THE CRAZE OF THE HOUR. WHEN a craze sets in for or against any measure or project, calm reason, coo logic and quiet common sense have very little influence against it. Still, those who are not carried away with the current ought to do what they can to stem the tide. One of the latest crazes in this part of the world is the sewerage furore. Situated in a basin with no natural outlet for accumulations that ought to be removed, a demand is made for the methods in use where nature has provided ample means for their disposition. Let any reasoning, practical person stand upon an eminence, look over this broad city, glance at the surrounding country, take into consideration the number of inhabitants and what it is likely to be, for many years to come, estimate the immense cost of competent sewers for this vast area, the distance the main drain would have to be constructed, the scarcity of water for flushing, the lack of any safe place of deposit or conveyance beyond a point of danger, then think of the ability of the people to meet the tremendous outlay for this impracticable scheme, and will he not conclude that the cry for sewerage is a graze?

Of course, we expect this question for gelden opportunity. But we do not care a cent for that. It must be obvious that a general system of sewerage for this city of "magnificent distances" and small population is out of the question. All that should be attempted by practical men would be something to relieve the business part of town. In fact, the wants of the hotels are the most pressing needs in this direction, and the cry commences in their vicin-

Some immediate measures are necessary for the public health and the public nostrils. JEPHTHAH'S VOW.

Lucid Explanation of a Striking Passage in the Bible.

Editor Deseret News: In my attempt at a criticism of Col Ingersell's Reply to Mr. Gladstone, 1 advocated, as you will remember, the view, that Jephthah did not kill his daughter but consecrated her to the service of the Lord. A friend of mine has kindly pointed out to me, that he did not think this interpretation was consistent with the Hebrew text of the passage, and that, in fact, the argument was "misleading." I therefore thought I would submit the following to your perusal. If you think the sub-ject important enough to warrant a re-was no murderer.

OPINIONS DIVIDED I am fully aware that the epinions concerning Jephthah have been divided among Bible commentators. Mest of the ancient fathers think that the of the ancient fathers think that the judge really immolated his daughter. But I also know that the weight of argument is now generally considered to be, that she was not sacrificed, but when the noise is without reason. Sewerage seems to be in demand because it is said to have worked won-London, 1841. I quote the following:

"Though Josephus, and many commentators after him, are of the opinion that Jephthah did really immolate his daughter, the probability is that she was not sacrificed." "Further, it is not said that he sacrificed her, but that he did with her according to his vow. The subsequent remark of the sacred historism (she knew no man) is uncalled for, if she were sacrificed, but not if she were compelled to remain single. On the whole we may safely conclude, that Jephthah's daughter was not sacrificed, but consecrated to a state of celibacy."

Dr. Joseph Angus, a distinguished member of the Royal Asiatic Society, and a member of the committee who completed the last revision of the formidable character, ever rising to English Bible, in his Bible Handbook,

"Human sacrifices were expressly fer-bidden. All who even touched a dead body were unclean; and, moreover, no devoted thing could be sacrificed. Jephthah prob-ably devoted his daughter to perpetual vir-

Such is the testimony of the ablest Belle scholars of the present time. INSURMOUNTABLE DIFFICULTIES. If we suppose that Jenhthan killed his daughter, we meet with the follow-ing difficulties, which I confess my utter inability to see my way clear of:

(1.) We are told by the advocates of the killing theory, that Jephthan in an evil moment made a "rash" vow, which evil moment made a "rash" vow, which he did "ill to make and worse to perform." (Henry and Scott.) But the whole character of Jephthan is against this supposition. Jephthan was not only a brave, deliberating and a peaceful man, but at the time he made his yow, the Spirit of the Lord was upon him. For we read:

"The Spirit of the Lord came upon Jeph-thah, and he passed over Gilead, and Ma-nasseh, and passed over Mizpeh of Gilead, and from Mizpeh of Gilead he passed over to the children of Ammon. And Jephthah wowed a vow unto the Lord," etc. Judges xi: 20, 30.

The whole narrative shows that the said to be the evasion and nullification judge acted under the direct influence and guidance of the spirit. How is it possible that under this influence he is claimed that through the consivance of certain Judges could a bare have been could involve himself in the necessity of killing his own child? I find no nnswer.

Human sacrifices are condemned and declared to be "abominable" human sacrifice was abominable before God. And yet, we are requested to suppose that he, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, made a vow to commit the abominable act of sacrificing his child. We are to believe that the unfortunate father bound himself to commit a crime the penalty of which was capital punishment. Lev. (3) Jephthan's vow bound him to offer a burnt offering (Olah.) There are at least twenty-one different kinds of offerings mentioned in the Scriptures, but Jephthah's was a 'burntoffering.' The law concerning this kind of sacrifice is very minute in Lev.

1. It should consist of a male animal to be siain at the door of the taber-nacle. It was to be an atonement. The blood should be sprinkled by the priests upon the altar, and the victim should be flayed and cut into pieces, pointed to investigate alleged viola- and the whole burnt up, except the

The law is very clear on this point. What was the Lord's already, as for instance, the firstlings, could not be "sanctified" a second time. "The be the Lord's firstling, no man shall sanctify it. * * It is the Lord's. "Lev. xxvii:26. (5) In Leviticus i. 8, the command is given to the priests, Aaron's sons, that they should lay the parts of the victim in order upon the altar, when a burnt offering was to be offered. But the priests were expressly forbidden to touch a dead body. "Neither shall he go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother." Lev. xxi: 11. Whosoever was defiled by touching a dead body had to go outside the camp and be unclean. v: 4. See also Lev. xxii: 4-7. Hence the utter impossibility for Jephthah to offer his daughter as a burnt offering to the Lord, even if he had been disposed (6.) The author of the Epistle to the Hebrews gives Jephthan a prominent place among the ancient Saints who through faith "wrought righteousness and obtained promises." Heb. xi: 32. And this the Holy Spirit again repeats in the Book of Doc. and Cov. Lecture i: 20.

Now, to sum up the difficulties here pointed out; we are expected to believe that Jephthah out of gratitude to God for received blessings, killed his only child in direct violation of the sixth commandment; that he offered God a human sacrifice, although he knew that this was an abomination before the Lord; that he induced the fore the Lord; that he induced the priests of God to defile themselves and the sanctuary of God: in short, that he inspired by God's Spirit com-mitted one of the greatest crimes a man could commit during the old dispensation, and that he, notwithstanding this, has twice by inspired writers been ranked among the greatest saints on earth, held up as an example of faith for all the world. This is what to me seems impossible. THE DIFFICULTIES SOLVED.

Fortunately, none of these difficulties exists in reality. Those conversant with the Hebrew grammar know that Jephthah's vow.as recorded in Judges xi, 30, 31, can be rendered thus into English: "And Jephthah vowed a vow unto the Lord and said " what-soever comes out of the doors of my house " shall be for the Lord, and I will offer Him (the Lord) a burnt offering." Dr. Randolph among others advocates this rendering of the passage. The Hebrew word "veha-aleetheehoo," he says, ought to be rendered.

"I will offer him a burnt offering," for the word "hoo" may with much more propriety be referred to the person to whom the sacrifice was to be made, than to the thing sac rificed. If not understood in this way * * it must have been the vow of a heathen or a madman. If a dog, or other unclean animal had met him, he could not have made it a burnt offering."

The above is from the "Cottage Bible," p. 320. The curious investigator is advised to read the whole passage in this work. It is found in the Free Reading Room, Main Street, Salt Lake City. Similar constructions are found Gen. xxxvii: 4; 2 Sam. xv: 4;

If we adopt this rendering, then Jephthah's vow is in full accord with the law. Almost anything could be given to the Lord by a vow. In Lev. xxvii:men and women in different ages, clean beasts and unclean beasts, houses and fields are particularly enumerated. But as burnt offerings only the following could be used: A male animal of the herd, or of the sheep or goats, or of turtle doves, or of young pigeons. Lev. i: 1-17. Hence Jephthah promises that whatever should meet him should be for the Lord, and besides, he would offer a burnt effering.

the daughter of Jephthah." Ingram Cobden in his brief commentary, p. 250, says: "And every year the daugh-ters of Israel went to condole with her on her misfortume, in being separated from the mothers of Israel." Romaine the mothers of Israel." Romaine "In the original the words are: 'And it was a law in Israel that the daughters of Israel went yearly to make presents to the daughter of Jeph-thab, the Gileadite, four days in the year. The word here rendered 'la-ment' is elsewhere translated reward, hire, gift." The vow of Hannah, Samuel's mother, bears a striking resemblance to the vow of Jepathah. We read:

"And she vowed a vow, and said, O Lord of hosts, if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but will give unto thine handmaid a man child, then I will give him unto the Lord."

His victory had Coteau station and meeting two cought him to the front of the nation, the hands asked them to have a drink brought him to the front of the nation, and through his daughter, his only child, he had prospects of being associated with the most notable families of Israel. At the station till about 12 o'clock, when this moment he makes his vow, he was lost sight of. His trunk and which separates him from his valies were filled with fine wearing apchild and deprives him of having posterity through her. Let it be remembered that this was a voluntary act. City, Montana, and Murray, Idaho. For Jephthah could, according to the The murderer was seen at St. Poly law (Lev. xxvii: 4), have bought his Carpe this morning. Caza returned law (Lev. xxvii: 4), have bought his consecrated daughter back for the sum of 80 shekels. But instead of doing this, he gives her up, and she is willing to be given up, to the Lord. When I reflect on this, I find no difficulty in seeing why the Epistle to the Hebrews, and the book of Doc. and Cov. place Jephthah among the great Saints of the earth. He well deserves the place.

Ex-Congressman Belford: o whom it may concern:

I take great pleasure in commending to those afflicted with that terrible disease known as the catarrh that most excellent specific known as Wilhelm's Nasaline. I have used it myself with most beneficial results. Its use must shortly establish its great value.

JAS. B. BELFORD. From a prominent Denver lady :

I have used a part of one bottle of Wil-helm's Nasaline and have derived more enefit from it than I did from medica reatment during a six months visit among the celebrated catarrh doctors of the east. I can recommend it as being just what is claimed for it—a catarrh cure. MARY J. DEXTER. Sold by druggists, price 50 cents, or sen by mail same price. Address: NASALINE MANUFACTURING CO.,
