TWENTY-FOURTH OF JULY.

Celebrated at Preston and Sister Shelby in Northern Indiana.

VERDIGRIS RIVER, July 28th, 1897.

To the Editor:

I left my home at Moss, Juab county, Utah, June 29th, 1897, and on the 3rd of July I took the train and arrived at Kansas City, Missouri, July 4th. Was met by President Heber G. Spencer and other Elders. On the following day we visited the Temple Lot at Independence, also held meetings at Brother Preston's. July 6th I was appointed to labor in Coldwater Grove, Ohio, with Elder T. O. Biggs as my companion. Among the nice, cordial people at Ohio I wish to mention Brother and Sister Norman. They were always ready to assist the Elders in spreading the Gospel truths; Elders are always made welcome at their home. On Oriole Wednesday with the Northern Indiana conference was held at Crumtown, St. Joseph county, Indiana. There we received kind instruction from Elder R. M. Scherer of the Northern States mission and our conference president E. M. Boyd. At this conference I was assigned to labor at Angola, Steuben county, Indiana, Elder U. G. Miller being my companion, traveling without purse or scrip, receiving much gift aside the hands of the people, making many warm friends and fine investigators in the Gospel, of whom some have acquired the knowledge, also to mention of Sister Rahnstraw and family of Mex, Steuben county, Indiana. Their home is always ready to receive the Elder and they open mouth for the cause of truth.

Our next conference was held at Logansport, Cass county, Indiana, on May 1st and 2nd, 1897, there Northern State Elder A. A. Reish of the Northern States mission, Elder R. M. Boyer of the conference and many Elders. At this conference I was assigned to labor in Fountain county, Indiana, with Elder John T. Gubler as my companion. On our arrival we met the couple near Covington, we visited Brother and Sister Shelby, who gladly received us. From them we were learned we were not the first Mormon Elders to labor here. They presented us with a list of the 74 Elders that had entertained in times gone by. We were also asked to sign the list as we were also registered. Elder John Morgan and Joseph Standing's name stood the list. They were here in 1870 Elders have been in and out of here every few years since. Much good has been accomplished, and numbers of Saints have been gathered from here to the valleys of the mountains.

We find the people as a rule broad-minded, willing to live and let live. Some are earnestly investigating the Gospel. Many are eager to hear or talk. School houses and residences have been thrown open for us to speak in. The city of Veedersburg is our headquarters. If any of the Saints have friends in this county whom they would like the Elders to visit, and will send their names and addresses, we will with pleasure call upon them.

On the 24th of July, 1897, we were invited by Brother Oliver Shelby to spend the day with us in camp at their home, and there under his supervision we had the previous of holding the American flag in honor of the Pioneers of the State of Utah. As yet Brother and Sister Shelby are the only Saints of Fountain county. We have always been made welcome at their home and have been partakers of their hospitality. Their home is always a home for the Elders. The Shiloth anniversary of Pioneer Day spent at Brother Shelby's is one long to be remembered by us as Elders in Israel.

Your paper comes regularly, and is a welcome visitor.

THE WEDDING DRESS.

Barbara and Lettice Maitland were sisters, the children of a doctor whose genius had developed itself more in the direction of spending than saving, and who at his death had left his family almost penniless.

Now, however, Barbara was earning a modest income as assistant secretary to Lady Hendersham, well known for her philanthropic efforts, and Lettice added to their store by teaching the children of a prosperous linen draper.

Lettice had been for some weeks staying at Broadstairs with her young charges, and Barbara was about the most happy-hearted during these weeks much that Lettice is at present in ignorance.

If we enter their little sitting room and listen to the conversation being carried on by the two sisters we shall soon learn the nature of what has taken place. One occupant is Barbara Maitland herself.

The other occupant is a man about 30, dark and handsome, with a pleasant response to wind and weather as well to man, having only lately returned from his fruit farm in the California. He is Lady Glendower's brother.

"It all seems so strange," said Barbara, "to think that we are actually engaged to each other, and that we shall be free to love each other to the very best."

"Yes," responded her companion. Then he added, "Barbara, would you not like to leave with Fred and Dolly and take a fruit ranch in California?"

"Yes, certainly I should."

"Then you the stupid." And Geoffrey placed in her hand a ring somewhat rare, wherein was framed the portrait of a lovely girl, spiritually yet full of sincerity, with deep blue eyes and golden hair.

"She died, and poor, little woman, you know why I told you I could never love here as new woman again. I now fondly took with all my heart and soul to you, and I want us to California and plunge madly into work. At first, as you know, things did not prosper with me, but I did succeed. Now I have regained all I lost and am comparatively a rich man, but I am to succeed and take a large number of orphan boys and girls, as a wife is of an infinite necessity to me."

That same evening Lettice arrived. Let the one to her hand a soft supple figure and a face of wondrous beauty. She was seen at this rare character study, but late a soft red heart. That her tongue was not fearless to say so, and Barbara's eyes clearly in the open window, left it all at her feet.

"What, Barbara—new ring!" cried the youngest sister, examining Barbara's left hand and examining the lovely sapphire flashing on the third finger. "Ah, you are blushing! Who have you been down while I have been away? Come, tell me all about it."

"I have been getting engaged," replied Barbara demurely, and then, without any great severity, she told her all about it.

So Lettice was introduced to the new brother, and the new leader and Lettice got on very lovely together. Lettice was just of an age to be fascinated by a man of Geoffrey's age and style rather than by one nearer to her own age, and Geoffrey was taken by his fresh, girlish ways and by her natural, unsophisticated style.

Both was all arranged—a marriage of mutual satisfaction and esteem, but no more.

But the birth good was not to be shouted. In two months, after one notable bound of passionate joy, as they realized that they small the world lovers alone, as changed to mutuals and despair as they also realized that they both are to honor bound never to be more than friends.

Look into Geoffrey's desk, where a pen, one evening toward the end of August as to pass up and down, looking at the feel that the clock is already registering the small hours.

"I finished that I was!" he exclaimed. "God to tell myself that my heart was a broken but filled over on the side for a flower of pink rose. Rose also formed a quantum on top, with loops of black velvet ribbon forming an aigret on one side.—New York Tribune.

Declined the Invitation.

A well known professor is noted for his absentmindedness. He and a friend, another old professor, used to take a daily walk together and discuss matters quite beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals.

One day when the walking was very hot professor No. 1 was on his way to the corner at which he and his friend always parted, when he encountered a young student whose face he recognized dimly, having seen it every day for some weeks in his morning class. He accordingly hailed his pupil, who was wading through the mud to get across the street.

"Have you seen my friend?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the student, panting respectfully in the midst of a mud puddle to remove his cap. "He is at the house waiting for you."

"Good," replied the professor, looking over his spectacles. "I thank you. You may be seated."—Strand Magazine.

An Acetesis.

"What did that young man call this poem?" asked the editor.

"A sonnet."

"And that implies that he is showing the uselessness and absurdity of sonnets?"

"I believe so."

"Well, there's only one guess that I can make concerning this, and that is that it is a satire on poetry."—Wash.
