

TOURISTS IN GREAT NUMBERS

Estimated That 30,000 of Them Will Soon Visit Salt Lake.

EASTERN TRAVEL ENORMOUS

Railroads Will Be Taxed to Their Utmost Capacity—California Now Overrun by Pleasure Seekers.

Never in the history of the Pacific coast has there been so large a number of eastern tourists scattered among the cities of California. The passenger department of the Rio Grande Western railroad have received information that in and around Los Angeles alone there are now 20,000 tourists. Most of these have gone west over the southern route and will return by the Southern Pacific and the lines connected with Salt Lake City east.

"We are making preparations for the heaviest eastern bound passenger traffic," said the chief clerk of the passenger department this morning. "This has never been known in the history of the road."

Mr. Eccles of the Short Line said this morning that he has received word from the west that bears out the statement made by the R. G. W. people and further stated that nearly all of the tourists would go east over the Northern Pacific, most of them being routed by the Salt Lake route. He reports that the season will open earlier than usual this year and states that within the next fifteen days this city will be flooded with travelers.

The improved train service on the central route has caused most of this change of travel and traffic managers all state that this is only the beginning of the flood that will stop over in Salt Lake. General Traffic Manager Eccles of the Oregon Short Line says that not less than 30,000 tourists will visit this city within the next few weeks.

SUPPLIES FOR SIBERIA.

A Steamer Loads Railroad Material at San Francisco for Trans-Siberia.

A San Francisco dispatch this morning says: The Norwegian steamer Leander, which has just reached here with a cargo of coal from Japan, will load with railroad material for the Siberian railway. Her cargo will be about equally divided between Port Arthur and Vladivostok. She carries the latter port two light draught stern wheel steamers to convey the supplies on the upper Amoor river to railway construction. The steamers are about completed in the ship yards of the Fulton Iron Works. They will be towed in sections in the bay of the steamer and reconstructed on the banks of the Amoor.

THE SANTA FE COMING.

Another suggestion that it may build to Salt Lake City.

The Santa Fe announces that traffic on the new Santa Fe and Grand canyon will be opened next week.

It is stated that engineers have found a practical crossing over the Colorado river and that preparations are already under way to bridge the canyon, and that the line will be pushed through to Salt Lake. The line if built would run due north and south between Williams, Arizona, and this city.

THE SEVEN DEVILS ROAD.

What the Pacific and Idaho Northern is Now Doing.

P. P. Shelby, the general manager of the Pacific and Idaho Northern railroad, is in the city, coming down from the north this morning. Mr. Shelby says that his company will push the line thirty miles nearer the Seven Devils country this season, making Council Valley, seventy miles north of Weiser, the winter terminus of the road.

The thirty miles of road to be constructed this season covers the heaviest of the wagon road from the Seven Devils mining district, the distance from the mines to Council Valley being only thirty miles of down grade.

Mr. Shelby says the prospect of the early building of this extension has stimulated work at the mines and that the output this season will quadruple that of the past year and cause a boom in that part of Idaho such as has never been known in the history of the State. Already there is great activity in the great timberbelt and millions of feet of timber find its way to the market.

RAILROAD NOTES.

President Ripley of the Santa Fe is on his way to California.

The Short Line are using their snow plow at Ogden in loading ballast cars.

General Agent Grey of the Southern Pacific left this morning for a trip west.

The Roylance railroad outfit are both at work raising tracks on the Rio Grande Western.

C. A. Calver, the general assistant general passenger agent of the Chicago and Northwestern is in the city.

Traveling Passenger Agent Ridd of the Rio Grande Western, reached the city today from a stay in Nevada.

General Freight Agent Henry of the Rio Grande Western is at Kansas City attending the trans-Missouri meeting.

A large number of local railroad men are going to Boise, Ida., to attend the sheep growers' convention, which meets there on the 6th, 7th and 8th.

All Rio Grande Western passenger trains were on time today. The effects of the storm will not be felt until tomorrow.

Chas. Jenkins, the popular chief clerk of the general superintendent's office of the Oregon Short Line, has been called to Cache Valley to attend the funeral of his mother.

Chief Clerk Smith of the general superintendent's office of the Rio Grande Western has returned from a two weeks' visit to Los Angeles. Mr. Smith's family went to the coast early this winter.

One of the heaviest shipments of hardware yet received by Mr. Jos. Hatch of Heber City, the goods came over the Missouri Pacific and Rio Grande Western.

J. J. Dickey, the general western manager of the Western Union Telegraph system, and B. Brooks, the Denver agent of the same company, came in this morning. They are one of their periodical inspecting trips.

E. C. Griffin and wife are Salt Lake visitors today. Mr. Griffin is the traveling agent of the Chicago and Northwestern, with headquarters at Detroit, Michigan. This is his first trip to the west, with which he is very much impressed. He leaves for the coast tomorrow.

Live Stock Agent Hudnall of the Colorado Midland, reached home from Kansas City last evening. Mr. Hudnall has been attending several sales of blooded stock. He reports that the recent sale at Kansas City was the most successful sale of Hereford pure bred yet held in the United States. One animal brought $5,000, and the average price paid for fifty head was $445.

General Passenger Agent Burley received a letter this morning from Traveling Passenger Agent Dunn of the Oregon Short Line, who is now in North Dakota with the Idaho and Utah exhibit of grain and fruit. Mr. Dunn writes that the interest of the people of that section is intense and that he is crowded night and day by people making inquiries about the new country. He informs Mr. Burley that the passenger traffic from the Dakotas this will be a record breaker.

LICHENSTEINS ON TRIAL.

For Violating Pawnbroker's License and Interfering With an Officer.

The Old Man Fined $5 on First Charge and He and His Sons $15 Each on the Second.

In Judge Timmony's court this afternoon the cases against M. B. B. M., and Nat Lichenstein were tried.

M. B. Lichenstein, by his attorney, D. C. Eleonor, pleaded guilty to violating the pawnbroker's license by refusing to allow Officer Sperry to examine the books. Although the law plainly says that a fine of not less than $20 shall be imposed for the violation of the pawnbroker's license, Judge Timmony fined Lichenstein $5.

The three Lichensteins were then tried on the charge of interfering with an officer. Officer Sperry was sworn and testified that when he demanded to see the books at the pawnshop the three Lichensteins jumped on to him and tried to throw him out.

Sperry's testimony was corroborated by three other witnesses, eye witnesses to the scuffle.

"Stand up, gentlemen," ordered the court, "the sentence of the court is that you each pay $15, in default of payment that you be committed to the city jail for fifteen days." The fines, amounting to $45, were paid.

New Attorney Admitted.

Upon motion of Attorney D. H. Twomey, Will P. Wanless, of the Supreme court of Michigan, was today admitted to practice before the bar of the Utah courts.

Supreme Court Hearings.

In addition to the vaccination case the Supreme court heard arguments this afternoon in the following cases: State vs. George H. Nichols vs. A. N. Cherry, district judge; State vs. Christopher Hilberg, appellant.

JUDGE TIMMONY'S COURT.

Henry Woodson arose with an expression of meekness on his countenance likewise several scars that resembled the burns of curling iron—the scars, not the expression. He said, he got a little drunk and also something else, although he did not enlighten the court as to what the "something else" was. Henry had never faced his honor before and the usual courtesy was extended, and Henry vanished.

Thomas King loomed up again on the accusation of indecency. Guilty—$5.

Thomas Johnson, whom the officers had dubbed "Dumpty," an ex-convict whose true name is Ryan, faced the charge of vagrancy.

When he was spoken to by the judge and Chris Diehl, he said not a word. Then Chris roared: "Did you beg Saturday?" A— "Nay."

Judge Timmony—"Whisper and ask when he became dumb."

A—Two months ago.

Q—A—Pever.

Officer Burt then testified that "Dumpty" was playing possum; that he was a bad man and an ex-convict. The court said it was kind to be imposed upon and gave Ryan ninety days.

An Italian with a cognomen that sounded like the explosion of a bunch of firecrackers, was accused of being a vagrant. He said, "I am a vagrant, a me wot a for de Short Line-a." He was allowed to go.

Jabez Jones and Francis Bond paid $5 or five days for being drunk.

Ida Shimming, the young girl who stole a bicycle, will have a hearing before Judge Norrell to show cause why she should not be sent to the State industrial school.

THE STATE RESTS IN BENBROOK CASE.

"Was Burton C. Morris a member of that troop?"
"Yes."
"What was his physical development?"
"He was a well developed, clean limbed man."
"Was he a leader in all athletic sports?"
"He was one of the leaders in athletic sports."
"Cross-examined by Senator Brown—Was he quarrelsome?"
"Objected to by Judge Powers on the ground that there had been no attempt to show that he was of such a disposition. The question was withdrawn and the witness excused."

A MAN OF MUSCLE.

Testimony of a Second Volunteer Cavalry Rough Rider.

Charles Smelzer, an employee of Benbrook's gambling house, the "Sheep Ranch," was called. He testified that he had been a member of troop I, Torrey's Rough Riders; that he was a man of fine physical development and athletic prowess; saw his body stripped as it lay at the morgue. Morris, he said, was foremost in athletic sports in camp life.

A SUPERIOR MAN.

So Says Ex-Trooper McKenzie, a Fellow Trooper of the Deceased.

A. G. McKenzie, now employed as a reporter on the Salt Lake Tribune, being called by Judge Powers, testified that he knew Burton C. Morris in his lifetime, particularly while serving as member of troop I, Torrey's Rough Riders, where Morris was known "as about the best built man in the troop." "How many men were in the troop?" asked Judge Powers.
"Eighty-three."
"You say he was a man of unusually fine physique?"
"I do; he was regarded as a superior man."

PAUL KNEW BENBROOK.

Ex-Chief Had Business With Him After Going Out of Office.

Captain Paul, ex-chief of police, testified that he had been the head of the Salt Lake police department on two occasions, the first time for seventeen months, and the last for seven months. "When were you first chief of police of Salt Lake?" asked Judge Powers.
"In 1872."
"When?" said Judge Powers in surprise.
"In 1873," again answered the witness.
"You really mean 1873?"
"No; I mean 1883," replied Captain Paul. (Laughter.)
"You don't mean that either, do you, captain?"
"No, I mean 1893." (Renewed laughter.)

Witness then testified that he had known Benbrook for several years. His reputation had been good so far as he knew.

Cross-examined by Senator Brown—"Did you hear that he had attempted to shoot other people besides Morris?"

Objected to by Judge Powers, whereupon Senator Brown asked: "Had you heard that he had shot at other people before July 17th?"

"No."
"You did not know how he conducted his place of business, did you?"
"No."
"You did not keep a policeman at his gambling house, did you?"
"I did not."

"It was so arranged that people could get in, was it not?"
"It was, but the police could get in."
"You did not know Benbrook before you were chief of police?"
"No."

"You became acquainted with him after that?"
"Yes."
"You have done business with him?"
"Yes."
"What was the nature of the business?"
"I kept a livery stable, and he has hired horses from me."

"That is really all you know about him?"
"Yes."
"You cannot positively state whether he conducted his business—that of gambling—in a quiet manner or not?"
"I cannot; but I heard no complaints."

WHAT HARRY DUKE KNEW.

Got Acquainted With Benbrook Through Business With Bank.

Harry T. Duke, assistant cashier of Wells, Fargo & Company's bank, being called, testified that he had held that position since 1872 and that he knew Benbrook through his business transactions with the bank. He did not know him as a gambler, simply as a business man. Had heard nothing against him either before or since the shooting. So far as he knew his reputation was good. "You never heard of him shooting anybody in the bank did you?" (laughter.) This question brought Judge Powers to his feet in a hurry.

Said he addressed the court: "Unless this moment stops, on the part of the spectators, I shall be glad to ask that the court room be cleared."

"I have joined with you several times in a recent interview with Senator Brown but you have manifested an unwillingness to do so up to the present for the reason that the laughter was apparently favorable to your side. I do not appreciate being laughed at any more than you do, and unless this practice is stopped shall again appeal to the court for relief."

The court was here observed to smile just as he said himself and remarked that the smiles of counsel were sometimes somewhat humorous and that it was difficult for people to restrain themselves from ribaldry on such occasions. Nevertheless he declared that the dignity of the court must be maintained and that there must not be a further repetition of the offense.

Senator Brown, addressing the witness—"Then you don't know whether Benbrook carried a gun with him or not?"
"I do not."
"Might have had one when he came into the bank?"
"Possibly, but I can't say that he did."

MULVEY ON THE STAND.

Says He Offered to Go On Benbrook's Bond.

In answer to questions from Judge Powers M. E. Mulvey testified that he was formerly a member of the city council; that he was at present the manager of the Grand Opera house, and that he was engaged in the wholesale liquor business. He knew Benbrook and his reputation for peace and quiet was good.

Cross examined by Senator Brown—"Have you not taken an active part for the defense in this case?"
"I have not."
"Did you not offer to go on his bond?"
"I did not know that I did."
"Did you not really say that you would help get bail for him?"

ONLY A SUGGESTION.

But It Has Proven of Interest and Value to Thousands.

Common sense would suggest that if one wishes to become fleshy and plump it can only result from the food we eat and digest and that food should be food, like eggs, beefsteak and cereals; in other words, the kinds of food that make flesh are the foods which form the greater part of our daily bills of fare.

But the trouble is that while we eat enough and generally too much, the stomach, from chronic overwork, does not properly digest and assimilate it, which is the reason so many people remain thin and under weight; the digestive organs do not completely digest the food, forming beefsteak and eggs and similar wholesome food.

There are thousands of such who are really confirmed dyspeptics, although they may have no particular pain or inconvenience from their stomachs. If such persons would lay their prejudices aside and make a regular practice of taking, after each meal, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets the food would be quickly and thoroughly digested. Because these tablets contain the natural pepsin and diastase which every weak stomach lacks, and by supplying this want the stomach is soon enabled to regain its natural tone and vigor.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of flesh-forming food, meat, eggs, bread and potatoes, and this is the reason they so quickly build up, strengthen and invigorate thin, dyspeptic men, women and children.

Invalids and children, even the most delicate, use them with marked benefit as they contain no strong, irritating drugs, no cathartics nor any harmful ingredients.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most successful and most widely known of any remedy for stomach troubles, because it is the most reasonable and scientific of modern medicines. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by every druggist in the United States and Canada as well as in Great Britain at 50 cents for complete treatment.

Nothing further is required to cure any stomach trouble or to make thin, nervous, dyspeptic people strong, plump and well.

"I believe I told his brother I would do so."

WHAT DITTMAN SAYS.

Benbrook Was a Patron Whose Reputation Was Good.

L. W. Dittman, the saloon keeper, said that he knew Benbrook; that his reputation was good; that Benbrook was a patron and a regular customer. Dittman dropped into his place of business and bought beer and other liquors from him. Witness says that he did not return these calls.

In answer to a question from Senator Brown he said he had not heard that Benbrook had attempted to shoot other people before killing Morris.

WHAT SHEETS SAW.

Declares Benbrook Told Him That He Had No Gun.

Detective Sheets on being called said that he had a conversation with Benbrook while searching him after he had been placed under arrest. Benbrook said: "I haven't got no gun, George."

Judge Powers—"Didn't he say I didn't have a gun, George?"
"I don't know; he might have said so."

"What were you doing at the time when you asked him this question?"
"I was looking for a gun in his hip pocket searching for a gun."

"Did you observe the condition of his tie at that time?"
"I did; it was hanging down."

"With an air of surprise Judge Powers exclaimed: 'Isn't it a fact that it was his collar that was gone and not his tie?'"

"It might have been; I don't know."
"Did you notice any marks upon the accused's shirt?"
"I did."

"What were they?"
"He had a bruise on his forehead and one of his cheeks—the left, I think. He also had a cut on his lip."

"Were there any marks on his throat?"
"There were; his throat was swollen and red above the collar which had been torn loose."

"He had any marks on his chest?"
"I don't know."

Senator Brown here asked the witness a few questions on cross-examination, after which a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

THE DOOLAN INTERVIEW.

J. L. Priest Says It Was Correctly Given in the Herald.

The first witness called by the defense in the afternoon was J. L. Priest, who was interviewed by young Doolan for the Herald, testified that in the interview Doolan was correctly quoted. He had not pursued Doolan for the interview so much as Doolan had pursued him.

MORE ON CHARACTER.

Witnesses Testify that Benbrook's Reputation for Quietness Was Good.

Arthur J. Davis, steward at the Knutsford hotel, testified that he was acquainted with Benbrook and his reputation before the shooting was good.

Robert W. Sloan was next called to testify on the same subject. He testified that prior to July 17 last, Benbrook's character for peace and quietness was good.

George McGinn, one of the proprietors of the Vienna Cafe, testified that he knew Benbrook and prior to the time of this shooting, the defendant bore a good reputation for peace and quietness.

J. H. Stoddard testified to the same effect, but on cross-examination it developed that he had never heard the man's character discussed.

Ex-Chief of Police Pratt had known of the defendant for some time prior to the shooting, and his reputation for peace and quiet was good.

"During the time you were chief, was your attention ever called to disturbances at his establishment?" asked Senator Brown.

"Yes, it was."
"Once or several times?"
"Several times."

"Had you heard previous to the shooting of Morris of his shooting any one else, shooting at any one else or drawing a revolver on any one else?"
"No, sir; I never did."
"Have you ever heard of his quarreling with his wife?"

"Of his quarreling with any one else?"
"No."
"Or with a former wife?"
"No."

MRS. BENBROOK CALLED.

She Testifies That Her Husband Is Right Handed.

Mrs. John H. Benbrook, wife of the defendant, was called and testified that her husband was right handed.

To Senator Brown Mrs. Benbrook testified that she was married to defendant three years ago, on the coming 25th of May.

BENBROOK'S INJURIES.

Sergeant Janney Describes His Appearance at the Police Station.

Sergeant Ed Janney testified that when Benbrook was taken to the police station on the night of July 17, he was bruised on the forehead and lips. His collar was torn and his neck was red, one necktie gone, and his neck was red, one side being purple and showing the imprint of a finger.
