The Stokes Trial.

New York, 16.—In the Stokes trial to-day, Thos. Haight, doorman at the tradies' entrance of the Grand Central and the principal witness against the prisoner, admitted, on cross-examination, that after the last trial, being sick and out of employment, he called on Chapin & Co., Fisk's brokers, and from them went to Mr. Conor, Fisk's former managing agent, and was by him sent to the private Secretary of Mrs. Fisk; from whom he received fifty dollars. The rest of the witness's evidence was precisely as on the former trial. C. G. Hill, of Troy, was recalled, and stated that since his examination hast evening, he took an accurate measurement of the scene of the tragedy, and that he never saw Hart until he saw him in the court. Juo, F. Redmond, another Hall boy and witness for the prosecution, admitted receiving fifty dollars from a friend of Fisk since the last trial. He then gave his version of what took place at the identification. The Stokes Trial. hast trial. He then gave his ver-sion of what took place at the iden-tification of Stokes by Fisk, differ-ing from the story told by others.

In the Stokes trial Philip Farley, hotel porter, distinctly contradicted the testimouy of Thus. Hart, as to Stokes asying he knew nothing of the shooting. Farley is the man who seized Stokes, and he heard everything; the said witness also stated that he searched for the pistol in room 207, about half past four and found none.

The payment of the semi-annual dividend of the N. Y. Central R. R. was resumed this merning. Some of the papers intimate that Vanderbilt will not present the script for his dividends; an inquiry, however, revealed the fact that he drew the full amount due at the Stock Exchange to-day.
