REGULAR DELEGATE ELECTION

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1882.

PEOPLE'S TICKET.

For Delegate to Congress.

JOHN T. CAINE.

CONTEMPTIBLE TRICKS.

THE contemptible tricks which were discovered in several parts of the Territory to-day are worthy of the so-called party which seeks to work "reformation" in Utah. Envelopes were distributed, particularly among members of the People's Party, as they approached the polls, by representatives of the opposition, containing a thin slip of a ballot for P. T. Van Zile, the object being to vote as many votes as possible cast for Hon. John T. Caine. The voter putting in the envelope the People's Ticket, would not notice without close scrutiny the concealed ballot, and in the count of course the whole thing would be thrown out.

Another dodge was the printing of ballots headed "People's Ticket," and containing the name of P. T. Van Zile, thus deceiving the unsophisticated People's voter.

These tricks not being confined to any locality, but cropping out in various parts of the Territory, prove a preconcerted scheme to defeat the will of the voters, and is enough to proclaim the character of the plotters who want to obtain control of Utah. If there was any shame in them we might try to arouse it within their tricky souls, but we do not believe they are sensitive to its impressions. However, the People, while despising such meanness and fraud, will learn a lesson from it, and will be better prepared at a future and perhaps more important time, to look out for the low devices of "Liberal" conspirators.

THE GRANDEST RALLY OF ALL.

THE closing rally of the present political campaign in this Territory took place last night at Ogden. The opening gun of the People's Party was fired in that city and it was fitting that Ogden should be made the last as well as the first point of celebration. The People's Delegate accompanied by a large company of speakers and a few ladies went to Ogden on the 3:40 train yesterday afternoon, and in another car were the "Liberal" candidate, the Governor of the "Liberal" party and other stump speakers of the opposition, also the Fort Douglas band.

At Ogden the visitors divided, some of the People's Party going to the residence of Hon. D. H. Peery and others to the residence of J. S. Richards, Esq., while ample preparations had been made to supply the company with refreshments. A few minutes before seven o'clock the "Liberal" forces and a torchlight procession, in which many boys and several of the party from different places took part, and marched to the depot and back to town, burning red fire by the way.

Then came an immense procession of the People's Party, with over five hundred torches, Chinese lanterns, etc., two bands and the fire brigade, all in fine uniform, and a large concourse of citizens. It formed in front of F. S. Richards' residence, and the visitors being seated in carriages, with flags and banners flying, the procession moved up Fifth Street and along Main Street, which were lined with spectators, to the Tabernacle, the torchlight part of the pageant reaching from that building to and around Fifth Street, a distance of nearly half a mile.

In front of the Tabernacle and on the square barbed wire and bonfires blazed on high, electric lights with in and without the building made a brilliant illumination, and sky rockets, Roman candles and fire balls in variegated colors gave animation to the scene. The building was soon packed in every part, all available seating and standing places being occupied, while a large crowd could not gain admission.

Hon. D. H. Peery was chosen chairman of the meeting and Mayor W. Jennings, of Salt Lake, vice chairman.

After music from one of the brass bands, the chairman in a brief speech introduced who, while not in any doubt as to the result of the election, was pleased to see the enthusiasm maintained in Ogden and manifested on that occasion. He gave an account of his visit to many places in the Territory since the last grand reception in Ogden and proceeded in a vigorous and telling speech to present the principles of the People's Party and to expose the planks of the so-called "Liberal" party in all their weakness, falsity and transparent deception. His speech was interspersed with humorous hits and witty sentences, which were all perceived and applauded by the immense audience, and the candidate made one of the happiest of his speeches during the campaign.

PROF. Z. B. LEWIS

Was the next speaker. He traced the history and development of the Territory under the direction of the People's Party, and showed the aims and objects of the party which had grown up here desiring to obtain control of affairs though in the minority, and to rob the people of their rights and privileges. If John T. Caine was elected Delegate, he maintained, the whole Territory would be represented, but if P. T. Van Zile went to Congress the People's Party—the large majority—would be entirely without representation. He dwelt eloquently upon the glorious principles of American freedom, deprecated the oppression which was experienced in the South after the war, and the attempt to establish it in Utah, and vigorously supported the principles of the People's platform. His bold utterances, humorous anecdotes, and forcible style took well with the audience, and he was highly applauded. Music followed.

F. S. RICHARDS, ESQ.,

Said it appeared to him that instead of forming a platform of principles the "Liberal" party had framed an indictment against the people of Utah. He drew a striking contrast between the acts of the People and of their traducers. Related the history of the exodus of the Mormon people, their settlement on this soil, their veneration for the flag and institutions of the country, holding the stars and stripes on their arrival, forming a State government and seeking admission into the Union; these he cited as examples of that "loyalty" which was charged against them. He lauded the founders of the People's Party, many of whom were now departed, as patriots and heroes whose memory would always be kept green, and then showed how really disloyal to the Constitution and their country were those who, forced and strained construction of laws of their own procuring, did violence to the institutions of our government, and sought to bring the people into serfdom. He asked if we would ourselves rivet the chains they sought to put upon us by giving them our suffrages, and loud cries of "No!" resounded through the building. Mr. Richards, in eloquent and moving terms, vindicated the People from the charge of disloyalty and pointed to the time when, as a free and sovereign State, Utah would be free from bondage. His speech was full of enthusiasm and was frequently applauded, the cheers at the close being prolonged and hearty.

PROF. J. B. TORONTO

Endorsed the principles of the People's Party. The object of the opposition was to break up our unity; he believed that the 7th of November would prove that their efforts were a failure. He felt like standing by his parents and their cause and could not respect or sustain a party which tried to bring them into disgrace. The people had something substantial to back them in their enthusiasm; their principles were enduring. He spoke of the length of time in which the People's Party had conducted affairs without opposition and yet with honesty and fidelity which was not surpassed by any party in the land. Refuted the falsehoods uttered by the Liberals about school teachers being licensed by the Priesthood. He intended to stand by the old party and the old flag, and invited all the young men to do the same.

DR. J. M. BENDIS

Announced himself as a Yankee from the State of wooden nutmegs, wooden hams and shoe-nose cats, and as one who had been refused the right to register because he would not take the illegal oath imposed upon the people. He spoke of the tendency to centralization of power and corruption in a certain party to which those officials belonged who were now seeking to deprive Utah of her political rights, and read an article from the New York Herald in illustration of his point. He touched on the rights of minorities under our form of government and admonished upon the pretensions of the minority in Utah. He was opposed to returning boards whether in Utah or any other place. Designated Utah as the Botany Bay for political hacks who need office, to provide for them; exhorted the People's Party to stand by their standard bearer at the ballot box, and closed amid loud applause.

RON. C. W. PENROSE

Expressed surprise at the immense and enthusiastic reception of the People's candidate this evening, but thought there would be more surprise among the "Liberals" at the result of the election. Took up the charge made against the People's Party that it had deprived the women of the right of dower. Showed what it was and the status of women under the old common law, of which this dower was a relic—woman under it was a legal nonentity. Gave reasons for its abolishment in Utah, and enumerated the substantial benefits given to women by the Utah Legislature in exchange for the dower, among which were the right of married women to hold property in their own right, independent of the husband, whether acquired before or after marriage, a certain portion of the deceased husband's estate, the elective franchise, etc., and showed that the People's Party had endeavored to secure for women equal political privileges and liberties with men. Referred to the Legislative Commission, and proved that as stated in the People's platform, it would be a thing unprecedented in the history of the nation. Showed the difference between the government of the territory northwest of the Ohio River and the proposed government by a Commission and denounced the latter as an anti-republican and infamous. Referring to the principle that majorities should rule, proved that it was the majority of the locality that should rule in the locality, while the voice of the majority of the whole country ruled in questions affecting the whole country. Contended for the right of local self-government and predicted that when the People's Party obtained the power which would come to them, it would be used for the freedom and benefit of all people without regard to creed, color or race. The speaker was loudly applauded.

OSBORN PETTIT, ESQ.,

was the next speaker, and related several anecdotes illustrative of the situation, the parties and the issue.

Judge W. N. Dusenberry, B. W. Sears, Esq., and Hon. James Sharp each made a brief but pointed speech and the meeting terminated with three times three deafening cheers for the party and the candidate, and a brief response from Hon. John T. Caine.

The procession then reformed, the torches and lanterns were relit, and in splendid order to the music of the bands the party were escorted to the depot where a special train bore them to the city. While the immense cortege was moving away from the depot four links appeared glimmering in the distance which, borne by some boys who raised a feeble shout, proved to be the remains of the "Liberal" procession. The meeting of that party was held in the open air, "out in the cold," with an audience of about two hundred persons. The train was delayed for one of that party who had gone to Coalville, and so did not reach this city until 3 a. m. to-day.

Thus closed the ratification proceedings, Ogden bearing off the palm for enthusiasm, display, and well managed ceremonies, for which the committee of the People's Party and the convention delegates of Weber County are deserving of great praise and honored remembrance.

DENVER, Col., 7.—The election is progressing quietly. The weather is warm. The fight in Arapahoe County is very bitter; there is scratching on all the tickets. A heavy vote is being polled.

Scratching in the Empire State.

NEW YORK, 7.—The weather is cloudy and rain threatened. The election is proceeding quietly and a heavy vote is being polled. In Brooklyn many republicans are voting for Cleveland for governor, and the local ticket is being heavily scratched on both sides.

Horrible Holocaust.

HALIFAX, 7.—About 12 o'clock last night a fire broke out in a bake house in the basement of Elmer's poor asylum building. How it originated is not very clear, but the smoke of smoke spread through the dormitories and caused the utmost terror among from four to five hundred inmates in the institution. There was no immediate danger so the officials did not take steps to rescue the inmates. The alarm sounded and a stroke of the bell had scarcely commenced when the wheels were run out of the entrance door. A few people who had retired and others who lived in the neighborhood ran to the building and found smoke issuing from the windows all over the building, but no flames to be seen. In the west wing the old women and the children were seen at the windows crying to be let out, and as they began banging the glass it was feared they would throw themselves to the ground. The stairways were crowded and out came running infants, old grey-headed grandmothers and feeble old men. Then it became known that those in the upper wards and in the wing were helpless. Some of the officials were alarmed and the clergyman and others who were among the early arrivals who hastened up and with willing hands began to help. Half and lame down the winding stairs. As a work of necessity, slowly but finally that wing was emptied of everything. In the meantime the flames had spread from the base to the long shaft of the elevator reaching the top of the main building. The draught there sent the flames upward with tremendous force and in a few seconds the heaviest part of the configuration was in the top of the main building. The story told under the eaves of the building was as a hospital and in it were about 70 patients, most of them perfectly helpless. The fire was now fiercely burning right in the hospital and above the heat so intense that the melting lead poured down from the roof in streams of brilliant fire and the flames flew every where in deadly showers, rendering any near approach to the building almost certain death. Notwithstanding this there were hundreds standing outside, who would willingly have entered the building if they could have found their way through the place. Indeed several did go in, but without guidance could do nothing in the immense building and had to return to the ground.

Far above the roar of the flames and crack of the burning timber were heard the cries of the wretched patients in the hospital who were roasting to death. Most of them as before stated, were helpless and could not leave their beds or get up. They were stifled by the smoke before the cruel flames could reach them, but others were seen to dash themselves against the windows and cling to the sashes till their screams were exhausted or their hands burned off and they fell back into the cooking caldron of the flames. A woman was dragged herself to a corner window and forcing her body half out till she could breathe the fresh air, she remained in that position till her head burned off. It is known that there were about seventy patients in the hospital, and as few as could be accounted forly had been rescued. The building is still burning fiercely and no doubt will be totally destroyed.

The Elections.

OMAHA, 7.—Clear warm weather prevails in all parts of the State and a large vote is being polled. The women suffragists have coffee and sandwiches at the polls.

Chicago, 7.—After a bright morning, the afternoon is cloudy and warm with indications of a full vote being polled, which if continued is favorable to the republicans.

New York, 7.—Large numbers of persons have been arrested for false and illegal voting, for the United States marshal.

The democratic vote is heavy so far as known, and the republicans are doing well for democratic candidates.

The last betting on the result for governor of the State, made at Cleveland was: One dollar, 1,000 to 800 that he will receive 80,000 majority and 1,000 even that he will have 15,000 majority.

Philadelphia, 7.—There was a cold misty rain this morning, and contrary to expectation, the first three hours polling showed only a light vote. Toward noon the weather became somewhat clearer and the vote is increasing, though generally quiet, the police have been called to quell a disturbance in the First ward.

Topeka, Kan., 7.—The election to-day is for the full state tickets, one member of the Supreme Court, four members of Congress at large and three from the old districts in the State. The returns to-night will be incomplete, owing to the great length of the ticket and the fact that each ticket as it comes out of the box is counted in full.

Raleigh, N.C., 7.—Fine day; election passing quietly in the States far as known.

Early this morning John S. Harman, clerk in the employ of Noble & Jones, commission merchants, was found on the upper floor of No. 133 Leaslie Street, with his neck broken and a gash in the right temple. He had been dead some time. Supposed the work of footpads.

Failure.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., 6.—It is rumored that Wm. A. Leavitt, proprietor of the Herald glass works in this city, has failed for $700,000. All that is really known about the matter is that Leavitt has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Leavitt and Evans say that his liabilities are nothing like $700,000, and the assets will entirely cover them.

Most Cordial.

Berlin, 6.—The German minister of war has made known his decision to extend the German forces and strengthen its fortifications on the Baltic coast. New armored forts, with heavy batteries, will be constructed near Pillau and Memel, extensive fortifications of eastern and western Prussia and Posen, will be pushed forward with as great rapidity as possible; in order to meet the extension by Russia of her fortifications on the Prussian and Austrian frontiers. Everything indicates that the German government realizes the presence of a great and growing danger, and that the suddenness with which it has developed has neither terrified this government nor found it unprepared to meet the emergency.

St. Petersburg, 6.—It is affirmed in Russian diplomatic circles that the relations with Germany are most cordial.

Alexandria, 6.—The forces of the prophet in Sudan have made five attacks on the town of Obeld, but were driven back with great loss. Among the killed were two brothers of the false prophet. Obeld were driven back. The prophet continued to advance on Khartoum, for which there is hopes of a successful defense. It is reported from Tripoli that the Beiruts are offering for sale large quantities of fire arms and other property, the proceeds of their raid in Alexandria.
