

BREVITIES.

Belgium has 5,000,000 inhabitants.
Three paper napkins for a cent in Germany.
An Indiana paper says its hopes have "gone where the mole dwelleth."
Sunday services at Helena, Montana, consist of horse trots.
A Saratoga landlord rents a hammock on his back piazza for three dollars a night.
Jealousy in married life is described by the French doctors as "Lanthropic insanity."
A New Yorker is said to have imported two thousand dollars worth of Irish swallows—probably meaning peat whisky.
A paper out West has for its motto: "Good will to all men who pay promptly. Devoted to news and making money."
They are doing a tremendous business in San Francisco with a chicken hatching machine. It hatches 200 dozen eggs at one "sitting."

God's word is like God's world—varied, very rich, very beautiful. You never know when you have exhausted all its secrets. The Bible, like nature, has something for every class of mind. Look at the Bible in a new light, and straightaway you see some new charms.
A preacher at Wausara, Wisconsin, has been discharged for being personal to his hearers. He said: "If I should take a barrel and fill it with the Holy Ghost, and another and fill it with whisky, and call this congregation up and let you take your choice the whisky would be gone first."

In the bull-fighting days a blacksmith who was rearing a bull pup induced his father to go on all fours and imitate a bull. The canine pupil plumed the old man by the nose. The son, disregarding the paternal roaring, exclaimed: "Hold him, Growler, boy, hold him! Bear it, fether, bear it! It'll be the making of the pup!"

A misguided cat, if we may believe a San Francisco paper, came near making of herself a national benefactor, but ended her life in glorious martyrdom. She entered the paternal bedroom and tried to suck his breath, not knowing, of course, who he was. It is, perhaps, needless to remark that the cat came to an untimely end. George carries altogether too much wind for any one cat. Had she survived, however, he would have killed her next day with an epigram.

The editor of the Horticulturist says: "We have known quite a number of instances—indeed, so often as to make it quite a rule—that old orchards apparently dying out have been brought back again to fruitfulness by the liberal use of wood-ashes, also stirring the soil. Potash is the most important element in the successful growth of all kinds of fruit trees. An old gentleman told a club, not long ago, that he had known a man to make and preserve an orchard of apple trees in a flourishing and productive condition, originally placed on very poor ground, by sprinkling every year around each tree, to the circumference of the extent of its branches, half a bushel of ashes. We consider this a very important item."

A plain farmer says: It is now over twenty years since I learned that sweet oil would cure the bite of a rattlesnake, not knowing it would cure any other kind of poison, both on man or beast. I think no farmer should be without a bottle of it in the house. The patient must take a spoonful of it internally, and bathe the wound for a cure. To cure a horse, it requires eight times as much as it does for a man. Here let me say, one of the most extreme cases of snake bite in this neighborhood—eleven years ago this Summer—where the case had been thirty days standing, and the patient was given up by the physicians. I heard of it and carried the oil, and gave one spoonful which effected a cure. It is an antidote for arsenic and strychnine. It will cure bloat in cattle caused by eating too freely of fresh clover; it will cure bites of bees, spiders or other insects, and will cure persons who have been poisoned by a low running vine in the meadows, called Ivy.

Once upon a time, says the narrator, Lyman Beecher and Hosea Ballou met to compare Calvinism and Universalism. Both were Bible men, and came armed with textile missiles. After several apostolic blows from each, shrewdly parried by the other, Dr. Beecher opened to the ninth psalm and read: "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God." "There, sir, the wicked are in hell; get them out if you can!" Hosea Ballou, calm as a summer morning, pointed to the twentieth chapter of John's Revelation, and read, "Death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them." "There," said Father Ballou, "they are out; get them in again if you can."—New Covenant.

The New York Commercial Advertiser says: Mrs. Mary Moran, having evaded the efforts of Mr. Moran to break her bones, summoned officer Maher to the scene of hostilities. "You are under arrest," says Maher to Moran. "Not much," says Moran to Maher, taking the latter by the throat and searching vigorously for his windpipe, while Maher's club is executing trigonometrical flourishes about the head of Moran. "Be the soul of me, I can't stand by and see Moran whacked in that style," says the penitent Mrs. Moran as she "whips up" a dismembered chair rocker, and employs it as a sort of entering wedge on the cranium of her would be champion, until the officer, finding himself, like Bazaine at Metz, hemmed in on all sides, retreats to the window and bellows lustily for help. The help comes, and Maher is rescued, but his sympathy for married women in distress is all gone.

ILLINOIS.

Ole Bull Marries.

CHICAGO, 7.—It seems certain that a number of persons perished in the great fire on Sunday night; notwithstanding the fact that no remains have been found, seven persons, mostly boys, are known to be missing.
Ole Bull was married last night, at Madison, Wisconsin, to the youngest daughter of Senator Thorpe, of that city.

NEW YORK.

Latest news from Paris.

NEW YORK 7th, 2.30 p.m.—A dispatch dated Paris 7th, says the bombardment of Montmedy, ceased yesterday. It is believed that the Prussian besiegers have withdrawn. The rolling stock of the Northern and other railroads will be dispatched immediately eastward, to bring back the troops. The prefect of Laon telegraphed at 8 last evening that no force of the enemy had appeared there.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Bombardment of Montmedy—Petition or annexation.

LONDON, 6.—The bombardment of Montmedy by the Prussians began on Monday. The French army has been ordered to retire on Paris. The Prussians have entered Rheims.
The cities of the south German States, including Carlsruhe, Mayence, Stuttgart, and Munich, have petitioned for annexation to North Germany.
The Times says if France refuses to treat the republic will perish, because Frenchmen are more jealous of military glory than of right and justice toward others.
The weather to-day is stormy: rain is falling in torrents. The government warehouses are gorged with bonded goods, and the merchants clamor vainly for more accommodation.

The German States, at the demand of Prussia, will undertake to provide for 80,000 prisoners, at the expense of the State, being one to every five hundred of the population.

FRANCE.

Will defend the City to the Last.—The Army exhorted to Rally around the Old Flag.

PARIS, 6.—The Journal Officiel, of the Republic, to-day, publishes a proclamation to the army, exhorting it to rally around the glorious old flag which, eighty years ago, drove back all Europe. The new government has revoked the functions of the following Ambassadors: Count de Lavallete in London, Count de Mothay, at St. Petersburg. A decree has been issued, requiring the withdrawal of all Germans from Paris.

PARIS, 7.—The municipal guard and its officers publish a statement denying the reports that they are averse to defending the city, and stating that they are determined to fight to the last.
The Montieur says orders have been given to barricade the streets. The people are quitting the city with the utmost haste now that the Prussians have approached so near. One of today's papers says that Prussia has already assured it that she will require the leading capitalists to guarantee the sum of 80,000 million francs. Among the names cited are Rothschild, Rowland, Galliera, and other bankers, and the presidents of the great railroads and other companies of France. The city is very quiet.

Every French town, yet heard from, accepts the Republic joyfully.
Jules Favre is awaiting a response to his telegram, recently sent to the U. S. Government; it is thought the reply will have a great effect throughout the country.

The French engineers are destroying the tunnels on the railroad here, running east out of Paris. The Prussian advance is said to be near Soissons, marching rapidly toward Paris. Nothing has been received from Strasbourg for a day or two. General Trochu reiterates his statement that Paris is safe. The adjoining departments are organizing. Trains arrive hourly, with artillery, cavalry and infantry from the front. The rolling stock of the eastern roads is now mostly concentrated here, or has been sent west to Havre or elsewhere.

ROME.

Great sensation and many arrests.
ROME, 7.—The proclamation of the French republic causes the most profound sensation here. Hundreds of arrests have been made by the authorities, and imprisonment on a charge of conspiracy.

PRUSSIA.

A Congress of the Great Powers.

BERLIN, 7.—The Russian government is about to propose a Congress of the great powers; Prussia will certainly decline.

RUSSIA.

French Ambassador Resigns.

ST. PETERSBURG, 7.—Gen. Huery, the French Ambassador has resigned, and instantly left the country.

AUSTRIA.

Conditional Neutrality.

VIENNA 7.—It is asserted that the accession of Austria to the neutral league is qualified by the condition that mediation is prohibited.

BELGIUM.

The whereabouts of the Empress.

BRUSSELS, 7.—The Independence Belge says the Empress Eugenie is the guest of the Hoogven family, at the Chateau de Meeuse, near Brussels.
