

City, Utah. He also wishes to correspond with his uncle, George Greenway, who was last heard of from Salt Lake City. The gentlemen here mentioned will please write to the above named gentleman at 2 Barnard St., Thornaby-on-Tees, England.

A fatality occurred at Round Valley precinct, Rich county, Utah, on Wednesday afternoon. A fruit peddler passing through, camped and left a little fire burning. Some of the children of John Early gathered round and began making a bonfire, and the fire caught the clothing of a little six to seven year old daughter of John Early. The little companions got somewhat bewildered and ran, but a brother caught the girl and extinguished the flames and took the sufferer into the house.

All the efforts of loving friends, and Dr. Allguire who was summoned, failed and death claimed the loved one who expired Friday morning at 2 o'clock. A gloom rests upon the whole community as a result of the very sad and sudden affliction. The funeral was held on Sunday.

Josephine Jensen, daughter of Bishop James Jensen of Forest Dale departed this life last night at 3 minutes past 10. Sister Jensen had been afflicted with Bright's disease for a long time and was a great sufferer. She bore her affliction however with becoming fortitude and saintly patience. For some time she expressed the most unbounded faith in her ultimate recovery, and it was only yesterday morning that she gave up to what seemed to be the inevitable. As soon as she felt the end of her earthly existence was near she called the members of the family, and others, together and gave them each in turn words of counsel and advice. In doing this she seemed to rally from her sickness and spoke to each in a firm tone. Sister Josephine was born December 23, 1873, in Salt Lake City, and died single. She was beloved by all who knew her.

Captain David B. Stover, one of the early pioneers of Utah, passed away at 2.20 this morning at his rooms in the Harris building on west Second South street.

Captain Stover met with an accident in the early part of June this year, being run over by a bicycle at the street crossing of Second South and East Temple. This added to an earlier accident a year previous, when he broke several ribs by falling in a bath at the Sanitarium and from which he had hardly recovered, caused his death.

Ever since the last accident the old man has been sinking and frequently expressed to his friends that he had received his death blow. The end came peacefully this morning when he slept his life away.

The body was removed to Eber W. Hall & Co's. undertaking establishment, where it can be seen by his friends. The body is in charge of the McKean post of the Grand Army of the Republic. No arrangements have been made for its interment pending the action of Captain Stover's relatives in the East. Commander N. D. Corser has telegraphed to a brother of the deceased in New York and likewise to his son in Chicago, but up to press time had not received an answer. From previous correspondence, however, Mr. Corser thinks the body will be shipped East for interment.

FROM TUESDAY'S DAILY, OCTOBER 24.

C. W. Robbins, a young single man, and, it is said, a Latter-day Saint, of Snowville, Utah, was sent from Almy a week since by the Rocky Mountain Coal company to the state hospital, at Rock Springs, Wyo. He was suffering from typhoid fever, and he passed away on the afternoon of Oct. 22, 1898, from the aforesaid disease. He will be interred here. The deceased was utterly unknown in Rock Springs.

The Utah volunteers have started an American paper at Manila, with Sergeant Isaac Russel as local editor, according to a private letter received yesterday. The letter does not give the name of the journal or the full personnel of the staff, but as there are a number of experienced newspaper men with the Utah batteries, it is safe to predict that it will be an enterprising and influential sheet.

The Salt Lake copper plant was sold yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Montgomery at the west door of the city and county building and consisted of the real estate, buildings, and such portions of machinery as are fixed to the buildings of the Salt Lake Copper Manufacturing company. The decree was made by Judge Hiles on July 28, 1897, in the suit brought by E. T. Singer against the company and others. The property referred to was bought by Charles G. Singer, David C. Green, and George A. Smith, trustees, for the sum of $50,000, which will be turned over to the receiver and distributed to the claimants. There still remains to be sold the portion of machinery not fixed to the buildings and the mining properties owned by the company in Boxelder county. When this is disposed of, it will practically wind up the copper company's affairs.

Ole B. Peterson, a veteran fireman, died suddenly about 12 o'clock today in the back room of the Free Coinage saloon on east Second South street. He had been sick for some time, and being in indigent circumstances, had been urged to go to the county infirmary. His complaint was an aggravated kidney trouble, which, while serious, did not confine him to his bed, and his proud spirit made him shrink from becoming a charge upon the county.

This morning Deputy Sheriff Gulbransen met him on east Second South street, near the saloon where he died, and noticing that he was very sick, took him into the saloon and persuaded him to go to the infirmary. Leaving him, the deputy sheriff went to get an order for admission to the infirmary and likewise one to take him to Dr. Anderson for treatment. Mr. Gulbransen secured both of these from Commissioner Hall, and was on his way to the saloon to take Peterson to the infirmary, when the unfortunate man passed away.

Peterson has a wife and five or six children, who are living on Franklin avenue. The pair had been divorced some time ago and the wife had been supporting herself and family by taking in washing. The deceased had been making his abode at his aged mother's home on the corner of Second East and Second South streets. The latter is now very ill and fears are expressed that the shock of her son's sudden death will prove fatal.

Peterson was a man between forty-five and fifty years of age. The remains were removed to the Joseph E. Taylor undertaking establishment. It is not thought that an inquest will be necessary.

Governor Wells returned yesterday from a visit to the Omaha exposition, and when seen this morning, he was very enthusiastic over the reception the Utah delegation received at the exposition on Utah day. Going into the exposition itself he said that, like many others, he marveled at the magnitude of the fair, and was more proud than ever that he was a western man, as the exposition brought out the achievements of the west in the past fifty years. The one attraction at the fair, however, in his opinion was the government building, which was as fine as anything at the World's Fair at Chicago. Speaking of the Utah exhibit, he said that the mineral display was very much spoken of and had as a special feature a perfect labelling of the specimens. The whole exhibit, he thought, would repay Utah double for the outlay of money that it had cost. Incidentally he spoke of his desire to keep the exhibit intact, but could not state as to whether any steps had been taken in that direction, the matter being in the hands of the Utah commissioners of the fair.

When the Utah official party reached Omaha, the day was cold and raw, and it was an open question as to whether it would pay to go on with the exercises, as state days had been something of a frost. But they concluded to go on. On the morning of Utah day, Gurden W. Wattles, the president of the fair, had carriages sent to the hotel for the party, and when they arrived at the auditorium, they were surprised to find the great building nearly full, notwithstanding the cold, and before the end of the meeting, the building was full.

All over Omaha they were very cordially received and the Governor expresses himself as very much pleased at the showing made. He had a most pleasant visit.

The "News" has received the following communication with a request that it be published. In order to get the matter satisfactorily adjusted, the request is complied with.

Recently county surveyor of Utah county, Adamson, surveyed the school section in section 36 township 9 south, range 1 east, Salt Lake meridian, and infringed upon, or in other words, robbed the south half of section 25, township 9 south, range 1 east, of a strip of land one rod wide, with an area of two acres. The fact that the owners donated the one rod for a road, cuts no figure. On the south side of section 36 he has left a strip of land .66 links wide, or an area of 5.28 acres, between the school section and the town site of Santaquin as established by J. B. Milner, county surveyor many years ago, from an original corner (mound) formed by him, and shown by him to me, his deputy, at that time, and I succeeded him as county surveyor of Utah county for two terms. J. B. Milner also discovered the original corner (mound) at the northeast corner of township 9 south, range 2 east, and shown to me by him, and that he, J. B. Milner, established the townsite of Salem in section 1, 2, 11, 12, and 1 as county surveyor surveyed nearly all the land in township 9 south, range 1 east, 29 and 3 east, and 10 south, range 1 east, that has been surveyed. Now, if this survey of Adamson's is right, what is to be done with all my surveys as county surveyor? Can a county surveyor upset all the work of a former county surveyor? I have heard that he based this survey on a corner set by one Bracken, said to be a deputy U. S. surveyor. I have seen the rock set .66 links north of the true place for the corner. This is not the first time that men claiming to be U. S. deputy surveyors have set different corners, claiming superior authority to county surveyors and thereby causing endless confusion and trouble.

All of the above assertions I am prepared to swear to at any time.

DANIEL STARK,

Payson, Utah county, Oct. 24, 1898.
