Mrs. Soroms Fry eat sity in the calfee emissioned chark in the kitchen.
This fact, Insecent at distant acqualitation, becomes startling to any one knowing well Mrs. Fry. A robust, industrious farmer's wife, her years, growing fact to be numerous, ant lightly wom bee, and did not turn her for a memoral from her daily work, always chosely and faithfully and unemaningly performed.
So long only only the old kitchen, with its yellow almanse hanging behard the sown, and its fading duil yellow floor, knew how long, had abe on every aftermon gane about hend the store, and its failing duty yellow floor, Knew how long had abe on every afteruous gross about the same swind of duties, from the time when Joshua left the dinner rable to the hour when he returned from the field, that it was much more easy to go on with them than it could have been to ponce. Yet there is a said killy in the old rocker, the stove helf peliebed, and the bright had been a support of the bright had been a support of the bright had been a support of the manally cheery face was clouded— nearly there of the support of the "Secrena," she said of a sudden, ris-ing with her secuntomed briskness, you ought to be dean admined of yourself. If ever Salan get into any courself. If ever Salan get into any courself. If ever Salan get into any with the secundomed briskness, you ought to be dean admined of yourself. If ever Salan get into any courself. If ever Salan get into any with the secundomed bright had lone, klinkin about goin to New very thing was done up. Holdays with fer large falls, that coretain." And even as she speke this stove be-gan to smile cell in its usual polished manner.

anner. When the hast bit of work had seen accomplished, and the old link, with Jackush spectacles on it, as awalling evening peayers from se lamp stand, Mrs. Fry act down,

"I had a hatter today, Joshua."
"You don't say!" said he, stopping the act of putting on the spectacion. From John".
"No." said his wife; "from Nophew shies, in New York."
"You don't as ""."
