DESERET EVENING NEWS: SATURDAY, MARCH 3, 1900.

The week has been a quiet one in soclai circles compared to the three previous ones. The reception and dancing party given by the students of the Salt Lake Business College on Tuesday night was the one notably brilliant public event, the rest of the list of social functions being home affairs of a most delightful nature. The reason for the very evident collapse in the number of festivities is due in large meas-ure to the fact that the Lenten days have begun, Wednesday ushering in the season that to many will mean a considerable degree of renunciation in the line of social pleasures.

One of the most delightful events of the week was the dancing and cue party given by Dr. and Mrs. J. T. White on Monday evening. The rooms were decorated with a profusion of plants and pink carnations artistically ar-ranged, the table in the dining room being prettily decorated with carna-tions and pink ribbon. A feature of the evening was a musical program, vocal solos being given by Prof. H. S. Goddard and Miss Elsie Barrow and piano selections by Mr. Harry K. Evenson. The rest of the evening was de-voted to dancing and pool playing, dainty refreshments being served durdainty refreshments being served dur-ing the evening. Mrs. White was as-sisted by Mrs. H. Dinniny, Mrs. J. Beatie, Mrs. J. Kinkead, Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Bickford and Mrs. J. H. Johnson. The guests were: Miss Block, Dr. and Mrs. Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bard Miss Reckliders Charles Read, Mr. and Miss Rooklidge, Miss Murray, Miss Keith, Miss Lillian Keith, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Jennings, Mr. William Lawrence, Dr. Critchlow, Mr. Benner Lawrence, Dr. Critchlow, Mr. Benner X. Smith Mr. and Mrs. Kinkeåd, Dr. and Mrs. D. Moore Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. F. Powers, Mr. George Lawrence, Mr. Wil-lard Thompson, Mr. Cleaver. Mrs. Oscar E. Carey was the hostess at a Kensington tea on Monday, about thirty-five guests enjoying the pleasant affair. The rooms were artistically dec-orated with cut flowers-carnations be-ing used in the parlor, roses in the dining room and daffocils in the hall. Among the features of the event was a guessing contest, a water color picture being wound round with narrow ribbon and each guest guessing at the number of yards entwined. Mrs. Thomas Carter's guess came nearest and the picture was awarded her as first prize. Miss Block, whose guess first prize. Miss Block, whose guess was furthest from the number was awarded a bunch of violets as consol ation. Another pleasant feature was a number of musical selections rendered by Mrs. Edgar Tuttle during the afternoon. Dainty refreshments were served The guests were: Mrs. H. E. Carey, Mrs. F. B. Mrs. John McDonald, Sr., gave an old fashioned stocking bee at her home, 18 East Fourth South, on Tuesday afternoon which was one of the most en-joyable affairs that have been given at the McDonald home. During the afternoon a stocking darning contest created much merriment. Mrs. W. B. Dougall and Miss Laura Hunter were awarded prizes for darning. Some of the old fashioned costumes created much laughter, and others of a more aesthetic style were equally admirable. A march and several old fashioned dances were enjoyed during the after noon, also interesting games and music Vocal and instrumental sele given by Misses Edna and Kate Dwyer, Mrs. Margetts, Miss Dahlquist, Miss Brown and Mrs. McDonald. Mr. Mc-Donald rendered a number of old fash ioned tunes from thirty years back. The supper would have been an elaborate one in days gone by. It consisted of numerous old fashioned dishes, such as chicken, pork and beans, pumpkin pie, mince ple, brown bread, ginger pread, bologna, home cured ham, nuts, dried apple sauce, home made ice cream, barley coffee and numerous other dishes that reminded those present of the meals their grandm cooked. The dining room was lighted with candles in decorated bottles, and in the center of the table was an im-mense old fashioned bowl filled with pop corn. Some of the dishes used were family relics from 75 to 100 years old. all At each plate a scalloped domestic nap-kin with the name of each guest was placed. The Ladies' Literary club, on Friday, will enjoy a paper by Mrs. Coulter, of Ogden, president of the Utah State Federation, on "The Home as a Pre-paration for the School." The directors tender a reception in honor of Mrs. Coulter to members of the club only at a clock 2 o'clock, the "servant-girl question" in a way altogether unique. Having sent out one thousand invitations to mistresses for a "home science reception" at the largest down-town club, they offered prizes to maids-prizes for the longest service, and the finest exhibit of cook-ing, laundering or mending. The result was twenty-five tables were cov-ered with most attractive samples of household skill from several hundred maids, while the prize-taker for longest service was a woman who had worked continuously in one familiy for fifty-four years.

These interested mistresses and their maids-each maid was entitled to five tickets of admission, and so invited her friends-rubbed shoulders socially whole day, each gaining new ideas for her respective point of view, and each being encouraged by the other's presence. presence. The whole affair carried with it an all-round recognition which served to elevate household work where it belongs-as an occupation of skill worthy to rank with the arts and crafts. Though a sympathetic rela-tionship between mistress and maid could have no voice or part in the or-ganization. This strict adherance kept out the purely civic clubs, no matter how declared their protests that they were not political. Departmental clubs having civic sections were received because of the literary and other work lone. This concillated the clubs, which done. This conciliated the clubs, which saw nothing for them and no possi-clitics for co-operation in an indiscrim-inate federation. As a result of this there will, in all probability, be not one derelict among all the well-known lit-erary and social clubs at the end of the thirty days allowed for the reception of charter member clubs. There is something for every day of the month of February for the depart-ments of the California club and at the general meeting the workers in the

She has had much prac-tical experience an amount which rare-ly falls to the lot of one woman. She worked for two years as the district nurse employed by the Conference of Charities, and has lived and worked in the South Part Settlement.

There is a general movement in the clubs throughout the country to encourage extempore speaking among their members. In Chicago the desire that women shall be able to talk with-out notes amounts almost to an edict, and it is a brave woman who is will-ing to acknowledge in that city that she has not and cannot learn to talk quite alons. The movement in this direction commenced after the Columbian Exposition, even when the com-plaint was so general that what the women had to say was good, but it could not be heard, and they all acted as though they were afraid that if they looked from their papers they would never again find their places. Women could not rest under that ban, and it Women is acknowledged now that there is not a city in the world where there are so many brilliant women parliamentari-ans. Many of the easiest talkers are those who, a few years ago, stammered and were absolutely tongue-tied when they had even to make a mation.

motion. This was not done in a day and not without help. Those who would succeed organized classes, and it was in these that many women were taught to talk ten minutes at a stretch. There are many clever women speakers in Utah clubs, but there is plenty of room for improvement. There is an opportunity for the enterprising woman who will organize classes and encourage women to give short talks instead of lengthy papers, and thereby make themselves much more acceptable to their fellow-listeners.

A Bride's Ingenuity.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer writes as follows: A bride I once knew was presented at her wedding with five or six (I forget the exact number) sets of salt cellars, She was not to be a rich woman, and the number of her guests would per-force have to be limited, so five or six sets of salt cellars were somewhat of a white elephant, especially as she was not sufficiently practical minded to exchange or sell the superfluous gifts. She found a use for them. One set of particularly dainty make shells and beautifully modeled cupids, adorned the dessert table, filled with deviled almonds; another set of quaint urnlike shape became receptacles for hors d'oeuvre; a third, also shells, but without the cupids, came out as tiny butter dishes at the breakfast and lunch table and so all were utilized to the immense improvement of her table, and the ing of her sentiment, which would not allow a friend's gift to be discarded. Another bride obtained a most fascinat-ing set of dessertspoons by the simple process of buying a different one at every town she passed through on her honeymoon.
