He was a mining man, and was interested in mining. He was formerly attorney for the treasury department, and was a justice of the supreme court of Ohio.

The annual parish supper and meeting of the Unitarian society was held last evening. The annual reports were encouraging, and it was announced that all but $100 of the church building debt had been paid off. It was decided to call the church edifice Unity hall. J. F. Sturges was elected president of the society; John Zink, vice president; A. A. Moulton, secretary and treasurer; Dr. H. A. Whitney, J. L. Perkes, Dr. W. H. Hopkins, A. G. Mahan, G. H. Raybould and Mrs. C. W. Watson, constitute the board of directors for the ensuing year.

According to contractors there is one-third of the amount of building going on now that there is generally during warmer weather. This includes of course bricklaying, which can be carried on, it seems, now as well as at other times. In fact, one contractor says that it is better to lay brick in cold weather than in hot, because at the former temperature the moisture is not absorbed out of the mortar as it is when the weather is warm and often before the mortar has firmly set.

The Utah Press association held its annual meeting at the Kenyon last evening and elected the following officers: President, William Buys of the Wasatch; vice president, E. A. Littlefield, Utah State Journal; second vice president, J. M. Boyden, Mt. Pleasant Press; third vice president, J. B. Graham, Bingham Bulletin; corresponding secretary, I. E. Diehl, Mammoth Record; recording secretary, Parley P. Jensen, Ephraim; treasurer, W. M. McBride, Utah County Democrat; historian, J. T. Jackson, Mercur Miner. The junket that is contemplated by the association for next summer to take in the world's fair was discussed at some length, and committees were appointed to arrange the preliminaries. The next meeting, about April 20, will be for the purpose of completing the plans of the trip.

MR. BECKSTEAD'S DEMISE.

Death Robs the Community of a Respected and Useful Citizen.

As stated in last night's "News," the funeral services over the remains of Deputy Sheriff Henry W. Beckstead, who died Sunday at the Holy Cross hospital following an operation for appendicitis and the removal of gall stones, will be held from the South Jordan ward meetinghouse on Thursday, at 12 o'clock noon. The body will be taken to his home in East Jordan tomorrow and may be viewed there from 9 to 10 a. m. Thursday. At the latter hour the remains will be taken to the South Jordan meetinghouse, where the services will be held, beginning at 12 o'clock. Interment will be in the South Jordan cemetery, where the school children and other friends will be permitted to view the body for the last time.

Mr. Beckstead was for years a school trustee in the South Jordan district, and in his honor the school will be closed to take part in the procession. He was also a constable for some time, and in every way of life was a man of high integrity and kindly disposition. He had been ailing for years from an affection of the gall, but his death was sudden and unexpected. The deceased leaves a wife, eight children, a mother, two brothers and two sisters. His father, died when he was a mere child. His mother is now a resident of Oregon, and will not be able to attend the funeral. Mr. Beckstead was in the sheriff's office, Mr. Beckstead was much thought of and his demise is regarded as a distinct loss to that branch of the county government.

A Prisoner in Her Own House.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001-A Agnes Ave., Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hemorrhoids and at times a hard cough, which she says, "Would keep me in doors for days." I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me a part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better and at this time the cough has almost entirely disappeared. I am entirely cured." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

RICE CASHED A FORGED CHECK.

For This Reason He Now Languishes in the County Bastile.

CHARGE AGAINST HIM, FORGERY.

Claims, However, that a Man Named White is the Real Culprit—Latter Not Est.

Glenison E. Rice, who is better known through his former connection with a local gambling house than in any other capacity, languishes in the county jail on a charge of forgery. There he will remain, the chances are, until he is able to give more definite information regarding one Albert B. White, from whom he claims to have received the forged check, which got him into jail. Rice's loyalty is almost superhuman. He insists that there is a White, but being a friend of his, he would rather remain in prison than "go back on him"—an ambition which the sheriff expects to gratify in the future. For the officers are not nearly so sure of the existence of A. B. White as the prisoner seems to be.

The case is complicated to a degree. On Sept. 26, last year, McCornick's bank cashed a check for $1,500, which had been received by J. W. Telford of the Golden Gate saloon, and Telford had received it from Glenison E. Rice, who claims to have received it from the mysterious White. It was drawn on and signed by S. W. Darling, superintendent of a mining company in Nevada, the signature being a forgery, and was payable to John A. B. White, or order. It was endorsed by White and again by Rice, in the usual form, before it passed to Telford. According to the latter, Rice gave him the check, saying that White was good for it, and according to Rice, he received the check from White, who was in a game at the Golden Gate, with the request that he (Rice) get the money on it for him.

The check was over a week old when the forgery was discovered. Mr. Darling received from the bank a monthly statement, in which the $1,500 item was charged to his account. He immediately wrote the bank, declaring he cashed no such check, and thereafter the forgery was detected. The bank came back to Telford and when the latter tried to get the check cashed, he was told that it was a forgery. Mr. Darling, whose name was forged, swore out a complaint at 4 o'clock yesterday, charging White with forgery. The warrant was given to Deputy Sheriff Smith and covey, as well as "tip" that White was coming to town on the train from Park City. Accordingly, the deputies hastened to Sugar House and boarded the incoming train. A close search was made, but no sign of White was seen. The description of White was Glenison E. Rice who was brought in and locked up. Telford says Rice operated a roulette wheel for him, but further than that he knows very little of his history. Rice claimed to have been in the jewelry business and at one time to have been an agent for the Utah Paper company.

Rice strongly asserts his innocence in the matter. He says that White was playing a game and drew checks for $500 and $1,000—then the $1,500 check, which amount he asked Rice to get from Telford. The smaller checks were torn up. "I got Mr. Telford to cash it, in perfect good faith," says Rice, "and A. B. White is a bonafide person. He and I are friends, and I'd rather go to the penitentiary than go back on a friend." Mr. Darling, who had the nerve to sign his name, says he does not know Rice, nor White, and cannot understand how any person ever had a chance to make out a check. Neither can he account for what person knew he had an account at McCornick's. The forgery is a good one, he says, although a little more cramped than his own handwriting. Mr. Darling was in Salt Lake at the time the check was cashed, but heard nothing of it until his return to Nevada.
