FRAGMENTS.

ONLY one day more to register.

PRESIDENT A. O. SMOOT was up from Provo today.

THE regular meeting of the Z. R. I. S. will be held tomorrow evening.

THE Territorial Supreme Court will hold a session tomorrow afternoon.

THE grand jury is still busy investigating alleged infractions of the laws.

JOHN MANN was fined $10 in the Police Court today, for drunkenness and profanity.

THE Primary Fair will keep open one day more—Saturday. It will close Saturday night.

BISHOP WHITNEY'S health is steadily improving, and he will probably be convalescent in a few days.

THE Hebrews will observe their Yom Kippur, a feast day, tomorrow, and will close their stores till 6:30 p.m.

JAMES RADDON was arrested last night on a charge of leaving his team unfastened. His case was set for this afternoon.

THERE are messages at the Western Union Telegraph office for N.P. Woodruff, Mrs. R. H. Muirhead and Lieut. L. B. Campbell.

THE Primary Conference will be held tomorrow at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., at the Assembly Hall. Hymn books can be obtained at this office.

THIS afternoon the preliminary investigation into the charge against Thomas Steadman, for embezzlement, was taken up before Justice Pyper.

WORD from Logan states that on Wednesday afternoon a boy was drowned in a slough near Bear River. His name could not be ascertained.

MRS E. CHARLES and Peter Monson were arrested last night for drunkenness and lewd conduct. Their trial was set for this afternoon, in the Police Court.

THE copy of the subscription list for the benefit of the sufferers by fire in Sweden has been lost. The finder will confer a favor by leaving it at Sorenson & Carlquist's, 116 East Temple Street.

THE grand jury room has been removed to the third floor of the Wasatch building, a very inconvenient arrangement, especially for lady witnesses, who will have to climb two flights of steps.

THERE is a broken wagon in the street at the corner of Third South and First West, which renders it unsafe for vehicles driving that way in the dark. The obstruction has been on the street for a couple of weeks.

J. J. MORGAN, of Company D, Sixteenth Infantry, was arrested last night for obtaining meals under false pretences. A new light was shed on the affair this morning when it was learned that it was Morgan's companion, and the wrong man had been arrested.

THE meeting of the stockholders of Z. C. M. I. will be held at the general office of the institution, East Temple Street, on Friday, October 5th, at 2 p. m., for the election of officers. It is proposed to submit an amendment to the articles of incorporation, increasing the number of directors.

BROTHER H. H. CLUFF, of the Presidency of Utah Stake, was released from the penitentiary today, having served the full term for unlawful cohabitation, or living with his wives. He looks somewhat worn from the effects of his incarceration, but will doubtless soon be all right now that he is again at liberty.

"MR. SAMPSON of Omaha" will be given again tonight and tomorrow there will be a grand matinee, which will be the final performance. The extraordinary success of this new and original work ought to ensure two more full houses. Those who have not seen it should avail themselves of this last opportunity or they will miss an operatic performance full of sweet music, refined fun and beautiful stage effects.

LAST evening two ladies were going home from the Theatre, unaccompanied by a male escort, and when they turned the Cliff House corner to go west from East Temple Street, they were accosted by two men, who wanted to walk with them. The ladies did not answer but hurried on. The fellows followed and spoke a second time, but received no reply. When they had gone a little over a block, the ladies were spoken to a third time and told the scoundrels that their presence was offensive. Notwithstanding this, they followed the ladies down to Third West Street, where the latter managed to elude them and reach their homes, terribly frightened at what had occurred. It is a pity such fellows can not be caught and taught a severe lesson.

THE people of Denver do not have all smooth sailing with their sewer system. Once before they had to extend the main sewer, and now a repetition of that action seems necessary. This is called to the attention of the Denver officials by the Union Pacific officers in a communication which says: "There is but little fall in the old channel between Twenty-sixth and Thirty-first streets so that there is a stagnant and unhealthy pool from sewer for fully that distance. It is rapidly growing worse, and from nearness to the shop it is undoubtedly hurtful to the good health of employes." Upon this statement of the case the Mayor says, in a letter to the Denver City Council: "I desire to call your attention to the necessity of providing some place for the depositing of garbage and other refuse matter. It is now being dumped into the Platte River below Thirty-sixth Street, and people in that neighborhood complain of it as a nuisance. If it is possible some other place should be provided. Certainly, if no other method of disposing of it can be found than dumping into the river during the balance of this season, steps should be taken at once looking to the establishment of a crematory in which to burn it another year, this being the method adopted in other large cities."

A Peculiar Will.

About a fortnight ago a gentleman died in Pielj-jarvi Parish, Finland. He was during his lifetime the owner of considerable property, although none knew exactly how he had obtained it. The superstitious whispered that he had quite extensive business relations with Satan. Be this as it may, the fact is that when the will of the deceased was opened, it was found that he had left all his property to the devil The will was drawn up in perfectly legal form. His relatives have entered protest against the provisions of the document, and the courts will be called upon to decide whether the "old one" can get the property or not. The probability is, however, that by the time the law suit is ended, not much will be left of the estate for whoever is decided to be entitled to it.

THE MONROE ACCIDENT.

Details of a Thrilling and Terrible Tragedy.

Editor Deseret News:

R. W. Rasmussen, late principal of Richfield District School, and Richard Haag, school teacher of Elsinore, went up Monroe Cañon on a pleasure trip, on the afternoon of Saturday, September 8th. After proceeding about a mile and a half, which is as far as can be reached with a vehicle, they tied up their horse to the buggy, took lunch and proceeded on foot for about a mile, viewing with admiration the beauties of nature in its wild and sublime grandeur and collecting specimens of rocks for geological purposes, and, as Brother Haag said, having a very nice time together conversing on the sciences, languages and kindred subjects. They passed thus through the narrows where perpendicular cliffs rise to various heights leaving a gorge in some parts of about one rod wide. On their return they proposed to ascend the cliffs and had proceeded but a short distance when Brother Rasmussen, with his small hammer in hand, went to what he supposed to be a loose rock and tried to roll it off the cliff for the sport of hearing it fall and splash in the water below.

Brother Haag's attention was called in another direction at this time although he was standing but a few feet distant. He looked around again immediately and saw Brother Rasmussen clinging to the edge of the cliff and shouted to him to hold on, but at the same instant he fell, having a look of desperation in his eyes.

Brother Haag at once proceeded back by the route he came on and found the unfortunate young man lying motionless, partly in the creek, face downward. He turned him over and rubbed his hands and temples, but found no indications of life. Placing his finger on his pulse he felt two or three beats, then all was stopped forever.

Brother Haag made the utmost haste to town and reported the occurence, when a party of men immediately went to take care of the body. A deep gash, penetrating to the mouth, was found under his chin and another on the left cheek, while the most of his left cheek was attained. The left shoulder blade was broken and there were scratches all over the breast. The great wonder was that, with a perpendicular fall of fifty-five feet and landing on a rock-bed, he was not worse mangled.

Brother Rasmussen was about 26 years of age, possessed exellent talent, much force of character, and was highly appreciated as a school teacher. His watch was stopped at 3:22 p. m., at which time his career was closed, leaving to mourn a father and two sisters. The whole county has been thrown into sorrow by the appalling event.

The deepest sympathy is felt for Brother Haag under his severe ordeal, as he is a young man of exceedingly mild and sensitive disposition.

Bishop Horne, of Richfield started with the remains of Brother Rasmussen to Moroni where they were to be interred.

I rode up the cañon with Brother Haag after the accident and took charge of removing the body to town.

A coroner's inquest was duly held and a verdict rendered in accordance with the facts.

WM. A. WARNOCK,
Monroe, Sevier Co., Sept. 10, 1888.

Death of Sister Grimsdell.

In another part of this issue appears a notice of the death of Sister Mary Ann Grimsdell, which occurred at 9:30 this morning. The deceased was an amiable and much respected woman, being noted for her kindness of heart and hospitable disposition. She is an old member of the Church, having embraced the Gospel in London forty-five years ago. Her husband, Brother William Grimsdell, has been an employe of this office for many years. He and his late partner in life have trod the mortal journey together for many years, and he feels her departure keenly, as do also her children and other members of the family. Sister Grimsdell was converted to the faith of the Gospel under the ministration of Brother Woodruff, by whom she was baptized in the early days of the British Mission.

Fatal Accident.

Yesterday Richard James Arnold, of South Cottonwood, this county, went into a field to load a small quantity of hay upon a wagon (about 500 pounds) After performing this task and coming out to the road, in getting upon the wagon he slipped and fell in front of it. The team started and the wheels ran over his chest, inflicting internal injuries from which he died shortly afterward. Deceased was the son of Richard and Sarah Arnold, and was a well-behaved and industrious boy. Mr. Royal Proctor, by whom he was employed, gives him an excellent character.

Peculiar Proceedings.

Deputies Phelps and Watson, about daylight last Friday morning, secreted themselves in the First Ward meeting-house and waited until John A. Sutton visited his meat market, when they went over and arrested him. Brother Sutton naturally enough enquired for their authority for so doing. The deputies, after fumbling over their papers for some time, had to admit that they had no warrant for his arrest in their possession. He consequently refused to be held in custody without any legal authority, and the deputies wisely concluded not to detain him further.—Southern Idaho Independent.

The Opera.

The Theatre was crowded again last evening, at the performance of "Mr. Sampson of Omaha." The opera went even smoother than on the opening night, and the applause was at times tremendous. It will be given again this evening and tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Brigham will sing "The Linden Tree," and a copy of the words of the opera will be presented to each lady in attendance.

It has long been usage in the English Church, notes the Christian Leader, for bishops to wear knee-breeches and buckles, after the fashion of a century ago. One American bishop adopted the same costume in nether garments when he received his episcopal robes. We have not heard that it has done more for him than to confirm the popular conviction of his personal vanity.

Strange how people differ. Protectionists call the provisions of the Mills bill "free trade." The Chicago News says: There is no better protectionist than the man who favors free raw materials and a wise revision of the tariff on manufactured articles. He is the friend of the workman. He is the Apostle of higher wages. He is a believer in fair profits and a foe of trusts.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

Three Painful Mishaps at the Ogden Depot Yards.

Last Wednesday evening A. Wilkinson, a U. P. switchman, severely sprained his ankle in stepping from a moving train. He will be laid up for some time, before he can resume work.

Yesterday morning about 9 o'clock, Joseph Brown, a switchman in the U. P. yards of this city, met with a fearful accident. He was engaged in coupling cars when the bumpers slipped by each other and he was caught between the cars. One rib was broken and his left shoulder was badly crushed. He was at once taken to the Union Pacific hospital and placed under the care of Dr. Perkins. Later in the day he was removed to Mr. Frank Higginbotham's residence on the bench. Last evening he was suffering acute pain and was very low.

Last evening Joseph Pool, employed in the C. P. repair shops, met with a similar accident, though more serious. He was working between two cars, in a standing position. His two companions had left, as the switch engine was approaching to take away the caboose. He failed to get out in time and was caught between the Miller hook coupling of the passenger car, and the draw bar of the freight car. The hooks locked together and pitching bars had to be used to pull them apart. The poor fellow's left arm was crushed, both bones being broken in a slanting direction, below the elbow. It is feared that the arm must be amputated. This, however, was not his greatest injury. The abdomen swelled up fearfully, and fears were entertained that a rupture of the intestines had occurred He was carried to his home on Second Street, where Drs. Bryant and Grout attended him. He bore the terrible suffering with fortitude, though at times a groan could escape him. His wife, who was present when he was stripped and examined, bore up bravely under the terrible affliction.—Ogden Standard, Sept. 14.

West Virginia Conference.

The West Virginia Conference was held Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 1 and 2.

On account of a heavy rain storm, which occurred on the morning of the first, many who anticipated attending were unable to do so. Nevertheless, there were many who came from a considerable distance; some of the sisters walking through the rain a distance of ten miles—an experience which would be very appalling to our sisters in Utah.

There were eleven Elders present, including President Spry, and we had an enjoyable time. The people assembled at the schoolhouse, meeting was called to order at 10 a. m. by President Guy C. Wilson, and after singing prayer was offered.

The speakers were Elders G. C. Wilson, Wm. H. Glines, J. Shepard and Wm. Spry.

At 2 p. m. the people again assembled.

Elders Joseph Brockbank, J. H. Hales, Alex. McMaster and A. N. Timothy were the speakers.

On Saturday night about thirty-five persons, (mostly Saints) having stopped at Brother A. P. Jarrell's, appropriate instructions were given by President William Spry. The evening was pleasantly spent in singing, etc.

On Sunday morning the weather was more favorable, and a much larger crowd assembled at the school-house. Elders N. G. Sowards, Morris Martell, Guy C. Wilson and President William Spry addressed the congregation. In the afternoon the speakers were Elders David T. Powell, Guy C. Wilson and President William Spry.

The instructions given throughout the Conference were timely, and the Spirit was poured out upon the speakers and Saints in abundance.

N. G. SOWARDS,
Clerk of Conference.

A Story of Nye and Riley's Manager.

Amos Walker, of Indianapolis, is at the Everett Hotel, the guest of Major Pond, the lecture manager, says the New York Evening Sun. Mr. Walker was the manager of James Whitcomb Riley and Bill Nye, the humorist, from the outset of their career. He is a humorist himself and a great practical joker. Several ladies, including the widow of Thorne, the actor, were present Saturday afternoon when Bill Nye and a friend of Mr. Walker's called to see him at Major Pond's office.

The interview began by guying Mr. Walker as a green countryman. He knows New York as well as Indianapolis, but he bore the chaffing so soberly that those in the room who did not know him really supposed him a rustic on his first visit to this city.

"Finished plowing out your corn, I suppose," remarked a friend.

"Yes," drawled Mr. Walker.

"Chinch bugs bother your wheat much?" asked Nye.

"Naw," was the answer.

"How's that neigabor of yours down near Pekin whose boy went up to Indianapolis to work in a drug store?"

"He's well. Boy's working the old man's place on shares," was the reply, and then for the first time during the day Mr. Walker smiled. The drug store to work in which the boy went to, Pekin was Mr. Walker's. He was perhaps the greenest country lad that ever struck the city. When he appeared in the store the following conversation ensued:

"Which department do you prefer, keeping books or compounding drugs?" asked Walker. The young man expressed a preference for book-keeping. "Now, look here," said the druggist, "I want an account that can decorate my books with flourishes; say, head the page for one day's record with a deer and for the next with an eagle." The youth gave specimens of most elaborate but awful ornamental penmanship, and was instructed to call around the next day. When he arrived several of Walker's friends were on hand, and with the utmost sobriety the practical joker said: "If a customer desired an article from the other side of the store we might want you to leave your books and serve him quickly. It would be necessary for you to jump over the counter. Please give us a sample of your agility."

Then for half an hour they had him vaulting back and forth over the counters.

He came the next day for a further trial and was told: "I'm afraid our books are too complicated for you. We have at our soda fountain sixteen syrups. Sometimes a person will want all of them in one drink and you would have to record them in a single entry. You are not equal to the work. I am sorry to disappoint you, but I should be pleased to take you to the armory tonight and entertain you."

The militiamen at the armory were posted, and when Walker and his protege entered they pretended to get into a dreadful quarrel and threatened to attack the two. The youth finally escaped and bounded down-stairs three steps at a time. Walker never saw him again.

One day the manager was passing through Pekin. On the platform he met a countryman and asked him if he knew the youth. "Yes," was the answer; "he's working down here on his dad's farm. He went up to Injunap'lis to work in a drug store, but he didn't like it right well up thar."

Make Lime at Home.

There is no need whatever of running to the druggist and buying lime water every time it is needed. And, by the way, it is very useful to have in the house in case of sour stomach, etc. A teaspoonful of it with half a pint of milk will often make the milk quite digestible, while without the lime water it might sour and produce colic, or distress in the stomach. To make lime water, get a lump of good unslacked lime, the size of a hen's egg, or larger; put it into an old pitcher, and pour on a pint or so of water. As soon as it is slacked and cool enough, stir it with a spoon or stick and pour off the principal part of the milky fluid into a pint or quart bottle, leaving the dregs in the pitcher to be thrown away. Cork the bottle well, and let it stand quiet. In a few hours the lime will settle to the bottom, except what is dissolved in the clear water above it, and this water will nearly always be of uniform strength. When used down so it cannot be poured off without stirring the bottom, add more water, shake the bottle, cork it well, and let it again settle for use. Once a year or so, make up a new lot as at first. Lime the size of an egg will be enough for a good many quarts of lime water, which will practically cost nothing. At the ordinary temperature of 60 degrees, a pint of clear lime water contains only 9½ grains of lime. (A pound is 7,000 grains.) Lime water is an anti acid, and is a little tonic also.—Prairie Farmer.

NEWS NOTES.

Items Gathered from Various Sources.

Virginia, Nev., Sept. 11.—G. Wiseman was seriously injured yesterday afternoon by the premature explosion of a blast while grading a site for a stamp mill for the Justice Mining Company in lower Gold Hill, near the Woodville shaft. He will lose the sight of his right eye, and that of the left is seriously affected. His person was severely lacerated in other places by fragments of flying rock.

Nogales, A. T., Sept. 11.—Fredricks and Geronimo, two of the most desperate men in the gang who robbed the Sonora train at Aqua Zaros last May and killed Conductor Atkinson and Fireman Forbes, have been arrested at Fairbanks, Cochise County, by Sheriff Slaughter. These men recently killed one Lucero, a deputy sheriff under Slaughter, and are regarded as two of the most desperate characters along the border.

Virginia, Nev., Sept. 10.—Maud Harkin committed suicide today by swallowing strychnine. All attempts to remove the poison were found futile, and she died half an hour after taking the fatal dose. She left a note saying her heart was broken. Her parents can divine no cause for their daughter destroying herself. She was on the street a few minutes before swallowing the poison. She was but 17 years of age, and very pretty. She swallowed nearly a quarter of an ounce of the deadly poison.

Marysville, Cal., Sept. 11.—Neil Kelly, 14 years old, took strychnine at a ranch in Sutter County early this morning, and died in Yuba City this afternoon. He had been putting out strychnine for gophers, and claimed that he took some to cure a sore throat. He was an orphan and had been apprenticed from an asylum. He ran away from the farmer who took him out for service and was working for wages. It is believed that he took the poison thinking it would frighten the women around the house where he was employed.

Nogales, A. T., Sept. 10.—Sheriff Shaw has returned from Hermasillo, Sohora, where he went with papers for the extradition of Manuel Verduzo, the murderer of Louis Cohn of this city, and says the Mexican authorities refused to turn the prisoner over. It is likely that the papers will be forwarded to the Minister of State at the City of Mexico, but it is hardly probable that that official will take notice of the matter unless called upon by this government. Additional evidence showing Verduzo to be the murderer has been discovered here. The prisoner, who has been in a Mexican jail here since his arrest, was today taken to Magdalena to be tried on a charge of breaking into a store at that place.

The Well-Bred Girl.

Somebody has taken the pains to compile the following schedule of "what the well-bred girl does not do."

She never accepts a valuable present from a gentleman acquaintance unless engaged to him.

She never turns round to look after any one when walking on the streets.

She never takes supper or refreshments at a restaurant with a gentleman after attending a theatre unless accompanied by a lady much older than herself.

She does not permit gentlemen to join her on the street unless they are very intimate acquaintances.

She does not wear her monogram about her person or stick it over her letters and envelopes.

She never accepts a seat from a gentleman in a street car without thanking him.

She never snubs other young ladies even if they happen to be less popular or well favored than herself.

She never laughs or talks loudly at public places.

She never wears clothes so singular or striking as to attract particular attention in public.

She never speaks slightingly of her mother, and says she don't care whether her behavior meets with maternal approbation or not.

Parliamentary Law at a Meeting of Ladies.

At a meeting of a dozen ladies the other day to organize a lodge of the King's Daughters, the utter unfamiliarity of women with parliamentary law or even with the general idea of organization was somewhat humorously illustrated. After they had sat looking at each other a trifle nervously for a while, one of them said:

"Well, here we are. What are we going to do?"

"Oh, dear," said another, "I don't know, but let's do something."

At last a young lady suggested they might try not to say mean things about other people until next meeting, anyway. Everybody thought that would be nice. Just as they were adjourning two hours later, a lady exclaimed:

"Oh, I suppose we ought to have a president?"

"Why, of course, we ought," said another.

"I don't suppose anybody will object to Mrs. Brown for president," said a third, "let's have her."

"All right, let's," echoed the rest. And nobody objected to names proposed for secretary and treasurer, either.

A few days later the fair secretary consulted a gentleman acquaintance as to how she should write up the minutes of the meeting.

"Well, you ought to begin by saying who was chairman of the meeting."

"Why, we didn't have any chairman," said the girl.

"Who, then, put the motions before the meeting?"

"Oh, we didn't have any motions. Somebody would say she thought such a thing would be nice, and all the others would say they thought so, too. That was all."

"If that was the case," laughed the gentleman, "you will have to set it down in the minutes that such and such measures were informally approved. But you must state clearly that the club was organized and write out the name of your particular branch or lodge and the constitution and by-laws you adopted; and then—"

"But we haven't got any name," interrupted the girl, "and we didn't adopt any constitution and by-laws. What was the use? We all knew what we were there for. Besides, we didn't think of that."—New York Sun.

A musician recently submitted a song to a publisher, entitled "Why do I Live?" After reading a small portion of it, the publisher wrote the poser as follows: "Because you sent it by a messenger boy."

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

TO MEET THE REQUIREMENTS OF the lately-enacted Territorial law, providing for a marriage license being issued by the Clerk of the Probate Court of the county in which the intended bride resides before a marriage can be legally performed, there has been issued from the press at this office a supply of licenses of approved form, which Probate Clerks will do well to avail themselves of. The law also requires that the person performing the ceremony return with the license, within thirty days after the marriage, a certificate over his own signature and countersigned by two or more witnesses present at the ceremony stating the date and place of the marriage. These certificates, suitable for either a civil officer or an Elder of the Church to use, can be had at this office in any quantity, and Probate Clerks ought to keep some of them on hand also, so that if necessary they could supply the person applying for a marriage license with a certificate also, to provide against the possibility of the person who is to officiate in performing the ceremony not having one to furnish them with.
