The Christmas number of the White and Blue seems to be a success. It is filled with original matter, the work of the students, with the exception of a Christmas story, which was contributed by Miss Arretta Young. Christmas customs are also discussed in two articles from English. Three interesting stories were furnished by the English C. class. Miss Annie Pike contributes a poem entitled, "A Christmas Prayer." This, with etchings, form a very interesting part of the literary department. There are also some very spicy items and local.

B. Y. ACADEMY NOTES.

School closed for holidays December 21st, and will reopen on January 7. All the students living outside of Provo, have taken advantage of the cheap rates, and have gone home.

On Friday last, between thirty and forty students were vaccinated. Room 2 was used for this purpose. Those who will have no chance to be vaccinated while at home, will comply with the health regulations when they return.

Friday morning, the feelings of the students were varied. Some were jubilant over the fact that they could return home, and others were sad because most of the students were going home, and they would have to spend two long weeks in Provo, with their classmates gone. Most all, however, were grateful for a few days' rest after the hard week of school, and felt that they would return to school with a refreshed body and mind, and ready for another successful term of work.

The last musicale of the year was given in the Opera house, December 20. On this evening, Professor Partridge made his first appearance as an accomplished pianist, before the Provo people, and was greeted with hearty applause. Professor Partridge played several beautiful violin selections. The academy band was also present and made the house echo with music. There were several other numbers, and in all the program was a good one.

GOOD REASON FOR IT.

The Success and Popularity of the New Cataract Cure.

The remarkable success and popularity of the new cataract cure, Stuart's Cataract Tablets, is largely because it not only cures cataracts, but because cataract sufferers who use these tablets know what they are taking into their systems; no secret is made of what they contain. They are composed of Hydrastin, blood root, gualac and red gum, are pleasant to the taste and easy to dissolve in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, nasal passages and the whole respiratory tract.

The cures that Stuart's Cataract Tablets have accomplished in old chronic cases, and the advantage of knowing just what you are taking into your system is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or mercurial habit has been frequently contracted as the result of the use of cataract remedies, as so many of them are well known to contain these injurious drugs.

Stuart's Cataract Tablets meet with the approval and cordial support of physicians because their comparative character renders them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them a common sense cure for all forms of catarthal trouble.

With nearly all advertised cataract cures it is a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into the stomach, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, are very careful to keep it a close secret as to what they really contain.

This is one reason why Stuart's Cataract Tablets have been so widely recommended, because they are not only safe, but they are so simple that the patient also knows he is not putting into his stomach anything of an injurious character.

These tablets are sold by druggists everywhere in the United States and Canada at 50 cents per bottle, and probably there is no better remedy ever devised for the permanent cure of cataract whether located in the head, throat, bronchial tubes or in the stomach.

The fact that the combined orchestra of the city is to be given, will give it a musical treat to say nothing of the participation of such artists as Prof. J. J. McEllean, H. S. Goddard and others. One of the chief features will be the rendition of musical piano-concerto by Prof. McEllean, who is a most accomplished musician, and in the orchestra, the concert promises to be the musical event of the season.
