He should be dealt with in the spirit of friendshp and sympathy, the welfare | held to be such in law? of the individual being the chief object in connection with inducing him to repent. Men and women as a rule will listen with respect to people who are seeking their interest. And if they are convinced that such is the case they will not be likely to cast aside their advice as a trifle unworthy of notice. Experience has convinced us of the greater potency of private methods of reclamation over those of a more pub-lic character. Their efficacy has been demonstrated moread as well as at protect nim? lic character. Their efficacy has been demonstrated abroad as well as at home. People abroad are frequently captivated and struck by the force and truth of the preaching of the Elders. But this effect is often more or less into forbidden paths, a better and purer condition would exist.

At no time in our history has it been more necessary for all good men in the Church to act for the benefit and purification of Zion. Every man should, in the language of revelation, be diligent and stand in his own place and not in that of another, that harmony may be preserved and all conflicts and disagreements disappear. Many of the chief watchmen (including the venerable President of the Church) whose hearts yearn after the welfare of the community, are hunted as were the servants of God in ancient times. Their voices are no longer heard in the congregations of the 'people, to direct them in the ways of righteousness. The Spirit of God is being withdrawn from the nations, and Satan has great power over the hearts of the children of men. He is also making a powerful effort here to draw away the Saints from the restraints of their religion. Inducements to indulgence in wrong are multiplying on every hand, and the plank upon which the people may glide down to destruction is being oiled for the hoped-for occasion. And we say here, with a solemn desire for the weal of the community, that all those who are not possessed of and enveloped by the Spirit of God, taking the promptings of that Divine influence for their guide, are in danger. The spirit of lewdness, of lying, of sabbath breaking, of a disposition to be "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God" is abroad in
