BREVITIES.

Civilization has reached Sitka in the shape of corner apple-stands.

Affectionate times—When everything is as dear as it can be.

A country editor observing that the "census embraces 17,000,000 women," asks "who wouldn't be a census?"

An ancient rhyme divides female beauty into four orders, as follows; Long and lazy, little and loud, fair and foolish, dark and proud.

Autocrats of the side-walk—A painter with a pot and brush in either hand, an ashman on a gusty day, and two ladies abreast with dress trails of approved fashion.

A driver of a coach plying between two small towns, stopping to get some water for the young ladies inside, being asked what he stopped for, replied: "I am watering my flowers."

Joe and Bill Benton went to New Orleans with a flatboat of corn. Joe wrote to his father thus: "Nu Auleens, Gune 1st—Dear Dad—Market is dull and corn is low and Bill's dead also."

An ancient sage uttered the following apothegm: "The goodness of gold is tried by fire, the goodness of women by gold, and the goodness of men by the ordeal of women."

Petroleum is now found very abundantly in Italy, and, as obtained there, differs from the Pennsylvania oil in the almost entire absence of gasoline, and in many cases of naptha, as also being free from any offensive odor.

A phrenologist was explaining the science to a Quaker. "What do you think of it?" inquired he. "Do not speak to me of a science that cannot be studied without taking off the hat," replied the Quaker.

A minister having preached the same discourse to his people three times, one of his constant hearers said to him after the service, "Doctor, the sermon you gave us this morning has had three several readings; I move that it now be passed."

First boy—I say, Bill, what'a yer got in that wallet?

Second boy—How d' yer know my name was Bill?

First boy—Oh, I guessed it.

Second boy—Then yer m' guess what's in this 'ere wallet.

The Russians have a strange practice of baptising the infants that are left at their foundling hospitals. The ice of the Neva is broken, and the Archbishop of St. Petersburg performs the ceremony. Sometimes the child slips out of his hands, and is carried down the stream. "God has taken the child, hand me another," is the reply.

"John, you rogue, you," said an unthinking mother, "if ever I catch you at that closet again, stealing cake and sugar, I will whip you as sure as you live." "Why, no you won't mother," answered impertinent John, shrewdly, "for you have told me so above a thousand times."

"Henrietta," said a landlady to her new girl, "when there's bad news, particularly private afflictions, always let the boarders know it before dinner. It may seem strange to you, Henrietta, but such things make a great difference in eating in the course of a year."

While a country parson was preaching, the chief of his parishioners, sitting near the pulpit, was fast asleep, whereupon he said, "Now, beloved friends, I am in a great strait, for if I speak too softly, those at the farther end of the church cannot hear me, and if I talk too loud I shall wake the chief man in the parish."

An old gentleman by the name of Gould lately married a girl scarcely nineteen years of age—after the wedding the juvenile bridegroom addressed to his friend Dr. G. the following couplet, to inform him of the happy event:

"So you see, my dear sir, though eighty years old,
A girl of nineteen falls in love with old Gould."

To which the Doctor replied—

"A girl of nineteen may love GOULD, it is true,
But believe me, dear sir, it is GOLD without U."

The fallibility of any set rules for criticism is well illustrated in the following anecdote of a great critic. It might be Dr. Johnson. At any rate, it was one who eschewed in writing all familiar, vulgar, or trivial expressions. A young poet called upon him to read and obtain his judgment on a poem—a first essay, he said, addressed to his mistress. It began thus:

"Oh, House, that dost contain the object of my love"—

"Don't say, "Oh house!" said the critic, "change it for a more elegant and refined word—abode, dwelling, bower."

"I feel the force of the objection," humbly replied the young man, "but, unfortunately, I am alluding to the House of Correction."

"In that case, pray go on."

ICELANDERS AT CHURCH.—A group of male and female peasants may be seen gathering about the church, waiting the arrival of their pastor, all habited in their best attire, after the manner of the country; their children with them, and the horses which brought them from their respective homes grazing quietly around the little assembly. The arrival of every new comer is welcomed by every one with a kiss of salutation; and the pleasures of social intercourse, so rarely enjoyed by the Icelanders, are happily connected with the occasions which summon them to the discharge of their religious duties. The priest makes his appearance among them as a friend; he salutes individually each member of his flock, and stoops down to give his almost paternal kiss to the little ones who are to grow up under his pastoral charge. These offices of kindness performed, they all go together to the house of prayer.
