Dr. W. F. Beer was the first witness called this morning. He testified that he had known Roy Kaighn almost all of the boy's life. They went to his room and asked him what was the matter and he said he had killed a man, and that the officers were after him and wanted them to lock him in his room so they couldn't get him. He told his father how the supposed crime was committed but upon investigation it was found that the boy had not been in any trouble at all. The next morning, the vitness said he had no recollection of what he had said the night before. Mrs. Kaighn told of several other inicdents when defendant came home under the influence of liquor or a drug and acted very strangely, imagining that the officers were after him for some supposed offense, but upon being acked about the matter the next day he would have no recollection of his ac-

As there are 1106 miles of railroad in Idaho, it goes without saying that Mr. Jones has worn out several pairs of shoes this summer.

"I thought that the best way to see the country was to walk," he said this morning, "so four companions and myself got a pack train for our outfit and we walked into Thunder Mountain from Boise, a distance of 210 miles, and arrived there June 9. He stated that the formation around Thunder Mountain proper consisted of a light tale with a porphyry blanket over it which eventually runs into a sugar quartz. The porphyry formation runs from $2 to $8 a ton, and can be treated for $1.60 a ton, all free milling. He came to make a report to the board as to what the company had done and to see his father who is ill at Logan and to attend to some business of a personal character. There was nothing connected with it that he could not have attended to in Omaha. He went to Logan this morning and from there he will return to the "Corianton" com-pany at once. The company will open for the week's engagement at Kansas City one week from next Monday, play-ing there three times en route. Business has not been as heavy as we could have desired but we have not been playing to heavy losses. Every employe of the company has been paid every dollar that he or she has earned and the syndicate does not owe a cent to anyone. There are now no differences in the com-pany. Mrs. Anna Wilson and Mrs. Dick Lambert, at whose house defendant had boarded on different occasions prior to the tragedy, testified as to his constant use of cigarettes and liquor. The latter stated that she had seen him bordering insanity a number of times.

After the examination of these two witnesses court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

THIS AFTERNOON. The further examination of Mrs.

Kaighn at the opening of the session this afternoon was continued until after Dr. G. W. Shores was examined.

Dr. Shores testified that he had known defendant for several years, his brother, Ned Kaighn, having worked in the doctor's office for several years and defendant would come up there to see him. He said the boy changed considerably in the last year, and he had seen him a number of times when he ap-peared to be dissipated. Several times witness said Roy came to his office and would sleep off his drunk. In the last year he said his manner changed from that of a kind and obliging disposition to bluntness and rudeness. There was no cross-examination of the witness.

Mrs. Kaighn was then recalled to the stand and testified as to Mr. Haynes' visits to their home, where he was always treated in a pleasant manner by Roy. He always brought her some little present when he called. They corresponded with each other while he was out of the city. She said the rel-ations between Roy and Mr. Haynes were always friendly.

Mrs. Kaighn told of another incident where Roy came home and acted in a very queer manner. One night about two months before the shooting occurred she said he came home and saw a bottle containing laudanum on the table. He picked it up and drank some.

They watched him all night long to see that no ill effects resulted. The next morning, when asked why he did it he said he didn't know unless he was "bug-house." Every few days witness said he would threaten to leave home, saying no one cared for him. The

His leading the squadron into Newport at night squadron into Newp through searchlights. smoke and against a strong current, is pronounced to have been a brilliant plece of navi gation requiring a steady and undaunted nerve. Great credit is awarded to Capt. Lyon of the Olympia for his ca-ble cutting offerings, and to Capt. Brownson of the Alabama, and Capt. Manney of the Massachusetts for their able work. In fact, nearly all the squadron officers receive their share of praise in the admiral's report wherein is noticed the particular service which each rendered. Touching the operations themselves, Admiral Higginson says: "The whole and only intention was to develop, if posisble, any weak points in the line of defense established by the army, but whether we have done so or not, remains to be decided by the board of arbitration. The work has been arduous and trying, including much night navigation, and I cannot speak too highly of the way in which it has been carried out by the officers and men of the squadron."

I had no opportunity to test the value of fog for running past batteries. I was therefore obliged in running past Fisher's Island, and into Newport to select clear nights, 'army nights,' where every chance was with the enemy, and I had little hope of a successful issue, but as my guiding motive was to help the army test their equipment rather than to gain points, I did not hesitate to ake the losing side.

"One point in regard to the search-lights established, was that if all other aids to navigation have been distin-guished, we have in the searchlights of the enemy a sufficient guide for an approach to this position.

"To those officers not in the Spanish war, the experience of keeping position and cruising at night without lights has been invaluable and has educated them to war conditions and it is for this pur. pose, in my opinion, that these exer-clses should be continued each year.

"The naval militia in the squadron was from Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York and rendered good ser-vice and no doubt gained considerable knowledge of the naval methods and work. To Lieut.-Commander Craven, in command of the Aileen, I am Indebt-ed for his able and intelligent management of that vessel."

The work of the marines is said to have been of great value and their effi-ciency is said to have been greatly increased by their stay on shore. The army officer who acted as observer on board the Alabama, expressed himself as being very much impressed by the efficient manner in which the men were handled in the advance as skirmishers and the way they availed themselves of cover keeping behind stone walls and other natural objects. The admiral states that he will, in due course, sub-mit separate reports on the eleven features of the maneuvers undertaken by the fleet.
