been given its quietus, and the anti-Dubois ticket has been filed with the secretary of the state after a hard fight between the warring factions. As a result of the supreme court's ruling, there is much jubilation in the anti-Dubois faction, and considerable walling among followers of the notorious political acrobat.

The law, as handed down by the court, is as follows: The court holds that the primary election law enacted in 1903 is mandatory, and that every right conferred upon a voter is a legal right which may be protected, defended and enforced by appropriate methods in the courts of this state. That the court will not undertake to control the internal affairs of a political the court will not undertake to control the internal affairs of a political party, unless the same encroaches upon, violates or contravenes the law. In determining factional disputes in a political organization and the legality of party primaries and conventions, the court will go as far as the law goes, and protect all legal rights conferred by law upon all persons participating therein.

In a contest between two factions of a political party as to which is the regular organization entitled to represent the party, the court will look to the law, and if the matter is regulated by law, the respective rights of the faction will be determined by law. If, however, there is no law governing the rights of the contesting faction, the same will be relegated to the party forum. A party in state convention is rot to be superior to the law of the $10,000 FIRE. Shortly after midnight, fire was discovered in the rear of the basement of the Eller's Piano house on Idaho of the Eller's Plano house on Idaho street, causing a loss of approximate1y $10,000, the building sustaining about $2,500 in damages, and the stock of musical instruments about $7,500, before the flames were extinguished. The fire was under a fair way toward destroying the entire building when discovered by J. E. Moor, janitor of the Overland building; flames shooting out of the windows of the main floor, at the rear of the building. An alarm was quickly turned in from the corner of Eighth and Main streets, the alarm being received at the central station at 12:15. The entire department responded to the call, some difficulty being experienced in locating the center of the blaze, from the fact that the falarm had been turned in from Main street, and before effective work could be done, the fire had increased to such an eyebent that the volume of smoke be done, the fire had increased to such an extent that the volume of smoke greatly handicapped the firemen in

BARON MUNN VON SCHARTZENSTEIN FOR NEW GERMAN AM-BASSADOR.

A feeler has been sent out from Berlin in the way of finding out if Baron Munn Von Schartzenstein would be acceptable to President Roosevelt as the new German ambassador to Washington, succeeding the late Baron Speck von Sternburg, who died a short while after returning to Germany on a summer vacation. Baron Munn von Schartzenstein is a member of the stateliest aristocracy in Europe. He is a descendant of an old Teutonic baronial family and is of as noble descent as any royal family in Europe. Personally the baron is a splendidly educated man, fond of all out of door sports and games, and is considered a "good fellow" in the best sense of the expression,

ENNIS MURDER CASE ON TRIAL

Jury Secured in Whose Hands Lies Fate of Pocatello Blacksmith.

DAUGHTER MADE CONFESSION

Delegates to McCammon Convention Selected-Attempted Robbery -Big Fish Story.

Special Correspondence. CATELLO, Oct. 1.—The murder case of John Ennis, who on the morning of July 21 quietly entered the Oregon Short Line blacksmith shop and, unobserved by anyone in particular and without saying a single word, placed a revolver against the temple of Blacksmith Evan Davis—his old friend—killing him in-stantly, was begun Tuesday morning in the district court.

The following jurors were accepted: Walter Edwards, T. F. Carey, H. Swenson, James S. Whitaker, N. S. Coffin, W. T. Brewster, A. J. Damron, N. D. Thatcher, E. A. Ward, Dan Sheldon, Jacob J. Barrow and Meyers Cohn.

The case is quite sensational and the courthouse is crowded with spectators. Judge Budge insists upon holding evening sessions of the court, and it is not improbable that the case will be closed before the end of the week.

It is claimed by Ennis that Evans accomplished the ruin of his 17-year-old daughter, Gertrude, who confessed to her parent that Evans was father of her child. Attys.
