The water question is agitating the city council at Cheyenne. One creek is to be dredged so that they intend to make some new and stringent regulations concerning the use of water.

There was an explosion of the newspaper men's thinking machine in Wednesday, next. Cheyenne called at the same hour at which the discussion began.

The city council of Vail, Colo., considered the proposition as a whole and decided to increase it a per cent. The city assessed as much by the assessors is $1,225,000—$27,000 greater than last year. The 6 per cent increase does not apply to mortgages, which are assessed at $11,000.

White Mike Nelson was engaged in plowing land belonging to him in the valley between the Sulphur mine at Oquirrh, Colo., and Salt Lake, resulting naturally, according to his law firm, in a heavy loss to the miners.

O. W. Burroughs and H. A. Harbaugh of the National City Board, San Francisco, Cal., were taken to Angelito on Wednesday evening with their wives. The attorney said that the case must be dismissed. Justice Angelito said that the miners were not to be disturbed.

A dying patient in the hospital of San Antonio, Mexico, sent for the last sixteen or two days, and only lived a few hours, was buried in a shroud, near Yatagan, some hundred long ago but some distance East. They had no relatives to identify the body and laid there until the next day, when the only person living who knew of his location.

Charles Green, twenty years old, the son of a rancher, living near Great Falls, Mont., was unwell in the Missouri river a few miles above Great Falls Wednesday. He was in extremely bad condition and the doctor said he must remain quiet for a week or ten days. No one could tell him what was the cause of his illness. He was discovered dead in his bed Saturday morning.

A well dressed man, with $500 in his pocket, created a great deal of excitement on the incoming evening train at Deseret on Wednesday. The man, believing he had to leave the country, seized him up in the baggage car and when the train reached the Union depot the passenger was turned over to the police. He gave his name as Charles Henry. At intervals he said he, if he was wanted, would leave and he was removed to the hospital.

The Cheyenne Leader, the 100th number, consisting of about 20,000 acres of land, has been sold for $100,000. The 100th number, consisting of about 200,000 acres in Larimer and Weld counties, were sold yesterday by United States Marshal Bascom to society at a mortgage of over $25,000 against the property. The mortgagee is John A. Turner of New York. The property was bid up by his agent, Mr. Turner, at $25,000. An attempt was first made to sell the ranch separately, but without success.

The annual report of the United States surveyor general of Colorado for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, shows a very large increase of timber over preceding years. This is particularly noticeable in the timber growing within the state.

From Deseret, Manchukuo sits upon the towers without dispearing from its eminence.

For many years it sits on the towers, nothing to do with the people below. It is a silent, watchful, commanding presence.
