention to the America's signals, and proceeded.

Royal Visiting. The Empress Augusta, of Germany, is expected to arrive next Wednesday, on a visit to Queen Victoria.

Stocks. 2 p.m.—Consols 97-10 for money and account; U. S. five-twenty bonds, 95; 1084; Erie 144.

Failures on Change. There were two failures on the Stock Exchange here and one at Manchester yesterday and one here today. The failures were small; all of them are small. The settlement is otherwise passing quietly in consequence of the excitement in the money market.

Evening.—The failure of another banker is reported at the Stock Exchange; it is thought that his little is considerable.

FRANCE. Amusements. PARIS, 28.—The agitation in favor of amnesty is creating so much feeling that the government has contemplated repressive measures.

At the 4th Ward, Salt Lake City, April 27, 1876, BELLE BARTON, wife of Joseph Barton, deceased, was born in Warren, Massachusetts, Aug. 4th, 1828, by Elder Taylor, emigrated to Nauvoo the same year, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Barton was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson was a member of the "Mormon" battalion, and was killed in the Mexican war, and for the right and on the side of the oppressed, faithful in the defense of his country, and his kind husband and father, respected by those best known to him, and in spite of these tribulations, he lived in hope of a resurrection with his dear friends.

At Glendale, April 11, 1876, of lung disease, after an illness of several months, ROBERT MOYD SWANSON, was born in England, and resided in Utah, Oregon and California. Brother Swanson