

ANOTHER CRIME OF "INNER CIRCLE."

Pinkerton Detective Talks of Wholesale Assassinations
In the West.

GUILTY BEING RUN DOWN.

How Innocent Men Have Been Cruelly
And Secretly Slain—Conditions
Worse Than In Russia.

That a number of men will pay with their lives for the murder of ex-Gov. Steunberger of Idaho, and that of wholesale assassinations of recent years in the west, principally in Colorado, is the opinion of H. F. Cary of the Pinkerton detective agency. Mr. Cary is next in command in the western division of the great criminal hunting concern, and he speaks with an assurance that is most convincing. The coils are rapidly and surely tightening around certain men who have been more or less in the public eye for a number of years, but until lately it was not known that they were probably at the bottom of as dastardly and despicable work as ever darkened the pages of history.

HURLED TO THEIR DEATH.

Men have been hurled into eternity, singly and in groups, but the perpetrators and instigators have walked abroad unpunished and unsuspected. The list of those to fall victim to the murderous gang is an appalling one, and includes such names as Arthur Collins, manager of the Smuggler-Union mine at Telluride, Colo., who was shot from behind and killed; Wesley Smith and W. J. Barney disappeared from the same town, and their friends have never heard of them since. That they met violent death at the hands of assassins is almost certain.

WAYLAIN AND SLAIN.

Private detective Lyte Gregory was waylaid and slain in Denver. He had been prominent in quelling the labor troubles at Idaho City, Colo. Martin Gleason, superintendent of the Wild Horse mine of Cripple Creek, fell a victim to a gang of persons, and his body was found at the bottom of a shaft. Bob and McCormick, foreman and shift boss of the Vindicator, were killed by an explosion caused by criminal hands, at Cripple Creek. Fourteen men met death at the railway station at Independence, Colo., by an explosion that was terrific. The victims were non-union miners.

BOMB ATTACHED TO PURSE.

One M. B. Walley picked up a lady's purse, to which was attached a bomb intended for Judge Gabbert of the supreme court of Colorado. The judge did not happen to pass that way, as expected, but Walley did, and only a very small piece of the latter was ever found.

Two explosives were laid to kill Judge Goddard, also of the supreme court, and of various other unsuccessful attempts upon the lives of men who have enforced the law, are matters with which the reading public are more or less acquainted.

OTHERS IMPLICATED.

The confessions of Orchard and Adams, who were arrested for the latest Idaho crime, implicate other men, who it was believed were above such nefarious work. The officers believe that they are on the right track, and that many diabolical plots and deeds will be brought to light, and that ere long the blood of many innocent men will be avenged by the ignominious death of their murderers.

ASSEMBLING OF BIG MINING MEN.

Many Millions of Wealth Represented by Those Here and Coming This Week.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND ARRIVES

Guggenheim Party on the Way—President of A. S. & R. Confirms Balkanliala Purchase.

The end of the present week will see assembling in this city some of the biggest mining and smelting men the country has ever produced. When they are all here it can be said that there has never been in Salt Lake at one time so many who are leaders in these great wealth-getting industries. There will have arrived by next Saturday men representing many millions of dollars of wealth, and while it would be difficult to estimate what they do really represent, yet it is a safe guess to say, considering the vast enterprises with which they are connected, that if put into one sum the aggregate would be at least $250,000,000.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND HERE.

Thomas F. Cole was the first mining magnate of note to reach the city this week; John Hays Hammond, who is chief of staff of the engineers in the service of the Guggenheim Exploration company, American Smelting and Refining corporation, came in this morning, accompanied by his son, John Hays Hammond, Jr., E. T. Stannard, William Yale and James Douglas Campbell, the latter private secretary to Mr. Hammond. The party is located at the Knutsford hotel, they having preceded the executive officials of the American Smelting and Refining company, who are now making an inspection of the Colorado plants of that great corporation.

CALLED ON BY MR. WHITLEY.

Immediately after his arrival, Mr. Hammond made a brief call at the local offices of the American, where he was received by General Manager Charles W. Whitley. Later, General Manager D. C. Jackson of the Utah Copper company called in, of which company Mr. Hammond is managing director. But after leaving the McCormick building the noted engineer repaired to his hotel for a rest, after a very fatiguing journey across the country, and gave instructions to Secretary Campbell that he was not to be seen by anyone until later in the day.

ARRIVAL OF MR. GUGGENHEIM.

The date of the arrival of the party now in Colorado was not definitely known early in the day, although the fact that they were coming was in the "Centennial state" would be anticipated. In this event the party should reach here tomorrow afternoon, or possibly Friday morning. Daniel Guggenheim, president of the smelting company, is in the party, and with him are Silas W. Eccles, vice president and general manager, and S. R. Guggenheim and Samuel Untermyer. It is not believed by mining men in Salt Lake that the arrival of Mr. Cole at this time has anything to do with meeting with the American Smelting magnates, that it is simply a coincidence he should be here and have himself surrounded by a formidable staff of engineers.

BALKANLIALA CONTROL SOLD.

In connection with the arrival of Mr. Guggenheim it is significant to note that there has also been an assembling of interests associated with the Balkanliala Copper company, and while not one of them has even suggested anything in the nature of an admission, the statements have been made by Mr. Guggenheim that the deal has been closed for the purchase of a control of the mine. He stated further that engineers who have inspected the property have estimated that it contains practically 2,000,000 tons of ore, blocked out, and ready for extraction and on which there is a profit of $1 per ton on a 12 1/2 cent copper market.

The ore is to be treated at Mr. Guggenheim's plant at the San Francisco plant of the American Smelting and Refining company, which will effectively do away with the plan to build a smelter at the mine. The latter work was well under way and the Balkanliala company not long ago employed Robert White, former superintendent of the Utah Consolidated smelter in this valley, to take charge of the construction. There are certainly some big things working in the local mining and smelting world and the public may know more about what is going on within another week or ten days.

The Guggenheim party will probably spend the greater portion of next week here in inspecting the various Utah interests, after which it will proceed to the Pacific coast.

AMUSEMENTS.

Salt Lake Theater.—The fine old play, "Damon and Pythias," with its beautiful story of love and friendship, as given at the Salt Lake Theater last night, filled the house and delighted the audience. The production was well staged and the different roles strongly sustained. Mr. John Milton, under whose direction the play was given, soon made it apparent that he was an actor of ability, and his portrayal of Damon was such a one that can only be found in the ranks of professionalism. Scarcely less notable was the part of Pythias as played by Louis Dvorshak. The role of Dionysius was entrusted to the hands of Prescott Erickson, who is also entitled to credit for intelligent and capable work. Mrs. John Milton made a striking contrast to say beautiful Calanthe, and Mrs. S. N. Randolph an excellent Hermione. Little Miss Perkins did well the part of Damon's sister, and looked the very picture of exact nicety. The performance netted the local order a very substantial sum and must be recorded as being decidedly successful. The complete cast was as follows:

Damon John Milton
Pythias Louis Dvorshak
Dionysius Prescott Erickson
Procles A. P. De Bernardi
Procles Miss Marion
Procles H. E. Keene
Lucullus Lorus O. Pratt
Executioner Charles Ross
Calanthe Mrs. John Milton
Hermione Mrs. S. N. Randolph
Aria Miss Alice Gilson
Aria Miss Perkins

The next attraction at the Salt Lake theater will be "The Witch of the Woods," under Mrs. Harriet Purdy Smith's management. The attraction is an operatic extravaganza, and it will be given on Saturday afternoon and evening, with more than 300 persons participating.

"The County Chairman," one of George Ade's inimitable comedies, will be at the Salt Lake theater for a three night run beginning on Monday next.

Federal Control.—Washington, March 7.—By a vote of 11 to 2, the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce agreed today to make a favorable report on a committee substitute for the bill to extend federal control of quarantine.

The Amateur Nurse.—Miss Helen Gould was interesting a hospital which she is visiting.

At the end of the inspection, the nurse probationers, young and pretty and trim in their fresh uniforms, gathered about Miss Gould. They inhaled an impromptu reception in her honor.

Miss Gould praised the long arduous course of study and practice that a nurse must take.

"I have great sympathy," she said, "with amateur nurses. A surgeon once told me a story that illustrates well the amateur nurse's skill."

A young woman had taken some sort of correspondence course—nursing in three lessons—and thereafter went about looking for accidents, train wrecks and runaways, wherein she might distinguish herself.

Her search, one snowy afternoon, succeeded. Hurrying to a crowd, she found a man prostrate and groaning. He had fallen on a hidden slide and broken his leg.

"At once she took the entire business into her own hands."

"A cane," she said, and the bystanders quickly gave her one. She broke it in pieces for splints. She tore up her skirt for bandages. By the time the ambulance arrived, the injured man, pilloved on overcoats and bandaged in splint linen, looked as though he had been under a great physician's hands.

"The ambulance surgeon, examining the patient, looked greatly impressed. 'Well,' he said, 'bandaged this limb.'"

"I, doctor," said the amateur nurse, blushing.

"Well," said the surgeon, "it is admirably done, but you have made a slight error."

"What is that, doctor?" she asked.

"You have bandaged," he answered, "the wrong leg."

Perseverance Not Everything.

W. H. Pigg, who has started an elk ranch at Freshwater, Colo., was showing his herd of elk to a party of eastern capitalists.

"I am sure you will succeed in this venture, Pigg," said a broker. "You are a persevering man, and perseverance always brings success."

"I am persevering," he admitted, "and I believe in perseverance. At the same time I don't rate it as high, sir, as you do. Perseverance without intellect is foolishness. A hen will sit year on a china egg, but there will be no results."

INSTITUTES HELD IN THE SOUTH.

Also a Visit to Experiment Station by Representative Men.

PLEASED BY APPEARANCE.

Purpose and Manner of Conducting The Work Thoroughly Explained To The Party.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

St. George, Utah, March 5.—Not the least in importance of the events connected with the farmers' institutes held here the past week was the excursion to the Southern Experiment Station and the Washington Field Drainage Experiment. President W. J. Kerr and Professors McLaughlin and North, who have been conducting the institute together with Representative T. P. Cottam, President of State Board of Horticulture Thomas Judd, President of Stake E. H. Snow, and a large number of representative citizens of this locality spent Monday morning, making a thorough inspection of these two farms.

SOUTHERN STATION.

The Southern Experiment Station was first visited by the party, who one and all were highly pleased by the fine appearance of the farm. Mr. Jos. L. Atkin, who is foreman of this station, and has immediate charge of the experimental work, escorted the party over the grounds explaining the purpose and manner of conducting the work. He showed the necessity for treating the soil to improve its physical condition and progress of the soil, and called attention to some cover crop experiments aimed to accomplish this. He said by putting some rank growing crops such as rape, turnips, etc., on the ground during the fall, they would make sufficient growth to materially increase the humus in the soil when turned under in the following spring. Some different methods of pruning trees and vines were also shown, particular attention being called to those properly pruned. Prof. Northrop found numerous examples of pruning to further illustrate his talks at the institute, and specially commended the work of Mr. Atkin in superintending the farm. Presidents Kerr and Judd also expressed themselves as highly gratified with the good condition and progress of the work being done at the station.

OTHER WORK PROPOSED.

Attention was also called to the needs of the party that a great amount of further experimental work was contemplated. Many new species of fruits, nuts, vegetables, etc., are to be planted in the near future, and since most of these are of comparatively high value and easy to ship it is more than likely that the people of southern Utah will reap a great benefit from the work of the station.

After leaving the southern station the party walked to the adjoining experiment in drainage which is carried on by the state, and federal governments in co-operation. This is a tract of land embracing over 320 acres, which has been sozky, and the alkali, which is so prevalent in this vicinity, has risen to the surface. The plan of the experiment was to construct drains, that the surplus water later applied, would succeed in carrying the alkali out of the soil.

THOSE WHO DID IT.

This work was done under the direction of Prof. W. W. McLaughlin, of the experiment station of Logan, and Prof. C. G. Elliott of Washington, D. C., while Mr. C. F. Brown of the office of experiment stations, Washington, D. C., had charge of the work. Something over two miles of drain were constructed with the result that this piece of land, though formerly in very poor condition, now makes the best hay of the surrounding fields and has demonstrated beyond a doubt the efficiency of the system.

The party returned to St. George feeling very well repaid for their visit, after which those from the Agricultural college left by stage to inspect the state dry farm or Washington county arid experiment station at Enterprise.
