

KARAGEORGEVITCH IS INTERVIEWED

No One Has Asked Him to Return
To Servia.

NO CROWN OFFERED HIM YET

He Could Not Possibly Foresee the Tragic Events of That Fatal Night.

Geneva, June 12.—Prince Peter Karageorgevitch, the newly-proclaimed king of Servia, gave an interview today, in which he repeated his disclaimer of any complicity, direct or indirect, in the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga. He expressed his detestation of the crime, and gave a brief outline of his own political tendencies. Replying to a series of direct questions, Prince Peter said:

"It is true my partisans have a complete organization in Servia, with which I am in frequent communication. I know from other sources that the content of the Servian people had reached its height, but I could not possibly have foreseen the events of the other night. I in no way contributed to their preparation, and I took no part, direct or indirect in them. On the contrary, their preparation surprised me."

"Several papers have a tendency to implicate me in acts which were not mine. An attempt has been made to embroil me in the Alavantes affair, when I had absolutely nothing to do with it. (Alavantes, an alleged relative of Prince Karageorgevitch, was the author of a revolt in Servia March 5, 1902, but was killed in the attempt.)"

"I was first informed of the royal tragedy enacted at Belgrade by a telegram from a cousin of mine in Vienna the following morning. Later a Montenegrin friend confirmed the news which I then had regarded as quite unofficial."

"I have received numerous messages of congratulation, but that is all. I calmly await the trend of events. So long as no formal proposals reach me I have no reason to leave Geneva, and I will remain here. No one has yet asked me to return to Servia. No one has yet offered me the crown. I am even without news of the members of my family who reside in Belgrade."

"My opinion of the executions of the king and queen of Servia is this: I deeply grieve that it has been necessary to resort to bloodshed. I formally disapprove of the violent measures, and I especially deplore that the army has had recourse to such measures—any army which has nobler tasks than to police the nation. It would have sufficed to force King Alexander to sign his abdication. He could have been bound as has been done in other circumstances. It is a horrible thing to shed blood."

"You ask what will be my attitude when I am in possession of the crown. We will assume that I am called to the throne—I shall not fail to take inspiration from the admirable institutions of Switzerland, which I have learned to appreciate highly. I am in favor of absolute liberty of the press. I hope to see Servia prosper under the constitution of 1889, which is very liberal."

"Regarding foreign relations, it has been alleged that I am systematically hostile to Austria. That is false. Maybe I am in special sympathy with Russia, in which country I sent my boy, in the hope that he would take service there."

HIS VARIED CAREER.

Paris, June 12.—Since Prince Peter Karageorgevitch has been proclaimed king of Servia, those who have known for a long time the members of his family here and who some years ago knew him as an interesting figure in Paris, are recalling various phases of his adventurous and checkered career. His life has been filled with dare-devil escapades and the ups and downs of a royal pretender and soldier of fortune. He has been constantly engaged in intrigues, plots and counterplots for the realization of his royal dreams.

The Associated Press correspondent visited Prince Djodja Karageorgevitch and other members and intimates of the family this afternoon, and it was pointed out that much confusion existed concerning the various branches of the family. Prince Peter, the newly-proclaimed king, is the head of the younger branch of the family which occupied the throne through his father, Alexander, and his grandfather, Karageorge, the intense family bitterness for the wrongs committed against the house of Karageorgevitch. He seems to have a military career for the purpose of fitting himself and his family to their royal rights.

In personal appearance he resembles his famous grandfather. He received his education at the military school of a prince, but when a boy of 12 he saw the rule of his family terminated and his and his relatives were driven into exile. He entered the house of Sainte Barbe and there qualified himself for the military school of St. Cyr, from which he graduated a sub-lieutenant. Later he entered the staff college, and graduating therefrom just before the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, he eagerly plunged into this conflict as an officer of the foreign legion, which was largely made up of sections of noble houses of adventurous foreigners.

This famous body was attached to the Fifteenth army corps, often receiving praise from Napoleon III. The price was in the hardest fighting of the war and took part in the battle of Orleans, where his cousin, Nicholas, was killed. Gen. Billot made him a member of his general staff. His conspicuous bravery in the battle of Villers brought him the badge of the Legion of Honor.

On the conclusion of the war he turned his attention to Hercegovina's struggle for liberty, and took a prominent part in the uprising which was the starting point in the Turkish-Russian war. He spent the greater part of his fortune in aiding the insurgents. One of his comrades-in-arms, named Neach, describes him as an enthusiast in the national cause, dreaming of a greater Servia and of all the Servians under one flag. He even offered to serve under the late King Milan, whom he regarded as a usurper of the Servian throne, and he was his loyal soldier in the Servian army, which won the insurance. King Milan refused, and thus was confirmed the rivalry between the houses.

After the Russo-Turkish war the czar's distrust with King Milan's course rendered the Russian sovereign friendly to the Karageorgevitch family. It was this year that arranged Prince Peter's marriage with Princess Zorka of Montenegro. Prince Peter then withdrew from warfare to the city of Paris, where he enjoyed a period of repose. It was at this time that he became well known as a Parisian figure, but 12 years' absence has largely effaced the recollection of him. When his wife died in 1899 Prince Peter went to Geneva, where he has since resided, though making occasional visits here.

Of his three children his daughter, Helene, is living with his father, and his two sons, George and Alexander, are both in the corps of pages at the Russian court, but at their father's express request the sons are not enjoying the special privileges granted to the children of princes.

During his life in Geneva he kept up his relations with political leaders in Servia, but always maintained that he took no active part in the plots against King Alexander. At the time of Alavantes' attempt to revolt in 1902 charges of complicity were made against Prince Peter, who then addressed an indignant letter to the Paris papers, in which he said:

"I take this opportunity to deny King Alexander's statement that I have an understanding with his former ministers now in Austria, and deny any participation in the pamphlets now flooding Servia, which were not inspired or approved by me. Lastly, and once for all, I holdly affirm that I am not completing against Servia and am not fomenting trouble. Why should I have agents to incite revolt and work in the interests of my dynasty, when King Alexander is performing this task better than anyone else?"

IN MEMORY OF CAPTAIN BURT

Tragic Event of Twenty Years Ago Recalled by the Erection Of a Beautiful Granite Monument, the Gift of Old-
Time Friends—How He Met Death.

MONUMENT TO CAPTAIN ANDREW BURT.

The "News" presents to its readers a photograph of the beautiful granite monument recently erected over the grave of the late Capt. Andrew Burt. A few of his old-time friends and associates organized themselves into a committee a few months ago and set to work to raise funds for the purpose named. The committee consisted of John Y. Smith, Charles Livingston, Wm. G. Phillips and N. V. Jones. A very ready response came from all quarters and in a short time over $300 was in the hands of a committee. The entire amount was put into the improvement of the lot and the purchase of the monument which is made of granite taken from the famous quarries at Barre, Vermont. The monument stands about eight feet high and has upon it the following inscription:

IN MEMORY OF
ANDREW H. BURT,
Born
OCT. 29, 1828,
IN DUNFERMLINE,
FIFESHIRE, SCOTLAND.
While in the discharge of his duty as City Marshal he met death at the hands of a desperado.
AT 55, 1883.
This monument is erected by Friends of the deceased.

It will afford pleasure and satisfaction to the Captain's old-time friends to know that his resting place shall be kept as green as his memory is in their hearts.

The tragic fate which befell Capt. Andrew Burt in this city nearly 20 years ago, is still fresh in the minds of many of our citizens. The lamentable affair occurred on Saturday, Aug. 25, 1883, between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock, p. m., and was the cause of great excitement in the community. Recording the tragedy the Deseret News of the date mentioned said:

"At 1 o'clock P. M. Grice, a colored man who keeps a small restaurant adjacent to the old Salt Lake house, telephoned to the city hall for police officers to arrest a man who was making a disturbance, flourishing a pistol and threatening to shoot. Marshal Andrew Burt and Charles H. Wilken immediately answered the summons. They walked to Main street in search of the man who had been complained of. When they got close to the drug store of Mr. Smith, near the old Elephant corner, Grice pointed to a colored man who was standing on the edge of the sidewalk and said: 'That is the man, arrest him,' or words to the effect."

"Marshal Burt, then whom a braver man probably never lived, approached Harvey, this being his name, to make the arrest, when he raised a needless gun. Mr. Wilken sprang upon him with the agility of a tiger, but he was too late. The messenger of death left the weapon, the bullet entering the upper part of Marshal Burt's arm, passing not only through it, but the entire body, coming out on the other side. He ran into the drug store, fell and expired almost instantly. Mr. Wilken grappled the murderer by the throat, but before he could prevent him he drew a large revolver and shot that officer through the fleshy part of the left arm, between the shoulder and elbow."

By this time an infuriated mob had gathered and despite the efforts of the officers to prevent it, Harvey was taken from them, dragged to a shed at the rear of the lawn-plat adjacent to the city hall and strung up over the beams that support the roof. It subsequently developed that the murderer's name was Joseph Samuels.

Marshal Burt was buried on Tuesday, Aug. 28, the funeral being held from the large Tabernacle.

PROMINENT CLUB WOMEN

Use Pe-ru-na as a Protection Against Summer
Colds and Their Disagreeable Consequences.

Curator French Section Ebell Club.

Mrs. Sarah E. Page, Baraboo, Wis., Curator of the French Section of the Ebell Club, writes from 423 Fifth Ave.:

"Peruna is indeed a valuable remedy for the cure of that most troublesome thing, a summer cold. Last summer I caught a cold but paid no attention to it at first, but soon found it developed into a serious catarrh of the throat. I was very much worried as none of the ordinary remedies had any effect on it. I was advised to give Peruna a trial and in a few weeks' time I was so much better that I could sing without any effort. I therefore take pleasure in recommending Peruna."—Mrs. E. Page.

Grand Recorder Daughters of American Independence.

Miss Kate Fauser, 116 Brewster St., Detroit, Mich., Grand Recorder of Daughters of American Independence, writes:

"Last summer I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs and I almost lost my voice and I felt most miserable. I took treatment but nothing did me any good until I took Peruna. One bottle brought me more relief than all the nostrums I had taken, and three bottles cured me completely. For tired and worn out women it is a boon."

Colds are considered one of the necessary ills of life. One is liable to catch cold both summer and winter. Very often summer colds prove fatal. They are always dangerous.

A cold is the beginning of catarrh. It may cause catarrh of any of the internal organs—the head, throat, lungs and stomach, or pelvic organs. A remedy that will cure a cold then would cure all these direct effects of colds. Peruna is such a remedy. We have letters from all over the United States attesting to this fact. The poor and rich alike use and recommend it. A book of testimonials in the exact words of the writer sent to any address free of charge by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Crushes Out
THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored spots break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently. Send for our home treatment book and write us if in need of medical advice or special information. This will cost you nothing.
