INCREASE NOT YET.

Promised Augmentation of City's License Revenue Late in Appearing.

License collections in the city are falling off according to the receipts shown by the records of the city auditor. For January, 1907, the total collections were $20,926.60. For January, 1908, the collections were but $18,574.55. This shows a decrease for this year of $2,352.05. The explanation given for this is that C. I. Goodman, the assessor of licenses, is endeavoring to arrange matters in such a way that all the licenses will be due at the end of the quarter. When this system is in working order it is held that the showing will be better than ever before. It is remembered that the claim was made that as soon as the new system of accounting was in force the city licenses would be increased from $50,000 to $75,000 a year. The number of licenses paid in January was 369, or two less than in January of last year.

WHAT USE WILL WE MAKE OF PROPERTY

Benjamin Fay Mills Speaks Before Large Audience in Barratt Hall.

Men Know Not How to Build

Solution of Individual and Economic Problem Speaker Declares is in Using Living.

B. Fay Mills spoke to another large audience in Barratt hall last night, when he discussed property and what use should be made of it, the text being, "The Modern World," and "The Sermon on the Mount." The speaker said in part:

"I shall discuss the law that governs the supply of every real need later; but I may say, in passing, that the ordinary personal 'struggle for life,' which has been the human rule until now, neither provides well for man's physical wants, nor cultivates his tastes, nor develops his mind, improves his morals, nor inspires his soul. We do not know how to live, so as to add one cubit to the stature. We do not most of us, know how to eat or when to eat. Most Christian men are still the instigators and supporters of the shambles feeding the body on the decaying corpses of their little brothers, whom they regard as the means to this end, and stimulating and increasing their own fleshly lusts by the process."

"And most of our ordinary ancient and modern architecture suggests monstrous, grotesque and unbecoming. It is the deadly enemy of beauty, and our cities for the most part, have the appearance to an artist of material nightmares. We do not yet know how to build like the hills or when to eat. Most of our cities are still the shambles of the clouds. It may be said of any human architect who approaches perfection that 'himself from God he could not be free.' In order to build a city like the hills, we must have a healthy, beautiful, convenient, comfortable, beautiful and permanent, men must experience that communion with the Divine spirit, which is the privilege only of truly trustful souls."

BEST HERITAGE IS POVERTY.

"President Garfield said that 'The richest heritage a young man can be born to is poverty.' I would not go so far as that, for I believe that the truest 'luxury' is possible for all and by the help of all, but I do believe the solution of every individual and social economic problem lies in unselfish living, and that the prayer, 'Feed me with food convenient for me,' will always be satisfactorily answered, when springing from an unselfish heart."

"To a man living generously, the sun shines with a brighter and more vivacious power than to a miserly man. Every bush becomes aflame with the glory of the Eternal. No animals are wild to him, but moved by their friendly sympathy, they lay aside their ferocity and are touched by his love, they give their love to him and are themselves brought near the kingdom. Men drop their masks and in every word and deed are honest, and in every utterance he hears the voice of his Beloved. Having nothing, he shall possess all things."

WHAT MANKIND NEEDS.

"But not only shall this illumination of the world about him shine into and through his soul but he will be able to rightly commune with God in the use of the material. Who knows just what in the way of material things man needs? There is only one answer, 'Your Father knoweth that you have need of all these things,' and He, that is the Universal Intelligence, is the only one who knows just what in the way of material things man needs. No man can trust his lusts or appetites or selfish inclinations to tell him what he needs, and the whole history of comparative human failure is the story of the unending procession of men 'from a set of things they know they do not want, to another set of things they do not know they want.' Things become man's enemies, and in every attempt he makes to possess them, they possess him and lead him to his own undoing."

MANY SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, OWING TO A PERSISTENT COUGH, RELIEF FOUND AT LAST.

"For several winters past my wife has been troubled with a most persistent and distressing cough, which has been attended over a period of several weeks and caused her many sleepless nights." writes Will H. Bullen, of the Burlington, Colo. Bulletin. "Various remedies were tried each year, with no beneficial result. In November last the cough again began, and after several weeks of suffering, on the suggestion of a friend, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The result was that the cough disappeared and has not manifested itself since. This remedy is a cure for all druggists."

The saving is made by the fact that you pay for the cure-to-cure you quality in every bottle of this remedy, and you get good results when you take it. Buying cough medicine is an important matter. ## UNCLE SAM LOOKS FOR REAL ESTATE

Federal Government Urged to Buy Some More for Buildings.

IT WOULD COST MILLIONS.

Scheme is to Purchase All One Side of Pennsylvania Avenue from Treasury Building to Capitol.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, Feb. 15.—If all the propositions pending in Congress for the purchase by the government of real estate in the District of Columbia were to pass, what magnificent pickings there would be for the real estate combinations! The biggest scheme is to have the government own all the property on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to the treasury building. Many millions would have to be appropriated for the acquisition of these squares. With few exceptions congressmen will tell you it ought to be done and that the public buildings should be located in that section of Washington. They would have all the future buildings erected south of the avenue, and in the event of such a large purchase of ground magnificent park space could be left, which would within 20 years make Washington by long odds the most beautiful city in the world. When it comes to doing anything, however, the leading congressmen talk as if this grand scheme will have to be put off to an indefinite period. Pensions and the Panama canal and the maintenance of the army and navy, rural free delivery increase and demand throughout the United States for more public buildings and the movement for proper improvement of the river and harbors, especially the inland waterways, will make such a drain upon the revenues that the capital city will have to wait many a year before its dream of beauty is realized.

GOVERNMENT CLERKS HOPE FOR RAISE.

At some of the recent meetings of the state associations in the District of Columbia several of the speakers recalled that last spring, when the Republican League of Clubs held a meeting here, Congressman Cooper of Wisconsin made their hearts glad with joy in his speech by saying, "We have just raised our own salaries, and we are going to raise yours next session." Many of the clerks at that time understood that Mr. Tawney was then of the same way of thinking.

TOOK TAWNEY'S ADVICE.

The fever among new members of the House of Representatives in Congress increases as the years roll by. A quarter of a century ago a new man felt it wise to keep very quiet during the first two years of his term. It was a hard lesson to learn, but the legislative fledglings began to get really bold. President Cleveland, it will be remembered, called a special session in that year to repeal the silver purchasing clause. That was the year Representative James Buchanan of Michigan, then in the House, was elected to the Senate. He was then practically the speech Tawney had prepared. Burrows had taken the Minnesotaan's advice.

HIS NAME IN PRINT.

John Wesley Gaines of the Nashville district of Tennessee seems to make it a point to get his name in the Congressional Record every day that he is on the floor of the House. He is in session. He is simply irresistible. He manages to break in when all other members fall. Gaines hardly ever misses a day.

NEW MEMORIALS FOR STATUARY HALL.

Probably the next statue of a noted man to be placed in statuary hall at the capitol building will be one in honor of General Lewis Wallace, an Indiana, author of "Ben-Hur." Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina and Alabama, it is understood, will in due time present to Congress statues of Andrew Jackson, John C. Calhoun, Zebulon B. Vance and John T. Morgan respectively. There isn't much room in the hall unless the marble and bronze figures are placed in double rows. The only statue of a woman now presented is that by the state of Illinois of the late Frances E. Willard, founder of the Woman's Christian Temperance union.

BILL TO INCREASE POSTAL FACILITIES.

Illustrative of the demand for increased postal facilities, Representative Ashton of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill providing that letter carriers shall be permitted to deliver mail by means of pneumatic tubes as frequently as the public business may require at every postoffice which produced a gross revenue for the preceding fiscal year of not less than $10,000. Further, that in offices where free delivery shall be established under the act just offered such free delivery shall not be abolished by reason of a decrease below $5,000 in gross postal revenue except in the discretion of the postmaster-general.
