The Virginia City (Nevada) Enterprise says: The Consolidated California & Virginia weekly letter shows that the face of the west crosscut on the 1,700 level is in $30 ore. There can be no gainsaying the fact that a large and rich body of ore is that which has recently been discovered. The facts known show that the body has already been marked out, and that the ore assays from $30 to $600 per ton. The opinion of mining men is that the ore extends both above and below the points at which it has been reached, and it is generally thought that the ore above the 1,650 level is of greater richness than any taken from the new bonanza. However this may be, enough is known to assure the fact that men will be put to work and at least a partial revival of the former prosperity of the Comstock will take place.

An afternoon of pleasure was turned into an evening of extreme sorrow for the family of J. E. Miller, a leading merchant of Leadville, Colo., on Monday evening. His wife and two children, with Mr. and Mrs. Lorentz, chief of the Hotel Vendome, started out for a drive. Evergreen lakes was to be the destination. On the way the team showed signs of restlessness, but Mrs. Miller, being an expert horse-woman, feared nothing. Just before reaching the United States fish hatchery a frightened horse dashed up behind and so scared the already uneasy team that they broke into a run and became unmanageable. Mr. Lorentz tried to help gain control over the thoroughly frightened animals, but on turning a sharp curve in the road the carriage was overturned. Mrs. Miller and her little boy were thrown down an embankment. The mother was very seriously cut and bruised about the head and it is feared fatally injured internally. The little boy had his skull fractured in two places and was cut and bruised all over the body. The little girl, Ollie, aged five years, was caught between the wheel and bed of the carriage and her throat literally ground out. No hopes are entertained of her recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Lorentz escaped with only a few cuts and bruises.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THOMAS HALL.

ST. GEORGE, June 15, 1894.—Elder Thomas Hall, of St. George, departed this life at 4:30 p.m. on the 8th of June, of jaundice and other complicated ailments. He was born in Liverpool, England, September 1, 1816, and was the son of Robert Hall and Elizabeth Miller. He married Ann Hughes December 31, 1839, at Hawarden, N. Wales; was baptized into the Church by Elder John Taylor at Liverpool, England, February 11, 1840; and left England in January, 1844, on board the ship Fanny, together with the Saints, landing at New Orleans on the 6th of March, and arrived at Nauvoo April 11, 1844, on board the steamer Maid of Iowa.

He arrived in Utah in 1852, and located in Salt Lake City for a few years. While there he acted as one of the special police force. In 1856 he was called on a mission to the Las Vegas gold mines, then in southern Utah, and after being released from this mission and only being home for eight days, he was called at the April conference 1857 on a mission to Canada, and was a captain of ten in the noted handcart company of missionaries who made the extremely arduous and fatiguing journey of upwards of 1,000 miles to the Missouri river. After his return in 1858 to Salt Lake he moved to Millville, Cache county, April, 1860, where he remained until he was called on a mission to southern Utah in 1866, locating his home in St. George, where he remained until his death. He also filled a mission to Great Britain to obtain genealogical data for himself and wife, to which he was set apart by the late President John Taylor while in St. George the last time. This mission he fulfilled with credit, preaching from time to time as opportunity offered. He was ordained a Seventy April, 1845, in the Sixth quorum at Nauvoo, which office he held until the 25th of June, 1892, when he was ordained into the High Priests' quorum.

He was the father of 8 children, and leaves 40 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. He died strong in the faith, bearing his testimony to the truth of this work to the last. He was quite resigned and willing to be released from his sufferings.

The funeral services were held at the Tabernacle, conducted by Counselor George Jarvis of the First ward. The speakers, Elders William Fawcett, John Pymm, David H. Cannon and D. D. McArthur, made appropriate remarks of comfort and consolation to the bereaved wife, two of his sons from Cache county, and all who were present.

ELMER D. W. CLARK.

GRANTSVILLE, Utah, June 18, 1894.—Elmer D. W. Clark, son of J. R. and Mary L. Clark, died in St. Mary's hospital, Salt Lake City, June 14, 1894, of empyema. The deceased was taken to the hospital by his parents on the 9th inst. where an operation was performed by Dr. Pinkerton, with the hope that the afflicted young man might regain his health, but the destroyer had too strong a hold, and he gradually sank until his spirit took its flight. He was born September 24, 1876, and died in full faith and fellowship in the Gospel. He was a young man who possessed fine ability and bade fair to become a bright star among the noble sons of God. His remains were followed to their last resting-place by a host of sympathizing friends.

The funeral services were conducted by G. Andersen. Kind and consoling remarks were made by Elders A. Erickson, A. G. Johnson and F. M. Lyman, the latter delivering an able and highly interesting discourse on death and the resurrection. Thus passed away one of the Lord's noble sons.

JAMES CROSSLEY.

OGDEN CITY, Utah, June 18, 1894.—The ranks of our veteran fathers are becoming thinned out, and from present appearances their generations will be soon gathered to the "other side." Another of our venerable friends has passed to the great beyond.

Elder James Crossley has been a faithful, true adherent to the Gospel for nearly fifty years. He was the son of James and Sarah Crossley, and was born June 1, 1816, at Barrix, Saddlework, Yorks, England. On the 29th of February, 1836, he took to wife Hannah Whiston, who bore him two children. Both died young, and on April 13, 1839, their mother followed them to the great beyond. On April 16, 1840, James Crossley entered the second time into matrimony, with Mary Jarvis. The issue of this marriage was nine children, only four of whom are now living. On January 8, 1846, he was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Shortly afterwards, in the same year, he was ordained an Elder, and appointed to preside over the Radcliffe branch of the Church, which position he held and faithfully filled until November 24, 1854. On the last-named date he sailed from Liverpool on board the Clara Wheeler. There were on board 422 Latter-day Saints, bound for New Orleans. As soon as they entered the Irish Channel they experienced terribly rough weather with stormy, adverse winds. The ship beat about in the troughs of the sea until the last day of the month, when the captain was compelled to "bout ship" and return to port. They rested there until the 7th of December, when they again put to sea with fresh supplies of provisions and water, and with better prospects of fairer weather. But shortly after leaving port the measles broke out with sad fatality among the company, resulting in the death of twenty-one children and two adult persons. They landed in New Orleans on the 11th of January, 1855. From the last-named port they continued their journey to St. Louis, en route for Utah, on the steamboat Oceana.

After arriving in Salt Lake James Crossley first settled in "Sessions' settlement." In 1857 he removed to Willard, Box Elder county, and engaged in farming until 1858. He then "pulled up stakes" and moved south with the people generally from the north. On October 26, 1868, he married Mary Bentley, by whom he had three children who still survive him. On May 1st, 1880, his wife Mary Jarvis died. In the fall of that year he came to Ogden and has continued his residence here until the time of his death, which took place June 15.

The funeral services were held in the Second ward meeting house on Sunday, June 18. The building was filled to its utmost capacity. Those who took active part in the obsequies were Bishop Joseph Warburton, Elders Joseph Morgan and William Caulton, of Salt Lake City; John Scowcroft, Joseph Hall, F. D. Richards, Mark Lindsay, Thomas Morley and Bishop Robert McQuarrie. The speakers bore testimony to the pure life, the uprightness and unflinching integrity of deceased in the Church of God since their acquaintance with him, some of which extended over forty years.

James Crossley had fourteen children, fifteen grandsons, eleven of whom are living; eighteen granddaughters, five of whom are dead; also six great grandsons and ten great granddaughters, all living.

Respectfully,
JOSEPH HALL.
