EVENING NEWS
Thursday, July 19, 1877.
A Man Who Doesn't Sleep.
PARKERSBURG, July 14.—The man who does not sleep, Saunders, now resides near this place. Some time in 1861 or 1862 Saunders enlisted in the Fourth West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and served several years. But it becoming known directly in camp that he made such pretensions, it aroused the curiosity of many of the men and officers, and they set a watch upon him. I am told by a colonel that he and many others lost a great many nights' sleep in endeavoring to entrap Saunders, but during the whole time that he remained, a member of the Fourth he was never caught sleeping. He stood guard night after night, and week after week, paid by sleep-headed soldiers to take their turns, but never was caught napping. He hauled coal several weeks in succession, only stopping long enough to eat and change horses, and ploughed the fields with five or six stalwart men until he wore them out completely, but never seemed to tire. During the year 1866, I think it was, he went to Philadelphia and was examined by the leading physicians of the country. They sat up with him in relays of five, night and day, and kept up an almost constant stream of conversation with him, and at the termination of twenty-nine days discharged him with a certificate, but could give no explanation of this freak of nature. Many stories of the untiring energy and activity of this man are told, and all agree who know him that this antipode of sleep is the most sleepless man in the world.
