LOCAL NEWS.

A Missionary's Address.—John H. Kelson writes us that his present address is 9 Temple Street, Holly Street, Dalston, London, England.

Married.—At Logan City, on Wednesday, January 6, 1885, Miss Maggie Freeze, daughter of James P. Freeze, Esq., was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Henry L. Bassett, son of C. H. Bassett, Esq. On Thursday evening a very pleasant reception was given at the residence of the bride's mother in the Eleventh Ward of this city. Many elegant and useful gifts were presented to the newly married pair by the numerous relatives and friends present. We join with their host of friends in wishing the young couple a pleasant and prosperous voyage over the ocean of life.

Annual Review.—The annual review of the 18th Ward Sunday school was held in the chapel of that district last evening, in the place of the regular Sabbath evening service, and was a very pleasant, profitable and entertaining affair. Superintendent James Saville and his assistants Douglas Swan and Rulon S. Wells had distributed the usual holiday presents to the children of the school a week previously, so that nothing remained to be done last evening but to review the exercises of the past year and test the proficiency of the children by having them engage in recitations, singing, etc. The showing made was very creditable to both teachers and pupils, and satisfied the parents who were present that a laudable work is being done in the Sunday school in that ward. Bishop O. F. Whitney afterwards made some appropriate remarks, as did also the Hons. John Rider and Martin Slack, from the southern part of the Territory, who happened to be present as visitors.

Notes from Benjamin.—E. B. Hawkins writes from Benjamin, Utah County, to say that the people of that place have had a general time of enjoyment during the holidays, although they have not forgotten during that period, nor failed to offer their prayers in behalf of those who are being prosecuted for conscience sake. On the evening of the 7th inst., a surprise party was held there in honor of the leader of the choir, Brother Enoch Ludlow, who has been conspicuous for his energetic labors in the interest of the people of the Ward. About thirty couple met at the school house and partook of a sumptuous repast, after which the evening was spent in listening to speeches, music, singing, recitations and reading, and in dancing, a noticeable feature of the latter being that no round dancing was indulged in. Sisters Levina Warner, Elizabeth Hawkins and Mary Ann Stewart acted as a committee on the occasion.

The people of Benjamin are expecting soon to have a new meeting house.

The Legislature.—The twenty-seventh session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah convened in the City Hall in this city today.

The Council was called to order at 2 p. m. by Chas. W. Stayner, chief clerk of the council of the 25th session.

Secretary Thomas administered the oath of office to the councilors-elect.

The following officers were elected:

Hon. Elias A. Smith, President of the Council.

Heber M. Wells, chief clerk.

Milando Pratt, engrossing and enrolling clerk.

J. Golden Kimball, sergeant-at-arms.

L. M. Cannon, messenger.

Jno. Hoagland, watchman and doorkeeper.

Chas. C. Shaw, chaplain.

Secretary Thomas administered the oath to the officers of the Council.

After prayer by the chaplain, the House was notified of the organization of the Council.

The rules of the last session were adopted.

Councilors Barton and Page were appointed a committee to notify the Governor that the Council was ready to receive any communication he might desire to make, and a recess was taken for 30 minutes.

The House of Representatives was called to order by Junius F. Wells, chief clerk of the House at the 26th session.

The Secretary of the Territory administered the oath to the members-elect.

The following officers were elected:

Hon. W. W. Riter, speaker.

H. G. Whitney chief clerk.

Levi Snow, sergeant-at-arms.

John Boynton, enrolling and engrossing clerk.

Lawrence Young, messenger.

Joseph Hall, chaplain.

Hon. S. R. Thurman moved that the Hon. Secretary of the Territory, Arthur L. Thomas, be requested to administer the oath of office to all the members and officers of this House. Carried.

Mr. Thomas then administered the oath, and the proceedings were opened by prayer by the chaplain.

The Clerk read a communication from the Council, notifying the House that the Council was organized, and ready to do business.

On motion of Hon. A. Hatch, a like communication was sent from the House to the Council.

On motion of Hon. A. R. Thurman, a committee was appointed to unite with a like committee of the Council to wait on His Excellency the Governor and notify him the Legislature is organized and ready to receive any communication he desired to make.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

The services in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon were presided over by High Councilor Wm. Eddington.

The choir sang:

O my Father, thou that dwellest
In the high and glorious place.

Prayer was offered by Elder George G. Bywater.

The choir sang:

A poor, wayfaring man of grief
Hath often crossed me on my way.

The Bishopric of the Fifth Ward officiated in the administration of the Sacrament.

Elder James T. Hammond was the first speaker. He said that, although it was a great surprise for him to be called on, he felt willing to respond, in the performance of the duty imposed on him. The main difference between the religion of the Latter-day Saints and that of the sects of Christendom was, that that of the former was more practical; that works and faith were combined. This made the Saints a better people than would a religion enjoying a passive belief only. When a person apostatized from this Gospel, it was little by little, so that to avoid that calamity, the Saints should weigh each act of themselves, to see that it was in conformity with God's will. If, at the close of each day, the actions of that day were reviewed and the mistakes corrected, the result would be manifested by rapid progress in righteousness. The chief object of life should be to learn the purpose of mankind being on the earth, and then to fulfil that purpose. Many people seemed to have no ambition for the future life; such a condition must be worse than oblivion; and made life not worth living. Exhorted the Saints to make strenuous efforts to see that their every action conformed with the will of God.

Bishop Joseph Kimball was the next speaker. He felt to say, "Father, Thy will be done, not mine." Were it not that he considered it a duty to stand before the people when he was called on, he would not have done so. He realized that there was a great responsibility resting on him in proclaiming what he knew to be truths of the Gospel of Christ. He felt that a time of trial was coming upon the Saints, and he knew they would be given strength to endure and triumph if they would keep the commands of God in humility. He was satisfied persecution would continue until the people observed the laws of God, and became truthful and virtuous in all their actions. It was the duty of the Saints to set an example to all the world. Those who were faithful would come off conquerors, for the Evil One could not overcome the Almighty, and the Lord would deliver His people. There was no fear in the hearts of the Saints when they had the approval of God, and the speaker prayed that they might always live so as to merit the blessings of the Lord.

Elder William H. King next addressed the congregation. He was grateful to God for all the blessings enjoyed by the people, and especially for the Gospel of Christ. He was proud of his position among the Latter-day Saints, and of the position of the people as instruments to usher in the dispensation of the fulness of times, and to preach the Gospel to all the earth. The Saints to-day claimed to have received through God's Prophet the same doctrines that were taught by Christ and His Apostles, connected with which were the same powers. The Saints did not feel to oppose the world, but offered, in peace, the pure principles of truth, a living Gospel. For centuries man had proclaimed that the Gospel was on the earth, but the people had found the tree offered to be a dead stump. That offered by the Latter-day Saints was the true, living tree, planted by God, and bearing the same fruits that were manifest in the Church in the days when the Savior was on the earth. The world could test this claim of the Saints, for if they found not the fruits of the Gospel among the "Mormons," they could denounce them as a fraud. But this could not be done, for the same principles taught by Jesus and contained in the scriptures were proclaimed by the Saints. It could not be consistently demanded that any truth must be eliminated from the Gospel, because of the present "highly moral" civilization. A truth anciently was true to-day; it was unchangeable. The Saints to-day believed, as did the Saints anciently, that where there is no revelation the people perish. It was only by revelation that man could know Jesus was the Christ, and without that knowledge there could be no salvation. It was impossible, through all the systems devised by man, to find out the Christ. This knowledge could only be obtained through revelations from God. Job's knowledge that His Redeemer lived, and that He should stand on the earth in the latter-day was not obtained through scientific research, but by submission to the will of heaven, so that that truth was revealed to him. The Latter-day Saints went farther than mere belief in revelation. They accepted the doctrine of works in connection with their faith. They believed in baptism for the remission of sins as a necessary ordinance, and in the imposition of hands for the reception of the Holy Ghost. The Christian world generally denied the essentiality of baptism, and in repudiating one doctrine of the Gospel they had but an imperfect religion at best. The Saints could only be satisfied with the whole Gospel, as the only means of salvation. They had the same organization and system of government within the Church as existed anciently. So long as the teachings of the officers in the primitive church were listened to the Church prospered, but when the people turned from those teachings they fell away, and God removed the principles of the Gospel from among those who rejected the truth. This same Gospel had been restored in this age, and was offered by the Saints to the world for their salvation. The same things which in ancient times excited the opposition of men to the doctrines of the Lord Jesus, brought opposition to "Mormonism," and as a result of this evil tendency infidelity and hatred were increasing among the inhabitants of the earth. The present course of things was such that the whole social system of modern Christendom was becoming so corrupt that as must fall, sooner or later. This principle had been exemplified in the history of nations that had anciently flourished and gone into decay. There were great numbers who had searched among Christendom in vain for the true Gospel, and preferred to remain infidels rather than accept the conflicting doctrines of an apostate Christianity. The Gospel was now restored to the earth, and men could obey it if they would; God would not force them to. The truth was progressing, and the Saints to-day had more faith and trust in God than at any point in their history. They knew that the advocates of truth had always been persecuted; they expected the same things to-day, and were willing to bow to the result, and, if it was necessary would sacrifice life itself in the defense of the right. Some people might shriek, but the world would find the true and honest-hearted would be steeled for the conflict. God would have a righteous people, and would strengthen for the trial those who implicitly trusted in Him, until they were united in a bond of love, that the deliverence of Zion might come. The speaker desired that all might be found on the side of right, never cringing, but ever battling until the truth was triumphant.

Apostle H. J. Grant next spoke. He had listened with pleasure to the remarks made by his young brethren. He was young himself, but also had a testimony of the truth of the Gospel. He was not surprised at the opposition to the Saints, for the devil and his powers were working to overthrow the truth. Men could travel among the "Mormons" and see their fruits were those of righteousness. An evidence that if the people were corrupt they would meet with the favor of the world, was in the fact that when men were excommunicated from the Church for wickedness, the world received them with open arms. The foes of the "Mormons" falsely declared that the latter were serfs. The boon of liberty was a precious one to all mankind; yet the Senate of the United States had voted to deprive the women of Utah of their liberties, and to steal the property of the Saints; this action had been predicted by the Prophet Joseph, who had prophesied that the Saints would be oppressed by the wicked. In "Mormonism" there could not be found a principle that was in antagonism to the teachings of Christ, or that would not ennoble and exalt mankind. There were men in prison men who would rather die than sacrifice their virtue, but the same could not be said of those who put them there. The man who detected crime was put in jail, while the criminal was at liberty, executing the processes of the law. If this was the class to enforce the law, the speaker was glad he was only one of the people. There was great boasting in America of the liberty enjoyed, yet there was not a community on earth who had been robbed of their liberties as had the Latter-day Saints. In Idaho, for instance, a man could not even believe in the Gospel without being disqualified from holding office—a serfdom worse than in Russia, for there a man could believe as he pleased, if he kept quiet, but in America this was not to be permitted. A man, to hold office, was compelled to swear that he did not believe in the Gospel. The Edmunds law encouraged men to be dishonest. It asked a man to sacrifice his honor, to break his covenants, and to deceive those who had trusted him. A man who would accept liberty at such a price was not worthy of belonging to the Church. It might be necessary for the Saints to suffer greater persecution for the Gospel of Christ, but they could rest assured that God would make His faithful children triumphant over all the powers of darkness.

The choir sang an anthem, and benediction was offered by Elder George Goddard.

Fatal Shooting Affray.—A desperate shooting affray occurred at Nephi yesterday, resulting in the death of a young man named Forrest Green, whose home is said to be in Lehi. The particulars of the affair, as we have obtained them by special telegram to the NEWS, are as follows:

Forrest Green and H. H. Pearson had been drinking and were in the yard east of Abe Chalmer's saloon, when Pearson drew a pistol, and placing the muzzle against Green's face said, "I will shoot you!" Green answered, "Shoot me, if you want to!" at which Pearson reiterated his former threat, and, stepping back about four or five feet from Green, took deliberate aim and fired. Green fell upon his face, exclaiming, "You have killed me!" Pearson then turned his weapon upon a man who was standing near, and commanded him to turn Green over and see where the bullet had hit him. The person addressed turned Green over and told Pearson he was shot in the breast near the heart. Pearson mounted his horse, which was standing near, and rode away, flourishing his pistol. He was, however, immediately followed by the sheriff and posse, arrested and lodged in jail. An inquest was held and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts.

Pearson will have an examination to-day.

Thieves Captured.—About two weeks ago nineteen head of horses, the property of Mrs. Slater, of Rush Valley, John Clark, of Grantsville, Parley Kimball, of Goose Creek, and John Tate, of Tooele, were stolen from Tooele and the thieves pursued southward by Parley Kimball and others. With a view to intercepting them, Sheriff McBride, of Tooele County, telegraphed to officers of Millard County to look out for them, and learning subsequently that the thieves had been apprehended and the horses recovered by them, went south himself. He returned by Friday's train with the two thieves, and that same evening lodged them in the jail at Tooele. One of them is a young fellow named Wm. Morgan, an orphan, who was reared in Tooele, has fallen into bad company of late and finally become sufficiently reckless and dishonest to resort to stealing, and that too from his friends. The other is also a young man, a stranger in that region, whose home is thought to be somewhere in the south, and who gives his name as Johnson. The stolen horses after being recovered were driven home by the western route, and have already arrived there.
