against Austria. All the speakers called on the people of Rome to make a solemn and dignified protest, worthy of a civilized people jealous of their rights, against the killing and mal-treatment of fellow Italians whose only offense was that they stood for their rece in history, nationality and culture. The speeches were frequently interrupied with storms of applause, mingled with invictives against Austria. An order of the day embordering the opinions expressed by the speakers was voted by acclamation and amid cries of 'Long Live Italy," and "Garibaldi For-After the meeting the crowd, as if in bedience to a command, made a rush for the Austrian embassy and consul-ate, situated in the Piazza Colonna, in the center of Rome, to make a demonstration there. The incident had been anticipated by the authorities and preautions had been taken accordingly. In all the streets opening into the laza police, carbineers, bersaglieri and valry had been stationed, and these nalted and turned back the mob from the vicinity of the embassy. In anticipation of the evening's necting the flags throughout the city oday were hoisted at half mast, Practically the whole population of Rome, except the Socialists and An-archists, participated in the demonstration. The Anarchists published an or-der of the day saying that according to their principles which do not admit of differences between countries or in-dividuals, they disapprove of the meeting, especially to the fact that "among those protesting today against the sacrifice of human life at Innesbruck are some who approved of he murders accomplished not by foreigners, but by Italians against hit-lans," referring to the conflict between the police and peasants, which was the protext for the general strike of September. AFFAIR IN AUSTRIAN REICH-STAG, Vienna, Nov. 18 .- During the session of the reischstag this afternoon Herr Pernerstorfer, one of the Socialist lead. ers, made a violent attack on the imperial dynasty. Referring to the Inns-burck affair, he alleged that the highest influence had been used to prevent a harmonious understanding being reached between Gerainns and Italians within the monarchy, adding that set-tlement of national differences in the Tyrol was now rendered impossible for many years. The speaker proceeded to refer to the dynasty which he charged with being responsible for all the unhappy conditions prevailing in Austria. The Hapsburgs, he said, had always regarded the country as an object of exploitation, and had been a burden upon the people for 600 years. The members of the im-perial family were not even prominent for personal qualities. The women, he agserted, were bigots, and the men clerleal partisans, mostly ignorant and un-educated. He concluded with characterizing the Hapsburgs as the evli fortune of the realm. Count Dzieuduszoyoki, the newly elected leader of the Polish party. In-dignantly protested against Pernorstor. fer's speech, which, he said, would not be permitted in any other parliament in the world.

who were promoted to the council of the empire. When Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky dispensed with their services the spectre of a constitution was sucessfully raised, according to their view. ersky, Strumer and Suchinsky. The two latter formerly were the late Inter-

or Minister Von Plehve's assistants

Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky's friends, however, have another side of the story. They insist that he acted in the sincere conviction of what he, believed to be the best interests of zemstros development. They explain that when the minister began the negotiations MM. Shipoff and Petrunkasvich and Prince Ivoff were sent to explain what the meeting proposed to do, and the minister found that instead of 34 presidents whom he had invited, about 100 representatives were to be present and that they proposed to go much farther than their powers authorized. They were in no sense official representatives chosen by the zemstvos to present a memorandum to the government. When the emperor declined to grant permission, however, Prince Svintopolk-Mirsky informed the represntatives that although official sanction was declined they could meet privately, police protection being guaranteed, Moreover, he himself at once drafted a law for submission to the council of the empire authorizing the zemstvos to elect delegates to sit in a consultative body in connection with the department of rural affairs of his ministry. This law will be immediately promulgated in order that the zemstvos at their approaching meeting in December may choose representatives.

Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky's idea that fll-digested, precipitate action might wreck the prospects for the future was supported by a number of the zemstvos representatives here, but the majority although moderate in their views rejected the advice of their colleagues as being simply a sop to a whale and entered the meeting this afternoon determined to speak plainly. Their program has a negative and positive side. The first consists in the adoption of a sort of reductio ad absurdum argument in the form of a memorandum. in which they will attempt to show the existing conditions in the empire, with constant unrest and disturbance result. ing in an increase in the revolutionary propaganda, cannot continue.

Propaganda, cannot continue. The course of Russian history will be traced to show the ebb and flow of lib-eralism and it will be contended that the liberal tendency of the government which began in the reign of Alexander. It was really checked after the Polish insurrection, and only briefly, revived nsurrection, and only briefly revived n the days of Loris-Melikoff. The pos. tive memorandum will recommend the calling of a constituent assembly as the best means of securing a legal expres-tion of the views of the nation.

The radicals and some student or-ranizations had planned sympathetic demonstrations in front of the Duma In favor of ending the war and ca ling national assembly, but with the place of meeting of the zensivos representa-tives secret, the demonstrations will probably not occur.

At the meeting this afternoon seven of the ten articles composing the pre-Bared memorandum were adopted. There sections declare that the abnormal conditions declare that the abnormal tone ditions in Russia are the result of the complete estrangement of the govern-ment and people, due to the absence of essential essential, requisite mutual confidence. These sections also declare that the conditions necessitate freedom of conscience, speech and press and the priv-liege of meeting in union, and assert
