CAPTAIN VAN SCHAICK OF THE BURNED STEAMBOAT GENERAL SLOCUM.

Captain William Van Schaick of the steamboat General Slocum, by the burning of which in Long Island sound more than 600 lives were lost, is still under arrest in New York city. It is charged that if immediately upon discovery of the fire in the kitchen of the steamer Captain Van Schalck had run her for the nearest land there would have been little loss of life and perhaps even none, ard by the financial legislation of the Fifty-sixth Congress.

HOOSEVELT'S ADMINISTRATION. Fifty-sixth Congress.

ROOSEVELT'S ADMINISTRATION.

The present administration has reduced taxation, reduced the public debt, reduced the annual interest charge, made effective progress in the regulation of trusts, fostered business, promoted agriculture, built up the mavy, reorganized a new policy for the preservation and recamation of public lands, given civil government to the Phillippines, established the republic of Cuba, bound it to us by ties of gratitude, of commercial interest, of common defense, swung open the closed gateway of the isthmus, strengthened the Monroe deetrine, ended the Alaskan boundary dispute, protected the integrity of China, epened wider its doors of trade, advanced the principle of arbitration, and promoted peace among the nations.

We challenge judgment upon this record of effective performance in legislation, in execution and in administration.

The work is not fully done; policies are not completely wrought aut; domestic questions still press continually for solution; other trusts must be regulated, the tariff may presently receive revision, and if so, should receive it at the hands of the friends and not the enemies of the protective system; the new Philippine government has only begun to develop its pians for the benefit of that long-negicated country; our flag floats on the isthmus, but the canal is yet to be built; peace does not yet reign on earth, and considerate firmness backed by strength is still needful in diplomacy.

The American people have now to say, whether policies shall be reversed, or committed to unfriendly guardians; whether performance, which now proves itself for the benefit and honor of our country, shall be transferred to unknown and perchance to feeble hands.

SEPT. 14, 1901.

No dividing line can be drawn athwart the course of this successful administration. The fatal 14th of September, 1901, marked no change of policy, no lower level of achievement. The bullet of the assassin robbed us of the friend we loved; it took away from the people the president of their choice; it deprived civilization of a potent force making always for righteousness and for humanity. But the fabric of free institutions remained unshaken. The government of the people went on. The great party that William McKiniey led, wrought still in the spirit of his example. His true and loyal successor has been equal to the burden cast upon him. Widely different in temperament and methods, he has approved himself of the same elemental virtues—the same fundamental beliefs. With faithful and revering memory, he has executed the purposes and continued unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace, prosperity and honor of our beloved country. And he has met all new creasions with strength and resolution and farisighted wisdom, SEPT. 14, 1901.

As we gather in this convention, our hearts go back to the friend—the never to be forgotten friend, whom when last we met we acclaimed with one accord as our universal choice to bear a second time the highest honor in the nation's gift; and back still, memory goes through many a vear of leadership and loyalty. How wise and how skilful he was! How modest and self-effacing! How deep his insight into the human heart! How swift the intuitions of his sympathy! How compelling the charm of his gracious presence! He was so unselfish, so thoughtful of the happiness of others, so genuine a lover of his country and his kind. And he was the kindest and tenderest friend who ever grasped another's hand. Alas, that his virtues did plead in valu against cruel fate!

Yet we may rejoice, that while he lived he was crowned with honor: that the rancor of party strife had ceased; that success in his great fasks, the restoration of peace, the approval of his countrymen, the affection of his friends—gave the last quiet months in his home at Canton to preace, the approval of his countrymen, the affection and sorrow—his great lieutenant. They are together again,

DUTIES OF THE HOUR. TRIBUTE TO MCKINLEY.

And demonstrated, have citizens out to the duties of the hour, the hopes an have a body of the future; we turn as they would have us turn, to the duties of the hour, the hopes of the future; we turn as they would have us turn, to the duties of the hour, the hopes of the future; we turn as they would have us turn, to the duties of the hour, the hopes of the future; we turn as they would have us turn to the duties of the hour, the hopes of the future; we turn as they would have us turn to the hopes of the hour, the hopes arrange under the same standard borne in other hands by right of true inheritance. Honor, truth, courage, purity of life, domestic virtue, love of country, loyally to high ideals—all these combined with active intelligence, with learning, with experience in affairs, with the conclusive proof of competency afforded by wise and conservative administration, by great things aircady done and great results already achieved—all these we bring to the people with another candidate. Shall not these have honor in our land? DUTIES OF THE HOUR.

Truth, sincerity, courage! these underlies the fabric of our institutions. Upon hypocrisy and sham, upon cuming and false pretense, upon weakness and cowardice, upon the arts of the demagogue and the devices of the mere politician—no government can stand. No system of popular government can endure in which the people do not believe and trust. Our president has taken the whole people into his confidence. Incapable of deception, he has put aside concealment. Frankly and without reserve, he has told them what their government was doing, and the reasons. It is no campaign of appearances upon which we enter, for the people know the good and the bad, the success and failure, to be credited and charged to our account. It is no campaign of sounding words and specious pretences, for our president has told the people with frankness what he believed and what he intended. He has meant every word he said, and the people have believed every word he said, and with him this convention agrees because every word has been sound Republican doctrine. No people can maintain free government who do not in their hearts value the qualities which have made the present president of the United States consplicuous among the men of his time as a type of noble manhood. Come what may here—come what may in November. God grant that those qualities of brave true manhood shall have honor throughout America, shall be held for an example in every home, and that the youth of generations to come may grow up to feel that it is better than wealth, or office, or power, to have the honesty, the purity, and the courage of Theodore Rooseveit.

THE NAME OF MARY.

Mary as a Christian name was held in very singular veneration during the mediæval ages, and in some parts of Europe there existed a superstitious reluctance among men to marry any one who chanced to have been so christened, or the bride elect was at least required to change this name for some other of less sanctity.

All Marys were at one time believed to be invested with extraordinary powers in connection with the affairs of life. Bearing the same name as the Blessed Virgin, they were considered worthy of more than common consideration, and their personal influence over their husbands especially was unusual; hence many men sought authoritative ordinances forbidding their wives to be known as Mary. Sovereigns, in some cases, dreading subjection to their partners, showed a marked distaste for Marys.

Thus Alfonso IV. of Castile when on the point of wedding a Moorish maiden made it a condition of the marriage that at her baptism, as a recent convert to Christianity, she should not take this name. In the articles settled for the union of Ladislas of Poland with Marie de Nevers there was a clause which bound this princess to change her name to Aloysa. Casimir I. of Poland, who married Mary, daughter of the Duke of Russia, required of her a similar sacrifice to popular sentiment.

THE GIRL WHO DOES THINGS. It is the girl that does things in this world who is attractive both to men and to her own sex, which last counts, too, in the long run. You may not be able to do great things, to paint great pictures or to sing in grand opera, but you can learn to make bright little things for yourself and your friends and perhaps to play the light, "catchy" airs of the day so that your friends will enjoy them, and if you can't do anything else cultivate the art of talking brightly and of being sympathetic. Every girl can do one thing well if she will only take the trouble to find out what that thing is. The difficulty is that she often looks in the opposite direction; she wants to do something great and showy or nothing at all. But there are other talents within reach if she will only look, and these talents may be such a comfort to her in her dark hours that they will make life better and happier both for her and those about her.

How the world likes a cheerful, plucky girl who makes a brave fight How the world likes a cheerful, plucky girl who makes a brave fight and hides her skeleton in a closet instead of folding her hands and whinding because things don't come her way—the girl who puts her own griefs as much as possible aside, who takes a wholesome interest in life!

The blue Adriatic with its rippling waves, the moonrise with its path of gold mirrored in the water, the floating clouds with the stars peeping through their fleecy folds-these Venetian effects produced by the master hand of Duss represent the very acme of realism in stagecraft.

Last summer there was some com-plaint that the more subdued passages of the orchestra were lost to the auditors in the remote sections of the Garden. To remedy this defect a glass sounding board has been placed in the

BROUGHT IT ON HIMSELF. A demure little woman entered a street car with a child, whom she at first placed on the seat beside her and then on her lap to make room for a flerce looking man, who soon became engrossed in a newspaper. The child kicked its tiny feet in delight at the strange things it saw while riding along, and its shoes rubbed against the man's trousers. "Perhaps, madam," he exclaimed, "you imagine that this conveyance is your private carriage?"
"Oh, no, I don't." was the prompt reply, "If it were you wouldn't be riding
